CONDITIONS OF SALE.

I. The highest bidder to be the buyer; and if any dispute arise between bidders, the lot so disputed shall be immediately put up again, provided the Auctioneer cannot decide the said dispute.

II. No person to advance less than 6*d*; above five shillings, 1*s*.; above five pounds, 2*s*. 6*d*.; and so on.

III. In the case of lots upon which there is a reserve, the Auctioneer shall have the right to bid on behalf of the Seller.

IV. The purchasers to give in their names and places of abode, and to pay down 10*s*. in the pound, if required, in part payment of the purchase-money; in default of which the lot or lots purchased to be immediately put up again and resold.

V. The lots to be taken away at the buyer's expense immediately after the conclusion of the sale; in default of which Messrs. SOTHEBY, WILKINSON & HODGE will not hold themselves responsible if lost, stolen, damaged, or otherwise destroyed, but they will be left at the sole risk of the purchaser. If, at the expiration of ONE WEEK after the conclusion of the sale, the books or other property are not cleared or paid for, they will then be catalogued for immediate sale, and the expenses the same as if re-sold, will be added to the amount at which the books were bought. Messrs. SOTHEBY, WILKINSON and HODGE will have the option of reselling the lots uncleared either by public or private sale without any notice being given to the defaulter.

VI. All the books are presumed to be perfect unless otherwise expressed; but if upon collating, any should prove defective, the purchaser will be at liberty to take or reject them, provided they are returned within ONE WEEK after the conclusion of the sale, when the purchase-money will be returned.

VII. The sale of any book or books is not to be set aside on account of any stained or short leaves of text or plates, want of list of plates, or on account of the publication of any subsequent volume, supplement, appendix or plates. All the manuscripts, autographs, all magazines and reviews, all books in lots, and all tracts in lots or volumes, will be sold with all faults, imperfections, and errors of description. The sale of any illustrated book, lot of prints or drawings is not to be set aside on account of any error in the enumeration of the numbers stated, or error of description.

VIII. No IMPERFECT BOOK will be taken back, unless a note accompanying each book, stating its imperfections, with the number of lot and date of the sale at which the same was purchased.

IX. To prevent inaccuracy in the delivery, and inconvenience in the settlement of the purchases, no lot can on any account be removed during the time of sale.

X. Upon failure of complying with the above Conditions, the money required and deposited in part of payment shall be forfeited; and if any loss is sustained in the reselling of such lots as are not cleared or paid for, all charges on such re-sale shall be made good by the defaulters at this sale.

Gentlemen who cannot attend the Sale may have their Commissions faithfully executed by their humble servants,

EXPLANATORY

FTER a life-long Collector has passed his three score years and fairly entered upon the downhill of Life, it becomes him to pause, and, like the House of Commons, as the close of the Session approaches, scrutinize his docket and throw out such projects, favourite and otherwise, as are, for various causes, not likely to be brought to maturity; a policy necessary for the success of the rest. In this view the undersigned submits to unreserved competition the first portion of his miscellaneous historical collections as described by himself in the following pages. He has ventured on a somewhat new departure in describing the less known lots with brief collations, names of printers, and in not a few instances, with bibliographical and historical notes, while the better known and more important books are left to stand on their recognized merits to protect themselves. He trusts that this will be so understood, though he confesses that the extended notes are in many cases disproportioned to the value of the lots to which they are attached. They are intended to give a bibliographical flavour to the whole, and if possible to lift the Catalogue out of the common run, hoping that it may be deemed hereafter of some bibliographical use to Librarians, and to Collectors of this class of Books and Manuscripts. The Collections are very miscellaneous, and no attempt has been made to classify them beyond the democratic alphabet, but if the persevering Collector reads to the end he will have noticed nearly all of the great collections of early Voyages and Travels, together with very many of the separate voyages of the earliest English, Dutch, French and Spanish Navigators; books relating to the East and West India

Companies, Dutch and English; the English and French Colonies in North America; Canada, New England, New Netherlands, Pennsylvania and Virginia; Brazil, Mexico, Peru, and other parts of Spanish America; China, Japan, India, Australia, the Philippines, the Moluccas, and the Isles of the Seas; Greenland, Iceland and the Northern Regions generally. Besides these there will be found many uncommon books relating to the early history of America; the American Revolution; and the war of 1812, all pertaining alike to American and English History; also examples of early printing in America, especially New England, and a great variety of miscellaneous American Literature, political, historical, geographical, genealogical, local and general.

Besides the Americana, mention should be made of the great collections of Early English Black Letter Robin Hood and other Ballads, rivalling in importance and quality, not in number, the famous Roxburgh Collection; the first edition of Chaucer's collected works, 1532, and various others.

Among the Manuscripts particular attention is called to the unrivalled Collection of original autograph Poems of Robert Burns; the collection of transcripts for the Life and Exploits of Sir Francis Drake; the original records of the Trustees in London for the Colony of Georgia; Collections for the History of the Revolution in New England in Governor Andross's time 1688-1690; Papers relating to the progress of the Gospel in New England 1641-1654; the important original Records of the Colony of Virginia, 1752-1758, including no less than 18 original Autograph Letters of the youthful GEORGE WASHINGTON; Spanish Tracts (69), manuscript and printed (Papeles Varios) mostly relating to America, 1638-1671, believed to have been brought together by Solorzano y Pereyra, author of Politica Indiana and Councillor of the Indies; and lastly Henry Stevens's entire FRANKLIN COLLECTION.

Without further general specification the reader's attention is respectfully invited to the following summary:

17 America. L'Amerique Angloise, ou Description des Isles et Terres du Roi d'Angleterre dans l'Amerique, calf extra by Pratt, no maps 16*mo.* Amsterdam, A. Wolfgang, 1688

18 America: or An exact Description of the West-Indies, more especially of those Provinces which are under the Dominion of the King of Spain, title, dedication, &c. (xiv) text 484 pp. with errata, &c. old calf, no map 16*mo.* London, R. Hodgkinsonne, 1655

19 American Chronicles of the Times [four chapters in 4 leaves each, except the last which has only 3], soiled 8*vo.* Printed [in numbers] by John Boyle, at Boston, 1775

These excessively rare chronicles are in the Scripture style. Chapter iv. verse 22 begins: "Tell Occunneocogeecocacheecadungo, my brother, fill his quiver and stand up and tarry till I come, and take ye this in thine hand and proclaim it through the city, and throughout all the land of New England," &c.

20 American Stamp Act. A List of the Minority in the House of Commons, who Voted against the Bill, to Repeal the A. S. A. 8 pp. half roan 8*vo.* Paris, 1766

21 AMERICAN WAR. THE HISTORY OF THE WAR IN AMERICA, between Great Britain and her Colonies, from its commencement to the end of the year 1778, 3 vol. old calf, vol. I and II, 1779, vol. III, 1785 8*vo.* Dublin

Originally 2 vol. to 1778, but vol. III carries the history to the conclusion of the war in 1783. This third vol. is of especial rarity. Vol. I brings the narrative down to the early part of 1778, while vol. II is wholly taken up with vouchers and authentic papers. Hence this vol. III seldom found continuing the history to the Peace of 1783, is of prime importance.

22 AMERICAN WAR. An impartial History of the War in America between Great Britain and the United States, 2 vol. in 1, half bound, clean copy, vol. I wants pp. 66-135, vol. II wants pp. 129 to end
8*vo.* Boston, Nathaniel Coverly & Robert Hodge, 1781-82

One of the rarest of American books and seldom found complete. It was published in numbers with copper-plates engraved in Boston by Norman. This copy is in good order and has the portraits of La Fayette and Samuel Adams, as well as the exceedingly rare views of the Town of Boston with the battle of Bunkers Hill, and the Town of Falmouth burnt Oct. 18, 1775.

23 AMERICAN WAR. The History of the Rise and Progress of the War in North-America, from the time of General Gage's Arrival at Boston in May, 1774, vol. I uncut, wants all after page 340 ; vol. II cut, 84 pp. and Appendix 4 pp.
8*vo.* London, printed ; Boston, reprinted by Thomas & John Fleet, 1780

The second vol. brings the narrative down to 1779. This first vol. to page 340 is in matchless condition, being clean and perfectly UNCUT. A perfect set is hardly known.

24 Ames (Fisher) Remarks on the Hon. John Q. Adams's Review of Mr. Ames's Works, with some strictures on the views of the author, 50 pp. uncut Boston, B. Wait & Co. 1809

25 Analysis of the late correspondence between our Administration and Great Britain and France, with an attempt to show what are the real causes of the failure of the negociation [by John Lowell] uncut, 52 pp. Boston, Russell & Cutler, n. d. [1808]

26 Analysis. Supplement to the late Analysis of the public correspondence between our Cabinet and those of France and G. Britain [by John Lowell] uncut, 28 pp. 8*vo.* [1808]

27 ANOTHER CRY for the Innocent and Oppressed for Justice, or a third Relation of the unjust Proceedings at the Sessions held at Hixes Hall, in the Old Baily, London, 18th and 22nd Feb. 1664, with and against 45 Quakers, of which 39 were sentenced for breach of the late act, 34 to be transported to GAMAICA for seven years, &c. 16 pp. scarce
4*to.* [London] printed in the year 1665

28 Appleton (Nathaniel, Pastor of the First Church in Cambridge) The Great Blessing of Good Ruling, &c. Massachusetts Election Sermon, May 26, 1742, clean copy, half title, title and 60 pp.
8*vo.* Boston, J. Draper, 1742

29 Appleton (Nathaniel, Pastor of the First Church in Cambridge) Faithful Ministers of Christ, the Salt of the Earth and the Light of the World, a Sermon before the Massachusetts Bay annual Convention of Ministers at Boston, May 26, 1743, uncut, 56 pp.
8*vo.* Boston, printed by Rogers & Fowle for Samuel Eliot, 1743

30 ARTICLES (The) of Confederation, the Declaration of Rights, the Constitution of this Commonwealth, and the Articles of the Definitive Treaty between Great Britain and the United States of America, published by Order of the General Assembly [of Virginia] 25 pp. fine copy, uncut, scarce
Richmond, Dixon & Holt [1784]

31 ARTICULEN van Vrede ende Verbondt, tusschen den Doorluch. tighsten Koningh van Groot Britannien & de H. M. H. Staten Gen. [the original edition of the Treaty of BREDA, concluded July 31, 1667] 12 leaves, fine copy, calf extra by Bedford
4to. In's Gravenhage, Hillebrant van Wouw, 1667

Trömel, No. 340, after Asher, places this book under NEW NEDERLAND, because by this Treaty New York was by the Dutch transferred to the English—bad cataloguing but good history. The book is essential to the American historian who desires to get to the bottom of historical facts.

32 Artillery Company. A Sermon preached to the Ancient and Hon. Artillery Company in Boston, N.E. June 7, 1756, the Anniversary of their Election of Officers, 22 pp. fine and clean
8vo. Boston, Edes & Gill, 1756

33 Artillery Company. A Sermon before the Ancient and Hon. Artillery Company in Boston, New England, June 1, 1767, the Anniversary Election of Officers. By Daniel Shute, A.M. Pastor, 3rd Church in Hingham, uncut, 43 pp.
8vo. Boston, Edes & Gill, 1767

34 Ashley (Jonathan) A Letter from the Rev. J. Ashley to the Rev. William Cooper, in answer to his Objections to Mr. Ashley's Sermon as published in the Boston Gazette, January 11th, 1743, fine copy, rough edges, 7 pp. 4to. [Boston] S. Eliot, 1743

35 AUTHENTIC and Impartial Narrative of the Tragical Scene in Southampton Co. Va. 22nd of August (1831), 55 Inhabitants Massacred by the Blacks! large woodcut frontispiece, uncut, scarce, 38 pp. 8vo. [New York] Warner & West, 1831

36 Backus (Rev. Isaac) A seasonable Plea for Liberty of Conscience against some late oppressive proceedings, particularly in the Town of Berwick, in the County of York [Rhode Island] signed at end I. B. 48 pp. scarce 8vo. Boston, Philip Ffeeman, 1770

37 BALLADS AND BROADSIDES. AN EXCEEDINGLY RARE AND CURIOUS COLLECTION OF 155 OLD ENGLISH BALLADS AND BROADSIDES, ALL OF THEM WITH WOODCUTS, some of which are of the rudest description, by various printers, mostly in London, not generally dated, but manifestly ranging in printing between 1680 and 1750, some sheets having 1, some 2 and others 3 or more songs or ballads, arranged alphabetically according to the first piece, and bound in 2 vol. folio

38 BALLADS, BROADSIDES AND SMALL POETICAL PUBLICATIONS, about 250 in number, of various sizes and ages, all printed at Salisbury from 50 to 80 years ago, an extraordinary collection in good condition, arranged in 1 vol. folio

39 BALLADS. An extraordinary Collection of Old English Ballads, Songs and Poetical Pieces, very miscellaneous and some exceedingly scarce, not dated generally, but ranging from 1641 to about 1800, none less than 80 or 100 years old, mostly printed in London, but some at Davenporte and others at Northampton, none of these being duplicates of the other lots

40 BALLADS (AMERICAN) A COLLECTION OF ABOUT 700 BALLADS, &c. PRINTED IN AMERICA, to which are added New Year's Addresses of the [News] Carriers, Lamp-Lighters, Watchmen, &c.—The Confession of John Battus, Executed for Rape and

Murder—"Awful Calamity," Lines on the Death of five persons burnt to death at Boston—Reform! dedicated to the "Massachusetts whole Hogs"—Exhibition Broadsides of Circusses, Menageries, "The Mermaid," Museums, Panoramas, and other curious Papers, the whole alphabetically arranged and bound in 4 thick 4to vol.

This Collection includes some very curious Ballads, printed by COVERLEY, of Boston, during the American war of 1812, amongst which may be mentioned "Deliver us O Lord," "American Tar," "Death of General Wolfe," "The Boston Beau and the Cow," "Constitution and the Guerriere," the original and extremely rare edition, from which is given the following extract:—

"I often have been told
That British seamen bold,
Could beat the tars of France, neat and handy O,
But they never found their match,
Till the Yankees did them catch
For the Yankee tars for fighting are the dandy O.
When prisoners we've made them,
With Suitchel we will treat them,
We'll welcome them with Yankee doodle dandy O," &c.

Except the collection of American Ballads in the British Museum, we know of no series at all comparable with this. Several of the rarer Ballads in this collection are not in the Museum. The Bodleian Library, so rich in English, has, it is understood, no collection of American Ballads. Even in the United States we cannot learn that any library contains anything like the number of this collection. There are no ballads in this collection less than a quarter of a century old, but many are fifty, sixty, eighty or more years old.

41 BALLADS. A MOST EXTRAORDINARY, CURIOUS AND INTERESTING COLLECTION OF NEARLY ONE HUNDRED OLD ENGLISH BALLADS, Romantic, Legendary, Historical, Amatory, Humourous, and Convivial, including several of the rare ROBIN HOOD BALLADS, many printed in black letter, generally in the finest condition, with broad margins, rough edges, and illustrated with curious woodcuts, mounted and bound in 1 vol. half green morocco atlas folio

This volume has been sold for £80. W. O. stands for William Onley, and A. M. for Anthony Milbourne.

43 BARLOW (JOEL) Oration July 4, 1809, before the President of the United States and the Democratic Citizens, &c. in the city of Washington, 16*pp. half bound* 8*vo. Newburyport, W. & J. Gilman*, 1809

44 BARNARD (JOHN, Pastor to the First Church in Marblehead) Nature and manner of man's Blessing God, with our obligations; a Sermon at Salem upon a Publick Thanksgiving the Thursday after the Death of the Rev. George Curwin, title, dedication and 42 pp. scarce, 8*vo. Boston, by T. Crump for Samuel Gerrish*, 1717

45 BEHN (MRS. APHRA) The Widdow Ranter, or the HISTORY OF BACON IN VIRGINIA, a Tragi-comedy acted by their Majesties Servants, viii and 56 pp. vellum, fine large copy 4*to. London, J. Knapton*, 1690

One of the very few English plays, with the scene laid in America. Bacon's Rebellion in the Colony of Virginia was an important affair, and forms a good subject for a play, but had Mrs. Affra been a little more historical her play might perhaps have been more appreciated. Good historical events are better adapted for the stage than feeble imagination.

46 BELLAMY (JOSEPH, of Bethlem, in New England) An Essay on the Nature and Glory of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, as also on the Nature and Consequences of Spiritual Blindness, and the Nature and Effects of Divine Illumination, calf gilt by Pratt Boston, N.E. S. Kneeland, 1762

58 BIBLE. The Soldier's Pocket Bible, an exact reprint of the original edition of 1643, with a prefatory note by George Livermore, half morocco, printed for private distribution
16*mo. Cambridge, U.S.* 1861

The original tract from which this reprint of 100 copies was made by Mr. Livermore was picked up by Mr. Henry Stevens in Paternoster Row in 1845, and sold by him to Mr. Edward A. Crowninshield of Boston for 3s. 6d., by whom it was some time after presented to Mr. Livermore, the New England collector of Bibles. Mr. Stevens subsequently reported to Mr. Livermore that a second copy was in the library of the British Museum. Copies of this first reprint are very rare and much sought after. During the Rebellion it is said that more than 100,000 copies were distributed to the soldiers.

59 BIBLE. The New Testament of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, newly translated out of the Latin Vulgat, and with the original Greek, and divers Translations in vulgar languages diligently compared and revised, by C. Privately printed and only 50 copies (20 for presents by the author and 30 for sale).

61 BLAKE (WILLIAM P.) Catalogue of Books for sale or circulation, by William P. Blake, at the Boston Book Stores, uncut, 48 pp.
8*vo. Boston, William P. Blake*, 1793

A large proportion of this curious alphabetical catalogue consists of the novels of the day. The few historical works come in sometimes amusingly, as Winthrop's Journal next to Wolstonecraft's Rights of Woman. Novel reading in Boston still maintains its proportions as it appears by the late reports of the public library.

62 BLOMIUS (JOANNES) Dissertationes Duae:

Accedit vera Hierosolymæ Veteris descriptio juncta mentem Villalpandi, red fancy calf extra, by Pratt, fine copy
16*mo. Hamburg*, 1660

Nearly all the authors, ancient and modern, who have written on the lands of Ophyr and Tarshish are here quoted, but the question still remains to be settled whether Ophyr was in Cuba, or California, Australia, Pegu or Peru, or Mozambique or the Isles of the Seas.

Creech the year before had agreed to purchase for £100 Burns' remaining rights in his Poems already published. This letter (in good order and stitched in a red morocco cover) is as follows:—

Sir,—When a business, which could at any time be done in a few hours, has kept me four months without even a shadow of anything else to do but wait on it, 'tis no very favourable symptom that it will be soon done, when I am a hundred miles absent. At any rate, I have no mind to make the experiment, but am determined to have it done before I leave Edinr. But why should I go into the Country? till I clear with you. I don't know what to do, or what I have in my power to do. You have declared yourself to the Publick at large, my friend, my Patron; at all times I gratefully own it: I beg you will continue to be so; and rather make a little exertion amid your hurried time, than trifle with a poor man in his very existence: I shall expect to hear from you tomorrow, or next day; and have the honor to be, Sir, Your very humble servt.

[Endorsed] "copy to Mr. Creech, Jan. 24th, 1788."

90 BURNS (ROBERT, Poet) TWO MANUSCRIPT SONGS, written on a single quarto sheet and neatly bound in limp red morocco, entirely in the well-known autograph of the Poet.

For the sake of collation and identification these Songs are here given entire.

BROOM BESOMS.

I maun hae a wife, whatsoe'er she be;
An she be a woman, that's eneugh for me.

Chorus.

Buy broom besoms! wha will buy them now;
Fine heather ringers, better never grew.

If that she bony, I shall think her right
If that she be ugly, where's the odds at night? Buy broom, &c.

O, an she be young, how happy shall I be!
If that she be auld, the sooner she will die. Buy broom, &c.

If that she be fruitfu', O! what joy is there!
If she should be barren, less will be my care. Buy broom, &c.

If she like a drappie, she & I'll agree;
If she dinna like it, there's the mair for me. Buy broom, &c.

Be she green, or gray; be she black or fair;
Let her be a woman, I shall seek nae mair. Buy broom, &c.

Turn over.

1. Same tune.

Young and souple was I, when I lap the dyke;
Now I'm auld and frail, I downa step a syke.

Chorus.

Buy broom besoms! wha will buy them now;
Fine heather ringers, better never grew.

Young & souple was I, when at Lauthers lack;
Now I'm auld & frail, & lie at Nansie's back. Buy broom, &c.

3.

Had she gien me butter, when she gae me bread,
I wad looked baulder, wi' my beld head. Buy broom, &c.

91 BURNS (ROBERT, Poet) TWO AUTOGRAPH POEMS or Fragments in the well-known hand of the Poet, on a quarto sheet, being a leaf of a letter to his friend Mrs. Dunlop, written in Dec. 1788, with Auld Lang Syne, &c. clean and in good order, bound in red morocco. The first is the last 12 lines of "THE SILVER TASSIE," all that Burns himself owned to be his, wanting the borrowed first 4 lines given here in italics. The other wants the end 29 lines. Both fragments are given entire for collation.

In 1859 another leaf from this same letter to Mrs. Dunlop containing "Auld Lang Syne," was sent by the writer to Chancellor Pruyn of Albany, New York, and reached him about 9 o'clock in the evening, at a great Burns' Festival in honor of the Poet's birth. The entire company at once rose, joined hands, and sang the well-known song, the chairman reading out the lines two by two, Scotch Precentor fashion, from the autograph of the Poet. It is possible these two leaves after long separation may meet again in the New World.

Go, fetch me a pint o' wine,
And fill it in a silver tassie;
That I may drink before I go,
A service to my bonie lassie.
The boat rocks at the Pier o' Leith;
Fu' loud the wind blaws frae the Ferry,
The ship rides by the Berwick law,
And I maun lea'e by bony Mary.

The trumpets sound, the banners fly,
The glittering spears are ranked ready;
The shouts o' war are heard afar,
The battle closes thick & bloody;
But it's not the roar o' sea or shore,
Wad make me langer wish to tarry;
Nor shouts o' war that's heard afar,
It's leaving thee, my bony Mary.

I have made an alteration of the verses written in Glenriddel Hermitage: tell me which of them you like best.

Thou whom Chance may hither lead,
Be thou clad in russet weed.
Be thou deckt in silken stole,
Grave these counsels on thy soul.
Life is but a day at most,
Sprung from night, in darkness lost;
Hope not sunshine every hour,
Fear not clouds will always lour.
When Youth & Love with sprightly dance,
Beneath thy morning-star advance,
Pleasure with her siren-air
May delude the thoughtless Pair:
Let Prudence bless Enjoyment's cup,
Then raptur'd sip & sip it up.
As the Day grows warm & hegh,
Life's meridian flaming nigh,
Dost thou spurn the humble vale?
Life's proud summits would'st thou scale?
Check thy climbing step elate,
Evils lurk in felon wait;
Dangers, eagle-pinion'd, bold,
Soar around each cliffy hold;
While chearful Peace with linnet-song,
Chants the lowly dells among.
When thy shades of Evening close,
Beckoning thee to long repose;

There should be 29 lines more.

92 BURNS (ROBERT, Poet) A FREE SCOTCH BALLAD of five stanzas of six lines each, on a single leaf of foolscap paper, bound in a limp morocco cover, in the well-known large handwriting of Burns; too free to print here, the freedom consisting in a dropped rhyme left to the imagination of the reader. The ballad begins:—

A BALLAD.

While prose-work and rhymes
Are hunted for crimes,
And things are—the devil knows how;
Aware o' my rhymes.
In these kittle times,
The subject I chuse is, &c. &c. &c.
[Multa desunt].

93 BURNS (ROBERT, Poet) THE BRIGS OF AYR. A TRUE STORY, INSCRIBED TO JOHN BALLANTINE, ESQ. AYR.

The entire Poem, as first printed in the Edinburgh edition of 1787, in the well-known handwriting of the poet, comprising about 240 lines, one of the longest and best of BURNS' POEMS, filling 7 full foolscap folio pages, perfect and in good condition, being interleaved and bound by William Pratt, in red morocco extra, thin boards, and in a morocco pull-off case, very handsome, folio

As a Memorial of Scotland's great Poet, nothing can exceed the interest of this beautiful volume. There cannot be the shadow of a doubt about its genuineness and authenticity. To all who know the Poet's peculiar handwriting the Manuscript speaks for itself. Altogether the Poem, the Poet, the Autograph Manuscript and the beautiful binding leave nothing to be desired. In coming years (and not far distant) we predict that, of all the many known relics of Burns, this volume will take a very high rank. "Scots wha ha' we' Wallace bled," "Auld Lang Syne," and the long Letter to Mrs. Dunlop of Dec. 15-25, 1793, recently sold by auction for £95, have all gone, with many other memorials of Burns, to America.

94 BURNS (ROBERT, Poet) THE ORDINATION.

A SCOTCH POEM BY RAB RHYMER.

This entire Poem of THE ORDINATION, written by Burns at Kilmarnock in his native Ayr, probably before he was twenty-five, comprises 14 nine-line stanzas, and is generally considered one of the Poet's most successful efforts

The "ORDINATION" first appeared in the Edinburgh edition of 1787, and has ever since maintained its interest. This manuscript is unquestionably autographic and genuine, but it is more closely written than usual, and is in a somewhat smaller character. Its authenticity cannot be doubted. It differs, however, in many places from the earlier and later printed versions, and the various readings are numerous. Besides, the handwriting appears more youthful and less formed. Let the critic notice the heading and the name of "RAB RHYMER." Let him also notice that the motto in two lines at the beginning is not quoted as in the printed editions, but instead has as its author "Ruisseaux," which is French for rivulets or burns, an ingenious way of signing his own name. Also in the seventh line let him see the name "Crookes's" afterwards altered to Begbie's, but above all let him scan the fourteenth line. "This day Mckin[lay] taks the flail." This line has generally been considered as giving the date to the poem, for that gentleman was ordained the 6th of April, 1786. Now the young man Mckinlay "took the flail" when he succeeded Multrie and became the colleague of Old Robertson one of the "twa drones." The ordination therefore may have taken place after many months trial or use of the preacher's flail. Burns intimates, 17th Feb. 1786, that he had written this Poem on the Laigh Kirk of Kilmarnock. It might therefore have appeared in the Kilmarnock edition of that year. But it did not. It is not unlikely therefore that the present title is an afterthought, for the Edinburgh edition, to give it a less local and personal character. A better title would be the LAIGH KIRK. From all these circumstances one is forced to the conclusion that this is really an earlier Poem than has been hitherto supposed. In order that there may be no mistake in the readings, an exact transcript is given of the whole Poem. It is written on the four pages of a foolscap sheet of paper, and is neatly bound in limp red morocco extra by Pratt.

For SENSE they little owe to frugal HEAVEN
To please the MOB they hide the little given.
Ruisseaux [Fr. for Burns].

Kil . . . . . ck wabsters fidge an' claw,
An' pour your creeshie nations;
An' ye wha leather rax an' draw,
Of a' denominations;
Swith to the Laigh-kirk ane an' a'
An' there tak up your stations,
Then aff to Crookes's in a raw
An' pour divine libations
For joy this day.

Curst Common-sense, that imp o' h-ll,
Cam in wi' Maggy Lauder,*
But Ol . . . . nt oft made her yell,
An' Russ . . ll sair miscau'd her;
This day McKin . . . taks the flail
An' he's the boy 'll blaud her,
He'll clap a shangan on her tail
An' set the bairns to daud her
Wi' dirt this day.

Mak haste an' turn king David o'er
An' lilt wi' holy clangor,
O' double verse come gie us four
An' skirl up the BANGOR;
This day the church kicks up a stoor,
Nae mair the knaves shall wrang her,
For heresy is in her power
An' glorously she'll whang her
Wi' pith this day.

Come wale a text, a proper verse,
An' touch it off wi' vigor,
How HAM† leugh at his father's a—
Which made Canaan a niger;
How PHINEAS‡ did four buttocks pierce
Wi' whore-abhorring rigor;
Or Zipporah§ wi' scauldin haerse
Was like a bloody tiger
I' th' inn that day.

There try his mettle on the creed
Formula an' confession
An' lay your hauns upon his head
An' seal his high commission
The holy flock to tent an' feed
An' punish each transgression,
Especial rams that cross the breed,
Gie them sufficient threshin,
Spare them nae day.

Now auld Kil . . . . . ck cock thy tail
An' toss thy horns fu' cantie,
Nae mair thou'll rowt out owre the dale
Because thy pasture's scanty,
For lap-fows large o' gospel-kale
Shall fill thy crib in plenty,
An' runts o' grace the pick an' wale,
No gien by way o' dainty
But every day.

Nae mair by Babel-streams we'll weep
To think upon our Zion
An' hing our fiddles up to sleep
Like babie-clouts a-dryin;
Come screw the pegs wi' tunefu' cheep
An' o'er the thairms be tryin;
O rare, to see our elbricks wheep
An' a like lamb-tails flyin
Fu' fast this day.

Lang PATRONAGE, wi' rod o' iron,
Has shor't the Kirk's undoin,
As lately Finw . . ck, sair forfairn,
Has proven to it's ruin;
Our Patron, honest man Glen . . n,
He saw mishief was brewin,
An' like a godly, elect bairn
He wal't us out a true ane
An' sound this day.

Now Robin . . n harangue nae mair
But steek your gab for ever,
Or try the wicked town of A-r,
For there they'll think you clever
Or, nae reflexion on your lear,
Ye may commence a Shaver,
Or to the Netherl . . n repair
An' turn a Carpet-weaver
Aff haun this day.

* I suppose the Author [Rab Rhymer] here means Mrs Lindsay, wife to the late Revd. and worthy Mr Lindsay, as that was her maiden name I am told.

N.B.—He got the laigh kirk of Kil . . . . . .

Mutr . . an' you were just a match
We never had sic twa drones,
Auld HORNIE did the laigh kirk watch
Just like a winkan baudrons,
An' ay he catch't the tither wratch
To fry them in his caudrons,
But now his honor maun detach
Wi' a' his brimstone squadrons
In haste this day.

See, see auld Orthodoxy's faes
She's swingin thro the city.
Hark how the nine-tail't cat she plays,
I vow it's unco pretty.
There Learning wi' his Greekish face
Grunts out some latin ditty,
An' Common-Sense is gaun she says,
To mak to JAMIE BEATIE
Her plaint this day.

But there's Morality himsel
Embracing a' opinions,
Hear, how he gies the tither yell
Between his twa companions!
See, how she peels the skin an' fell,
As ane were peelan onions!
Now there they're packed off to h-ll
An' banish't our dominions
Henceforth this day.

O happy day!!! rejoice, rejoice!!!!!
Come bowze about the porter;
Get up—whaever's fit to rise,
An' thro the room let's thorter;
Mckin . . . , Russ . . . , are the boys
That Heresy can torture,
They'll gie her on a raep a hoise
An' cowe her measure shorter
By the head some day.

Come bring the tither mutchkin in
An' here's for a conclusion.
To every New-light Mother's Son
From this time forth confusion;
If mair they deave us wi' their din,
Or Patronage intrusion,
We'll light a Spunk, an' every skin
We'll rin them aff in fusion
Like oil some day.

FINIS.

109 CHUANCY (CHARLES, Pastor of the First Church in Boston) All Nations of the Earth blessed in Christ, the seed of Abraham; a Sermon at the ordination of Rev. Mr. Joseph Bowman to the work of the Gospel Ministry, more especially among the MOHAWK INDIANS on the Western Borders of New England, Aug. 31, 1762, half title, title, letter to the Marquis of Lothian, viii pp. and 50 pp. Sermon 8*vo. Boston, J. Draper,* 1762

A large portion of this tract relates to the Indians at Natick and Punkapog, two ancient Indian Settlements within 15 miles of Boston. The learned Doctor exhibits some startling facts and views respecting the rapid diminution of the Indians in numbers, and the prevailing mode of christianizing them.

111 CHECKLEY (JOHN) A short and easy Method with the Deists [by Leslie] with A Discourse concerning Episcopacy [by John Checkley] 132 pages, 8*vo. London J. Applebee,* 1723, followed by The Speech of Mr. John Checkley upon his Tryal, at Boston, in N.E. for publishing "The Short and Easy Method with the Deists," to which was added a discourse concerning Episcopacy, &c.; to which is added the Jury's Verdict, &c. Second Edition, London J. Applebee, 1738, 40 pages, followed by a single leaf entitled A Specimen of a true Dissenting Catechism upon right true blue Dissenting Principles—Question, Why don't the Dissenters in their Public worship make use of the Creeds? Answer, Why! Because they are not set down word for word in the Bible. Question, Well, but why don't the Dissenters in their Publick worship make use of the Lord's Prayer? Answer, Oh! Because that is set down word for word in the Bible. Fine copies, all in 1 volume in calf extra by Pratt, 8*vo.*

Checkley undertook to show the "Sacred Order of Men" in Boston that not being episcopally ordained they were no ministers, and he commented rather harshly on the Church courses of New England and the associated pastors of Boston. This gave great offence, and Checkley was prosecuted in 1724 for publishing "a false and scandalous libel." He was convicted and appealed. His speech is his defence. The sentence, &c. is given in Stevens's Nuggets, No. 535.

118 CHURCH MUSIC. A TRACTATE ON CHURCH MUSIC, being an extract from the Reverend and learned Mr. Peirce's Vindication of the Dissenters, dedicated to Dr. Chauncy and members of First Congregational Dissenting Church in Boston [by Mr. Thomas Brand Hollis], 31 pp. good copy, scarce 8*vo.* London, 1786

The story of this rare tract is worth repeating, as part of the history of the Old First Church in New England, which when abandoned as a church may be used as a museum of rare Boston notions and curiosities, of which this should be one. This Society in the days of the venerable Dr. Chauncy was rich and of the patrician or Beacon Street Order. Some of its members were prominent in good works, but as the hat was passed round so often they had acquired the safe habit of being the first to put their hands in their pockets in cases of charity and public subscriptions, and the last to take them out. They countenanced good works and always rejoiced to see others do them. In 1786 they felt the want of an Organ, and as their Pastor was a man of extraction, having received large sums of money from Mr. Thomas Brande Hollis for Harvard College, they prevailed upon him to write to this gentleman in London and endeavour to extract from him £500 for the said organ. Instead of granting this extraordinary request Mr. Hollis caused 500 copies of this TRACTATE to be printed and sent over to the Pastor, Deacons and Members of the "Old First," endeavouring thereby to inculcate in them that modesty and simplicity in their public worship, which was formerly Bostonian, but which they were now apparently outgrowing. Never before or since probably was there ever so much polite gammon or pious sarcasm concealed in so small a book. What became of the 500 copies is not known. The tract is now scarce, only two or three copies being known.

119 Church of England in America. The Real Advantages which Ministers and People may enjoy especially in the Colonies, by conforming to the Church of England, faithfully considered, and impartially represented in a letter to a young Gentleman, uncut, 47 pp. very scarce 8*vo.* Printed in the year 1762

Considering the date of this production, written with more zeal than judgment, it is no wonder that the place of printing is concealed. The author went to Virginia during the Old French War, and gleaned his information respecting the dissenters of the northern colonies by correspondence with the Church of England missionaries there. His abuse and information are really amusing, his news being so distorted and up-side down as to be worth reading even now as curiosities.

This is an excellent facsimile by the elder John Harris executed about 1850 for Mr. Henry Stevens, of the celebrated first Letter of Columbus, translated somewhat freely into German and printed at Strasbourg in 1497. The original German copies are of the highest rarity. Of this facsimile edition Mr. Stevens, who had the tracings only of Mr. Harris, had only a half-dozen copies taken off, and the work erased from the stones. These two are the only copies left.

143 CONNECTICUT. An Address of His Excellency Governor [Jonathan] Trumbull, to the General Assembly and the Freemen of the State of Connecticut, Declining any further Election to public office, with the Resolution of the Legislature, in Consequence thereof, fine, clean and uncut, 10 pp.

4*to.* New-London, Timothy Green, 1783

At the age of 73, after 51 years of public service, "Brother Jonathan," as Washington delighted to call him, issued this "Parting Address" full of sound sense and good advice to his State both in reference to domestic affairs and its relations to the Congress and the old Confederacy. The Almighty left Washington childless that a Nation might call him "Father," while at the same time the same Nation assumed the familiar nickname of "Brother Jonathan." Trumbull's "Parting" and Washington's "Farewell" Addresses must ever remain two revered and sacred books in the United States.

144 CONNECTICUT. The Address of the Episcopal Clergy of Connecticut, to the Rt. Rev. Harvard College accused of Drollery! It appears that the comic buffoonery of some of the boys on Commencement-day actually made some of the Ministers laugh outright in the House of God, as if they laughed away their religion. "Could anything be more indecent than to entertain them so long a time, with sly jokes and merry conceits?" "Laughter proceeds from pride. When men are very merry, they are always very proud."

This rare and important History of a Province in Mexico, mostly compiled from original documents, was first published at Madrid in 1596. Its author, a Mexican of good family, became a Dominican in 1579 and died in 1604. This 2d edition printed in Brussels was probably intended for Spain, and was issued with a new title by Varesio in Valladolid in 1634 as "Varia Historia de la Nueva España y Florida, segunda impression."

179 DE BRY (THEODORE, the Father and his WIDOW, with their two Sons, JOHN THEODORE and JOHN ISRAEL, and their two Sons-in-law, MATTHEW MERIAN and WILLIAM FITZER)

COLLECTION OF VOYAGES AND TRAVELS, compiled, selected, translated, reprinted, abridged, enlarged, edited and splendidly illustrated with copper-plate engravings. The First Series, AMERICA in LATIN, all FIRST EDITIONS, complete in 13 parts, a very fine tall and perfect set, every leaf, map and plate genuine and correct, according to the best authorities, temporary binding in half red morocco folio. Francofort, 1590-1634

The purchaser of this remarkably fine and sound set of DE BRY'S LATIN AMERICA will have laid a solid foundation for a long life of brilliant bibliographical quiddling about the never ending variations, a solace for old age that was unknown to either Cicero or Cato. No man ever yet made up his DE BRY perfect, if one may count on the three great De Bry witnesses, the Rt. Hon. Thomas GRENVILLE, the Russian Prince SOBOLEWSKI, and the American Mr. LENOX, who all went far beyond DE BURE yet fell far short of attaining all the variations they had heard of. When an earnest collector has secured THEVENOT, DE BRY and HULSIUS, he possesses a never dying pleasure that will not desert him, live long as he may. The size and condition of this series of De Bry's Latin America leave nothing to be desired as first editions only, as may be seen by comparing the 13 parts with the same 13 parts, first editions of the world renowned Grenville

Francoforti, Studio and Sumptibus hæredum Iohan. Theod. De Bry Typis Caspari Rötelij, Anno 1625

Of all the Parts of a perfect De Bry, Latin and German, this Latin APPENDIX TO CONGO is by far the rarest and most difficult to meet with. It first appeared in 1625 and was never reprinted. We do not recollect that a copy has ever before occurred for sale by auction separately. As many excellent sets are known to want this piece only, we venture to let it stand alone on its own merits.

What the first folio is to an English Collector, a Vander Donck is to the American. When a New York Collector has once screwed his courage to the price of a good Vander Donck, the first edition with the View or the 2d edition with the Map, he seldom flinches at the price of any other rare Book on America that may turn up. Copies for the last 40 years have usually sold from £12 to £21.

202 DRAKE (Sir FRANCIS) A COLLECTION OF IMPORTANT HISTORICAL MANUSCRIPTS relating to Sir FRANCIS DRAKE, 1580-1603; his several voyages to the West Indies and round the World, trascribed about 20 years ago from the original papers and correspondence preserved in the British Museum, Lincoln's Inn, the Bodleian Library and the Ashmolean, Oxford, the Public Record office, &c. comprising above 380 pages in folio, quarto and octavo, amounting to about 700 folios of 72 words.

This important lot was brought together with a view of publishing a volume of materials for the life and exploits by sea and land of Drake. Some have been printed since, but the collection is still valuable. The contents comprise the Will of Sir Francis, the Narrative of John Drake, in Spanish, with a translation, Extracts from Correspondence, Extraordinary Payments, Letters relating to Sir John Norris, Capt. Fenner, Sir Christopher Hatton, &c. &c.

The Massachusetts Annual Election Sermon, a kind of historico-political address to the law-making and legislative powers, is an Institution in New England that has been running above 200 years, hardly without a break. All have been printed except two or three, but it is believed notwithstanding every effort for the last century not a single perfect set is known. As annual summaries of events they are valuable.

This scarce tract exhibits a severe overhauling, dissection, and general sitting-to-rights of the enlarged edition of Morse's Geography. J. F. points out the author's want of uniformity and method; inconsistances, contradictions, defective maps, deficient judgment of materials and authorities; general bias and particular prejudices; thorough haste and profound carelessness; mistakes, confusion and omissions. Though not taken with a very good grace, it is not to be denied, that the influence of this tract on American topographical, history and geography, both general and local, was efficient, marked and salutary. Morse's subsequent editions show all this. But Morse contended that while he was "Orthodox," J. F. was Arrian, and the attack was a step in revolutionizing the constitution of Harvard College and turning a Congregational into a Unitarian Institution.

239 GEORGIA. TRANSACTIONS OF THE TRUSTEES FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE COLONY OF GEORGIA IN AMERICA, BEING THE ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT RECORDS, never yet printed, of their Meetings, weekly or oftener, held in London between the 14th of June, 1738, and the 24th of May, 1744, together with a full Index of the Proceedings of the previous year from June 1737 to June 1738, and a parcel of notices of meetings, notes and memoranda a year or two later to 1746 or '47, the whole giving detailed accounts of the doings of the several meetings of the Common Council, the Board of Trustees, the Committees of Correspondence, the Committees of Accounts, etc. comprising a great deal of private and secret correspondence, evidence, gossip, and minute details respecting Officers, agents, colonists, parsons, servants, adventurers, Indians, negroes, charity-sweepings, jail birds, blacklegs, deported paupers, landsharks, etceteras. Two volumes in folio, very closely written, mostly in the neat small round hand of Sir John Perceval the first EARL OF EGMONT, the President of the Board of Trustees, the soul of the Enterprise at home, as GENERAL OGLETHORP was the spirit of it in Georgia

It is impossible to give here any adequate idea of the historical value and literary importance of these two Volumes for the History, biography and bibliography of the Province of Georgia, the youngest of the thirteen British Colonies in America, all fronting on the Atlantic, with their back doors, according to their charters, fronting on the South Sea or Pacific. These two volumes are the Sibylline leaves of Georgian History. What has become of the five or six other volumes referred to frequently in these records, is not known, but what remains covers the half dozen most important and eventful years of trial Trust under the Old Charter. These volumes are marked 2 & 3, the third breaking off in the middle of the volume at May 24, 1744, the remainder being blank paper, because probably of the ill health of the Earl of Egmont. Vol. I probably contained the records of the first seven years, 1732 to June 1738. Internal reference shows that Egmont kept several volumes of letters in two series, one of letters to Georgia and the other of letters from Georgia to the Trustees. The more important of them, however, are noted in these volumes, from day to day, in their chronological order. The matter speaks for itself, being full, concise and to the point, exceedingly well written, clear, honest, and convincing. Indeed, it is ready for the press at once, and is all well worth printing. The matter has been cast off roughly, and is found to be sufficient to fill two ordinary demy octavo volumes in pica type, close set, of 500 pages each. That is, the manuscript, allowing for blanks, makes about 625 full folio pages, closely written, averaging 500 words on a full page, or in all about 312,000 words, enough to cost £70. for record copying and revising at the usual price of four pence per folio of 72 words. Hence at the usual valuation of three times the expense of a copy the original should produce 200 guineas. The early history of Georgia is peculiar and unlike that of any other of the many British Colonies in America. Many books have been written upon it, besides the several tracts and controversial pamphlets between 1732 and 1750. Stephens' Journal in 3 vols, octavo, is good and authentic, but no more was published than sufficient to answer the particular purposes of the Trustees, who ordered that 70 copies only should be printed, and then the "press to be broke," these copies to be for their own use, the use of the Government, and to be placed where they would do the most good to themselves. Hence they are tame, spiritless and bald in comparison with the rich materials comprised in these volumes of original records that have never been culled from or depleted.

George the Second granted, in 1732, a Charter for a Colony bearing his own name, and placed it in the hands of Trustees for 21 years, 1732-52, to organise and manage. Hence the Ministry and the Board of Trade had very little to do with the Colony, except that now and then the Parliament was called upon to contribute £5,000. or £10,000. Hence again the records of the first 21 years of the Colony are not to be found in the Public Record Office, or among the Board of Trade Papers, until after the surrender of the Charter in 1752, when the Colony was old enough to go alone. Indeed, Sir Robert Walpole seems by these records to have been always fattening the Colony on his Annual Budgets so as to be able to hand it over to Spain at the Peace in order to acquire something more to his own liking by way of bargain. The Trustees were well aware of this, and they knew that the Board of Trade, "who knew as little about the Colony as they did about trade," were their enemies. The Trustees therefore managed to keep their own Council, own records, own Correspondence; and most of them being Members of Parliament, were able to struggle through their 21 years, purely for the credit of the enterprize, for there was no emolument attached to their Trusts. A great part of the interesting story is told in these volumes, and no where else. These are the London Records. We know of the Georgia Records kept by Col. William Stephens, the Secretary. They were once in our hands for a day, and are now safely locked up in Thirlestane House, Cheltenham, on our own information, but interesting as they are, they do not interfere with, or cover the ground these do. The EARL OF EGMONT had a grand pride in his Trust, and these Records mostly in his own hand are a monument to his honesty, his intelligence, and his nobility.

240 GEORGIA (State of) A Report of the Attorney General [Charles Lee] to Congress; containing a Collection of Charters, Treaties, and other Documents, relative to and explanatory of the Title to the Land situate in the South Western parts of the United States; and claimed by Certain Companies under a Law of the State of Georgia, passed January 7, 1795. Printed by Order of the Senate of the United States, title and 171 pp. uncut 8*vo. Philadelphia: John Fenno*, 1796

Important for the history of Georgia and South Carolina, especially respecting the boundaries and conflicting grants, including all to the Southwestern, as far as the then fabulous 'South Sea.'

241 GIRAVA (HIERONIMO) LA COSMOGRAPHIA Y GEOGRAPHIA del S. H. Girava Tarragones. En la quel se contiene la Descripcion de todo el mondo, y de sus partes, y particularmente de las yndias, y tierra nueua, fine clean large copy in polished brown calf extra by Pratt, EXCESSIVELY RARE 4*to. Venetia, por Iordan Zileti*, 1570

There are two editions of this work, but they are precisely the same, except the new title and other preliminaries. Vopelius's map, one of the rarest representations of the globe, was first published by Girava, and adds greatly to the value of the work. It is, however, seldom found in the book. This copy has it in excellent facsimile from that in the British Museum, so well done as to be detected with difficulty.

242 GIUSTINIANI (AGOSTINO) CASTIGATISSIMI ANNALI DI GENOA. Opera certamēte molto laudeuole, etc. fine complete copy in vellum, EXCESSIVELY RARE folio. Genoa, Laurentio Somellino, 1537

The Epistle Dedicatory is dated the 10th of August, 1535. The venerable author (who had written and published the first LIFE OF COLUMBUS, in a long note on the opening of the 19th Psalm, in his Polyglott Psalter of 1516) died at Sea in 1536. These Annals of Genoa were soon after put to press by his executors, but without sufficient revision or explanation. They gave great offence in some quarters, and are said to have been suppressed. At all events they provoked Ferdinand Columbus to finish the Life of his Father, and to strongly repel the misrepresentations first told in the Psalter, and now partly repeated in these Annals, respecting the humble origin of his father the Admiral.

More especially, an absolute Narrative of the North parts of America, and the Discoveries in Virginia, New England and Berbadoes. Very fine large and clean copy, with all the four parts complete, except that the frontispiece and little map are wanting, and the first title is in excellent facsimile by Harris. Richly bound by Pratt in 1872, in best gros grained red morocco extra, excessively rare
4*to.* London, Nathaniel Brooke, 1659-1658

One of the most difficult of books relating to New England to find complete with all the four Parts. Gorges has been much blamed for pirating, or rather appropriating Johnson's Wonder Working Providence, published by N. Brooke in 1654, and by cancelling title and preface incorporating it entire in this work, with new title and introduction. We are now for the first time enabled to explain this matter and clear Gorges of the imputation of literary thievery. Johnson's book belonged to Brooke, and not being swift of sale, after four years, when publishing Gorges' book, he took upon himself the responsibility of working in and off his dead stock. As soon as Gorges found out this trick of his publisher he inserted in the Mercurius Publicus, Newspaper of the 13th Sept. 1660, the following

"ADVERTISEMENT.

I FERDINANDO GORGES, the entituled Author of a late Book, called AMERICA PAINTED TO THE LIFE, am injured in that additional Part, called SION'S SAVIOUR IN NEW ENGLAND, (as written by Sir FERDINANDO Gorges;) that being none of his, and formerly printed in another name, the true owner."

Parts of this set are generally large and very fine, most of them with all the maps and plates, ready for binding. Parts XX and XXVI are wanting altogether. Part XXI wants the map and 4 plates. Part XXIV wants portrait. All the other parts are complete, in good order and correct, according to intelligent collation and abundant study, but some duplicate and misplaced plates that certain inconsiderate writers have described are purposely omitted as confusing and unbibliographical. They can however be supplied by the proprietors.

It will be perceived that all but five of the parts are FIRST EDITIONS. Mr. Stevens' fine set in red morocco, all first editions except Part VII, sold in the Crowninshield Sale, in 1860, for £335. 4to. Franckfurt, In verlegung LEVINI HULSII, 1605

The indefatigable Collector has here the opportunity of acquiring "ANDER SCHIFFART'S SECOND VOYAGE" that went forth "without a Dedication." It is to be hoped that the writer has for the last fifteen years through France and Germany advertised for it in vain. For further particulars see Bib. Am. Vet. page xxvii, Note.

4to. Gedruckt zu Hannaw In Verlegung der Hulsischen, Anno 1617

This 13th Part of Hulsius, being an illustrated translation of Raphe Hamor's Virginia, which appeared in London in 1614, is an important book and is almost as rare as the original English edition. Smith's map of New England is sometimes placed in this work, but manifestly it does not belong to Hamor, but to the next.

280 HULSIUS (Levinus) Viertzehende Schiffahrt, oder Grundliche vnd Warhaffte Beschreibung desz Newen Engellands, unter dem Capitein Johann Schmidt, &c. fine copy, excessively rare, with the map of New England with Capt. John Smith's portrait in the corner, 4 prel. leaves and 62 pp.

4to. Gedruckt zu Frankfurt am Mayn. In verlegung der Hülsischen. Im Jahr Christi, 1617

This 14th Part containing Capt. John Smith's Description of New England, with the map, is one of the rarest of the Parts of Hulsius.

office or employment under the United States: Feb. 16, 1802, fine copy, calf 8*vo*. Washington, W. Duane, 1802

This, believed to be the earliest official directory of persons holding office or rank in the public service is of great interest. It was suggested by President Jefferson in his messages in Dec. 1801. This copy has many manuscript corrections and alterations; also a supplemental printed slip equal to 2 or 3 pages.

311 LAS CASAS (BARTOLOME DE) LAS OBRAS, a remarkably fine, clean, large and sound set, of the eight black letter tracts of LAS CASAS in Spanish, unbound, but ready for binding to taste

4*to.* Sevilla, en casa de Sebastian Truxillo, 1552-53

These eight tracts, written between 1541, when the worthy Bishop with the Emperor was getting up the celebrated Leyes de las Indias of 1543, and 1550, when he was going into battle with Sepulveda, to prove that the conquest of the Indies was tyrannical, unjust and iniquitous. From the day of publication these tracts have maintained their historical importance, interest and rarity. The Latin rules [Principia quidam ex quibus procedendum] for the Discussion, a tract of 10 leaves sometimes attached to the collection, is not here. Here follows a list of them:—

1. Brevissima relacion de la Destrucyon de las Indias.
2. Lo que se sigue es vn pedaço de vna carta, etc.
3. Aqui se contiene una disputa, o controversia.
4. Aqui se contienen trecientas proposiciones.
5. Este es un tratado sobre los Indios que se han hecho enellos esclavos.
6. Entre los remedios que Las Casas, 1542, refirio para reformacion de las Indias.
7. Aqui se contienen vnos auisos y reglas para los confessores.
8. Tratado comprobatorio del Imperio trinen sobre las Indias.

312 LAS CASAS (Bartolome) Brevissima Relacion de la destruycion de las Indians, &c. 214 folios, old calf 4*to.* n. p. Ano. 1552

This is a reprint of Las Casas black letter tracts of 1552-3 at Barcelona in roman type in 1646, an edition almost as scarce as the original. There is sometimes prefixed a collective title "Las Obras, &c." not in this fine copy.

One of the few books on "Salem Witchcraft" outside of the Mathers. There has been a puzzle about this being called the 2d edition, as the first edition in this form has not yet turned up. But it appeared in 1693 as a sort of Introduction to Increase Mather's "Cases of Conscience." This edition has 3 Dedications, and is certified to by Increase Mather, Charles Morton, James Allen, Samuel Willard, John Bailey and Cotton Mather.

EXCESSIVELY SCARCE. 8vo. Boston: Printed by J. FRANKLIN, 1719

There are many points of interest about this little book. 1st, it is from the pen of the precocious Cotton Mather. Though his name does not appear, yet the work is unmistakably his, and it appears in the list of his 283 works at the end of his Life.

With all his wit and startling quaintness, it appears that even he had to preach against the drowsiness of his hearers. There are men of a 'drowsy Constitution' whose only effective and determined spirit on a Sunday is 'the Spirit of Slumber.' To overcome this the Doctor makes a 'Proposal that it may become fashionable for us to wake one another.' Take notes of Sermons, he cries, 'The pen of Ready Writers would be a cure for the Heavy Sleeper.' Indeed this sermon on Sleep is one of Cotton Mathers best Essays. 2, This book, neat, tidy and well printed, came from the Boston press of JAMES FRANKLIN, at a time when his younger brother BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, a lad of 13 or 14, was fore*man* or manager. There is a tasteful head piece, and an initial letter.

This elaborate Writer 'in showing the Dr. [Mayhew] to himself,' held the mirror up to Nature, but Nature always responds, as Dr. Mayhew did, with truthful force and effect. The controversy was long and strong. Its value now consists chiefly in the vast amount of historical gleanings preserved. The hard knocks have long since evaporated, but the works of Mayhew, Chandler and Apthorpe survive as valuable historical publications.

This mere 'paper-weight' to the Doctor's 'Remarks' led to generous responses from London.

387 Mayhew (Jonathan, Pastor of the West Church in Boston) A Letter of Reproof to Mr. John Cleaveland of Ipswich, occasioned by a defamatory Libel published under his name, entitled An Essay to defend some of the most important principles in the Protestant reformed System of Christianity, &c. against the Aspersions cast by Jonathan Mayhew in his late Thanksgiving Sermons, very fine copy, uncut, 49 pp. half bound

390 Mayhew (Jonathan, Pastor of the West Church, Boston) The Snare Broken. A Thanksgiving-Discourse in West Church, Boston, N.E. May 23, 1766. Occasioned by the repeal of the Stamp Act, uncut, viii and 44 pp. 8*vo.* Boston, R. & S. Draper, 1766

The Rev. Dr. Mayhew, of Boston, who died at the age of 46, forty-seven days after this appropriate and judicious discourse, had more historical and contemporary knowledge than any other of New England's eminent writers, except perhaps Thomas Prince. This learned discourse is a good example of his wonderful power and freedom.

391 Mayhew (Jonathan, Pastor of the West Church in Boston) A Discourse concerning unlimited submission and non-resistance to the higher powers, with some reflections on the resistance made to King Charles I. and on the anniversary of his Death : in which the Mysterious doctrine of that Prince's Saintship and Martyrdom is unriddled, delivered 30th Jan. 1749, 48 pp.
8*vo.* Boston, 1750 ; reprinted by Hall & Goss, 1818

The sentiments of this historical Discourse delivered in Boston on the first Centennial Anniversary of the Execution of Charles the First by this rising son of New England, at the age of 29, in George the II's reign, in due growth culminated in the Declaration of Independence. Years and years later, on the 30th of January, Charles' Saint's Day, while in London the bells of St. Martin were tolling, the bells of Centre Church in New Haven, behind which Goff, Whaley and Dixwell three of the "Regicides," were buried, rang a merry peal for Liberty and the Constitution.

393 MEIN (JOHN) State of the Importation from Great Britain into the Port of Boston from Jan. to August, 1769 [title mutilated and lower part gone] uncut, title, preface and 130 pp. EXCESSIVELY SCARCE and very important 4*to. Boston*, 1769

This fearless exposing of the non-importation agreement and schemes of certain "Well disposed" Merchants of Boston is now valuable for many more points than when published in 1769. John Mein, an enterprising Scotchman, had established a good miscellaneous business in Boston as printer, stationer, bookbinder and bookseller and publisher. He declined to sign the non-importation agreement, and was consequently "posted" by name in the Papers by the "Well Disposed," and every town in the Colony warned against trading with him. Seeing the trickery of the well-disposed merchants, Mein, having the Chronicle at his back, not only printed the names of the leading merchants calling themselves the "Well Disposed," but printed the full "cockets" and manifests of many ships arriving, with the names of the owners and consignees. These lists then fully supported Mein, but now are valuable sources of the state of the Colony and its trade and traders, such as John Hancock and his neighbours, who vainly attempted to isolate him.

This blue-stocking squabble in the Metropolis of New England lasted just ten years or as long as the other Trojan War; and so fiercely was it conducted that everybody took sides. The Boston HELEN however was soon forgotten in the magnitude of the din, while the wooden horse full of Arians was introduced into Harvard College and opened wide its gates to the Unitarians.

432 Morton (Nathaniel) The New England's Memorial: or, a brief relation of the most memorable and remarkable passages of the providence of God manifested to the Planters of New England, with special reference to the first colony called New Plymouth, *etc. fine copy, with the bookplate of E. 433 Morton (Thomas) New English Canaan or New Canaan, containing an abstract of New England, composed in three Bookes, half russia
4*to.* Amsterdam, 1637

This is a neat transcript of the whole book by S. G. Drake from the then supposed unique copy in the possession of John Quincy Adams lent him for that purpose. Mr. Drake's prefatory explanation of his interesting and rapid work is given on a fly leaf. A good memorial of Boston's most active and enterprising antiquary.

Signed by Eleven Ministers in Boston; with some Remarks on that singular Publication, 37 pp. fine copy, excessively scarce 4to. Portsmouth, New Hampshire, printed and sold by D. and R. Fowle, 1768

This Rev. John Murray, of Boothbay, Maine, a north-of-Ireland man, educated in Edinburgh, Presbyterian of the Ulster Synod, emigrant to America at the age of 22, in 1762, preacher in good standing in Philadelphia, Elizabeth Town, New York and elsewhere, and finally in 1768 hounded down, and "with magisterial authority" "Gazetted" by the eleven Associated Pastors of Boston, must not be confounded with other John Murrays of that period. In this remarkable book is told the author's whole story in the form of a simple biography.

440 Murray (John, Pastor at Boothbay) The Last Solemn Scene. A Sermon preached at the Church in Back-Street, Boston, May 22, 1768, 47 pp. (headlines cut into, other edges uncut) scarce but soiled 8vo. Boston, W. M'Alpine, 1768

462 New England Primer. The Origin, History and Character of the N. E. Primer: being a series of Articles contributed to the Cambridge Chronicle by "The Antiquary" [George Livermore] cloth boards 4*to. Cambridge*, 1849

Only 12 copies were taken off in book form, all for private distribution.

463 NEW ENGLAND PRIMER (The) or an easy and pleasant Guide to the Art of Reading, Adorned with cuts. To which is added, the Catechism, 32 leaves, including frontispiece, fine clean copy in its primeval state, boards, half sheep and paper sides 32*mo. Massachusetts, Printed for the Purchaser*, 1810

What New Englander, of the old school, who lived in the country, can forget his New England Primer with its primitive woodcuts, showing how "Zacheus he, Did climb the tree, His Lord to see," and the picture of JOHN ROGERS burnt in Smithfield in the presence of his wife "with nine small children and one at the breast"? Yet how many, even well-educated people of the present day have ever seen a copy of their father's Primer?

464 NEW ENGLAND PRIMER (The) etc. &c. 48 pp. adorned with real New Hampshire woodcuts 32*mo. Concord, N. H. Published and sold by I. & W. R. Hill, at their Book Store*, 1813

The Publisher of this edition, ISAAC HILL, afterwards became the Governor of New Hampshire.

465 NEW ENGLAND PRIMER (The) &c. &c. adorned with cuts, 32 leaves 32*mo. Walpole, N. H. Printed by I. Thomas & Co. And sold by the single, hundred, and thousand at their wholesale Book-Store*, 1814

This copy, fresh and clean, is in half sheep binding with the orthodox blue paper on the sides. The woodcuts and the printing are a trifle better in their execution, as becometh the printer, ISAIAH THOMAS, the historian of printing in America, and founder of the American Antiquarian Society:—

"The boy that's to his book inclin'd
Will soon a golden treasure find."

466 NEW ENGLAND PRIMER (The) Improved. Or, an easy and pleasant Guide to the Art of Reading. To which is added the Assembly's Catechism, 64 pp. fine clean copy with rough edges at bottom 32*mo. Hartford: Printed by George Goodwin & Sons*, 1820

In this edition, "Improved," the woodcut frontispiece is so good that the engraver has put his name to it, "J. W. Barber," who xx or xxx years later came to eminence, but in the 24 illustrations of "In Adam's Fall, We sinned all," etc. he manifestly out-did himself and the subjects. They are too neat and literal, nothing left in mysterious uncertainty like the old country sort.

Assembly's Catechism. Stereotyped by A. Chandler & Co. 64 pp. including cover, fine clean copy, as new 32*mo.* Newark, Published by Benjamin Olds, 1842

It is not to be wondered at that after a hundred years this famous book was adopted and issued in New Jersey. The woodcuts are numerous, the one on page 13, illustrating " The royal Oak it was the tree, That sav'd his royal Majesty."

468 NEW ENGLAND PRIMER (The) Containing the Assembly's Catechism; the Account of the Burning of John Rogers; A Dialogue between Christ, a Youth, and the Devil; and various other useful and instructive matter. Adorned with cuts. With a historical Introduction, By Rev. H. Humphrey, D.D. President of Amherst College, 64 pp. fine and clean
33*mo.* Worcester, S. A. Howland, n. d. [1845 ?]

The frontispiece is a good portrait of ISAAC WATTS. The historical Introduction is a stiff notice of the Westminster Catechism, nothing more! and for this the beginnings of learning to read are omitted.

469 NEW ENGLAND SYNOD. PROPOSITIONS CONCERNING THE SUBJECT OF BAPTISM AND CONSOCIATION OF CHURCHES; Collected and Confirmed out of the word of God, by a Synod of Elders and Messengers of the Churches in Massachusetts-Colony in New-England. Assembled at Boston, according to the Appointment of the Honoured General Court, in the Year 1662. Whereunto is annext the Answer of the Dissenting Brethren and Messengers of the Churches of New England, &c. title and preface 7 leaves, text 18 and 38 pp. green morocco extra by Pratt
4*to.* Printed [at Cambridge in N. E.] in the year 1662

This is perhaps the rarest and most important printed book in the sale. It is a good sound copy and complete, except that some leaves are closely cut and others cut slightly into the text, owing to irregular printing and folding.

470 NEW ENGLAND SYNOD. The Necessity of Reformation with the Expedients subservient thereunto asserted; in answer to two Questions: I. What are the Evils that have provoked the Lord to bring his Judgments on New-England? II. What is to be done that so those Evils may be reformed? copy, in best red morocco extra by Pratt, a book of very great rarity, and importance in the history of New York
4to. In's Gravenhage, 1665

The object of this book is to convince the French that the Dutch title to New Netherlands now New York is good, and that therefore Charles II of England has no just right to occupy that country. George Downing, the English Ambassador at the Hague, named on the title, was one of the earliest graduates of Harvard College at Cambridge, in New England.

526 Original Letters [1739-1746] to an Honest Sailor [Admiral Vernon] fine, clean and uncut, 94 pp. 8*vo. London, R. Thomas* [1739-46]

A bundle of letters of extraordinary interest to this day. After serving some six years in the West Indies at Porto Bello, Carthagena and elsewhere, and receiving for his gallant conduct votes of thanks from the House of Commons and House of Lords, with very many letters of congratulation and thanks from the Ministry and many distinguished persons in and out of office, Admiral Vernon was on the 4th of April, 1746, asked by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty whether or not he was the author of 'A Specimen of Naked Truth' and 'Some Seasonable Advice.' The Admiral gave four days later an evasive reply without admitting the suspicion. He was then summoned before the Commissioners, brow-beaten and charged with the authorship, and an answer yes or no demanded. The Admiral expressed his willingness to answer all questions of Duty, but was under no obligations to answer this. He was the next day informed that the two pamphlets had been laid before the King, "and his majesty has been pleased to direct their Lordships to strike your Name out of the List of Flag Officers."

540 Ovaglie (Alonso d') Historica Relatione del Regno di Cile, e delle missioni e ministerii che esercita in quelle la Compagnia di Giesv, plates and map of Chili, old calf folio. Roma, 1646

Ovalla, after returning from America, resided for some time in Rome and wrote this important work there and published it in both Italian and Spanish. He wrote equally well in both languages, and throughout the work used the rights of an author to change or modify to suit his own notions of what was best for the Spaniards and for the Italians. Both editions are original, and differ essentially in many places, in matters of the Church. Though a good Catholic he put some things into the Spanish edition that he dared not publish at Rome in Italian.

678 PTOLEMAEUS (Claudius) Geographiæ Vniversalis, vetvs et nova Complectens, Libros VIII, fine copy, vellum
folio. Basileae, apvd Henricvm Petrvm, 1540

A scarce edition edited with Introduction and Appendix by Sebastian Muenster. It has the 27 maps of Ptolemy, and the 20 new ones of Modern Geography together with a new map of the world, showing North and South America, particularly the fabulous French isthmus of Verrazano at latitude 40° N. the parent of much false geography, and of a great deal of modern criticism based on pure imagination and sound nonsense.

684 Pulteney (William) Thoughts on the Present State of Affairs with America, and the means of Conciliation. Fifth Edition, 111 pp. 8*vo. London, J. Dodsley*, 1778

This Hon. Member for Shrewsbury as late as the year 1778 herein reviewed the history of political affairs between England and her American Colonies from 1754, and he came to the conclusion that notwithstanding the obnoxious Parliamentary taxes, the Stamp Act, the Boston-port-bill, the battle of Bunker Hill, and the Declaration of Independence, that the Americans might yet be reconciled with the Mother Country, and abandon their idea of Independency. The book was very popular. To this 5th edition is added Appendix No. III, a letter from Franklin dated Passy, March 12, 1778, explaining certain mistakes of the author.

685 PUTNAM (Major-General ISRAEL) A Sermon, Occasioned by the Death of The Honorable Major-General ISRAEL PUTNAM, of Brooklyn; Who departed this Life on Saturday the 29th day of May, 1790, and Delivered at his Funeral on the Tuesday following. By Josiah Whitney, A.M. Pastor of the first Church in Brooklyn [Connecticut] 28 pp. good copy, in brown polished calf extra, g. e. by W. Pratt
sm. 8vo. Windham: Printed by John Byrne [1790]

General Putnam at one time ranked next to General Washington. This discourse is of the greatest rarity, Pages 27-28 are occupied with "Eulogium, By Albigence Waldo, delivered at the grave of the late Gen. Israel Putnam." The historical notes are fresh and valuable.

686 QUINCY (Edmund) A Treatise of Hemp-Husbandry: Being a Collection of approved Instructions agreeable to the Experience both in Europe and America. With some Observations upon the Necessity which the American British Colonies are under to engage in the said Production; etc. 32 pp. fine copy, scarce
4to. Boston: Green & Russell, by Order of the Honourable House of Representatives, 1765

In June, 1764, the Parliament offered a bounty of £8 a ton on hemp. This and other circumstances induced Mr. Quincy and the General Court of Massachusetts to distribute this Treatise among the Townships. It is a valuable treatise.

699 Raynal (The Abbé) The Revolution of America, title, advertisement, etc. vii and text 92 pp. very fine copy, uncut 8*vo. Salem: Samuel Hall*, 1782

This Essay is valuable, and still worth the reading. A very curious comment on the French arrogance of the learned Abbé is found in his Prize Question proposed to all comers through the ACADEMY of Lyons, for the year 1783, "HAS THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA BEEN USEFUL OR HURTFUL TO MANKIND"? Mankind probably here means Frenchmen, for elsewhere the people of the western hemisphere are considered an integral portion of mankind. One might just as well expect the Historical Society of Vermont to issue a prize question for 1883 to all comers to discuss "Whether or not the Old World is any longer of any good to mankind except to consume the eatables or make a market for the inventions of the New World?"

This copy has the excessively rare eight folded copper-plates engraved by J. Allen, though the first one appears to want the outer margin.

707 Reid (Adam, Pastor of the Church in Salisbury, Conn.) A Historical Address, before the Congregational Church in Salisbury, Conn. at their first Centennial Celebration, November 20, 1844, 63 pp. 8*vo. Hartford: Elihu Geer*, 1845

708 Remarks and Criticisms on the Hon. John Quincy Adams's Letter to the Hon. Harrison Gray Otis [By John Lowell] title and 62 pp. 8*vo. Boston, Joshua Cushing*, 1808

This interesting tract is compiled from papers in the NEW YORK EVENING POST. The severe criticisms on Professor John Quincy Adams's literature and grammar are amusing and instructive, but the real value of the publication is in the discussion of the facts, principles, opinions and details relating to the approaching war of 1812, such as neutral rights, right of search, the Berlin and Milan Decrees, the Chesapeake, &c. &c.

This reverend Chaplain made two journeys from Connecticut via Albany through Lakes George and Champlain to Canada, down the St. Lawrence and back, between the 18th March and the 29th of October. Generals Wooster, Benedict Arnold, Ethan Allen and Colonels Seth Warner, Buel, Hazen and other well-known soldiers are named as his companions. The incidents are mild and the adventures not brave. On page 18, on the 7th of May, on the St. Lawrence some way above Quebec, news came of dangers about Quebec, and the order was given at a Council of War with Gen. Wooster, to retreat to the River Sorel. "The boatmen sing a very pretty air to 'Row the boat row.'" Is this the father of Tom Moore's Canadian Boat Song of about a quarter of a century later?

726 Robbins (Ammi R. Pastor of the Church in Norfolk) The Empires and Dominions of the World, made subservient to the Kingdom of Christ; who ruleth over all. A Sermon in presence of His Exc. Samuel Huntington, Governor, and The General Assembly of Connecticuts at Hartford, May 14th, 1789, 39 pp. clean and uncut 8*vo*. Hartford: Hudson and Goodwin, 1789

This Rev. Ammi, after giving the Governor and the General Assembly some good political advice, shows himself in this second year of the New Constitution of the United States somewhat of a pessimist. "The day and age in which we live is evil." And then he dares to say, "O Connecticut, how art thou fallen! Once famous for benevolence, righteousness and the fear of God; for the belief and practice of religion, &c. Now abounding with impenitence, infidelity and all manner of impieties," etc. etc.

A valuable historical discourse in which the learned author endeavours, among other surprising and important matters, to show the influence of America on the Old World. "To the revolution in America, as a mean, in the hand of Providence, may probably be ascribed the surprising scenes which are acting in the European Continent at the present day [1793;] where the 'nations, like a potter's vessel, are dashing to pieces,' one against another."

756 RUMSEY (JAMES, of Berkeley County, Virginia) A SHORT TREATISE ON THE APPLICATION OF STEAM, whereby is clearly shewn, from Actual Experiments, that Steam may be applied to propel Boats or Vessels of any burthen against rapid currents with great velocity. The same principles are also introduced with effect by a machine of simple and cheap construction, for the purpose of raising water sufficient for the working of Grist-Mills, Saw-Mills, &c. and for watering meadows and other purposes of agriculture, 26 pp. fine clean and UNCUT COPY, EXCESSIVELY RARE 8*vo.* Philadelphia, Joseph James, 1788

This early American tract on Steam, Steam-boats and Steam-power is of great importance in the history of the use of steam as a propeller prior to Fulton or Watt. Rumsey had prepared his model boat in Virginia in 1784, and privately printed an account of it in 1785. This falling into the hands of John Fitch, of Connecticut, he published at Philadelphia in 1787 his "Original Steam-Boat supported, a reply to James Rumsey's Pamphlet." In this tract of Mr. Fitch he accuses Rumsey of false dates, &c., and claims priority of invention for himself. This brought out a reply by Joseph Barnes, of Philadelphia, formerly an assistant, and now Attorney in fact, to James Rumsey, entitled "Remarks on Mr. John Fitch's Reply to Mr. James Rumsey's Pamphlet, Phil. 1788." Mr. Barnes gives his affidavit sworn to under oath before Cato Moore, that in May, 1785, he was employed by Mr. Rumsey to build a boat in Potowmack River to be propelled by steam, and that he had built the boat. In Sept., 1784, Rumsey exhibited his model of a steam-boat to General Washington at Bath, in Virginia, who gave him a certificate. General Gates also saw the great experiment, Dec. 3, 1787, on Potowmack river, and certifies that James Rumsey's Steam Boat got on her way, with near half her burthen on board, and moved against the current at the rate of three miles per hour, by the force of steam without any external application whatever. Governor Johnson's certificate is even stronger of what he knew and saw between 1784 and Dec. 1787. This tract of Rumsey is dated Jan. 1, 1788. The three tracts of Rumsey, Fitch and Barnes are indispensable for the history of Steam.

A book of great and historical interest. This copy wants title and last four leaves. It contains only page 1 to 120, but it is so scarce and the matter so important that it is still well worth having. The title and a large part of the 23 long letters are satirical and severe upon some of the prominent men of Boston. It is always well to know what a thorough and intelligent tory antiquary who apparently knew everybody, and everything going on, could write and publish in Boston in 1775.

This author places eight years after publication Dr. Jeremy Belknap and his Discourse on Military Duty, in his own Scales, and, weighing, tosses them to the left as wanting, with all the coolness of the weighing machine at the Bank, believing, as he says of the learned historian of New Hampshire, that "through inattention to the teachings of God, he got lost in the fog of Antichrist." The book is a philological curiosity, and the author is manifestly in a denser fog than Belknap. Read his Introduction and take note of the words he has coined expressive of the tricks of deceivers.

This was the late Mr. Frederik Muller's copy, the identical one described by P. A. Tiele in his 'Journaux des Navigateurs Néerlandais,' under No. 34, page 43. Mr. Muller ranked this edition, for some reason not fully explained, as the second instead of the first. This and the Amsterdam edition of the same year are equally rare, and both bear the name of Willem Jansz [Blauw] at the end of the dedication, with the date of 25 Sept. 1618. The Amst. edition has the name of Willem Jansz. in the imprint while this has Ian Iansz, probably his father. Both editions have in some few copies known the old map of the world by Willem Jansz. dated 1606, but with the addition of Terra del Fuego and Fretum le Maire, so named in 1616. This edition, be it the first or second, is not in the British Museum, and it is difficult to find materials to settle the doubt. The expedition of Schouten and Le Maire was so important, and the work so suggestive of new geographical notions, that there were no less than six editions in Dutch and French the first year 1618, and as many in 1619, including the two separate ones in Latin. It appeared in 1619, also in German in part xvi of Hulsius, and part xi of De Bry's America, both Latin and German.

There were two issues of this First Edition in French in 1618, both by Guillaume Ianson in Amsterdam, differing only in the titles and prefaces. They are both in the Lenox Library of New York, but Mr. Muller appears not to have seen either of them when he published his valuable book, edited by Tiele in 1867. Which of the two issues is prior it is difficult to say.

4to. Amsterdami, Apud Petrum Kœrium, Ao. 1619

There were two Latin editions this same year, both with full text and like number of maps and plates, but the translations are different, the one edition by Wm. Janson (Blauw) and the other by Van der Keere. Blauw's Dedication is to both versions. It is difficult to say definitely which edition is prior, though Mr. Muller gives that honour to Blauw's, why we know not. He, however, is certainly mistaken about the mixed plates. Van der Keere was an engraver, and publisher. This copy was in its original state and had no plates with the French text on the versos.

4to. A Amstredam, chez Harman Ianson, 1619

This very early edition in French was believed by the late Mr. Muller, who, however, had never seen it when he wrote, to be the same with a different title, as the edition of the same date bearing the name of Pierre du Keere (see his No. 42). He refers to a copy possessed by the late Mr. Jacob of the Hague, but without settling the questions of identity or priority.

4to. Tot Hoorn, Gedruckt by Isaac Willemsz. Voor Ian Iansz. Deutel, 1648

The editor in this edition takes a new departure. In a preface to the reader on the back of the title he intimates that, of the twenty editions of this celebrated Voyage round the World the more recent ones were rather a disgrace than a monument to the town of Hoorn, by reason of the bad paper, print and illustrations. He proposes to remedy this by giving good paper and plates, and by revising and adding to the text by means of other manuscript journals kept by those on the same Voyage, viz. Le Maire and Aris Claesz. In this way he has revised and added to the text, and re-ingraved or retouched the maps and plates, and printed all in good style on good paper. Mr. Muller under his No. 52 traces the plates to their origin. A flying fish and some coast lines are added in coarse woodcuts in the text. At the end in pages 53—56 is for the first time added a Vocabvlaer ofte Tale van de Eylanden which is a list of common words of the several islands, explained in Dutch. The Islands so noticed are, the Salomon Islands, the Cocos Island, New Guinea, Moyses & Moo Islands. The maps and plates are numbered from 2 to 9. No. 1 (Map of the World) is not in this copy, nor have we ever been able to see it in this edition, though called for in the register. Mr. Muller also confesses to his never having met with it. We have seen it supplied from other editions.

4to. t'Amstelredam, voor Joost Hartgerts, 1648

This volume contains the Second Voyage of Joris SPILBERGEN, and the Voyage of SCHOUTEN and Le Maire; the first extending to page 65, the second, with a new title, begins with page 66 and extends to the top of page 117; the rest of that page to page 120 is filled up by questions and answers on Navigation. There is one folded plate of the size of two leaves, divided into six compartments, three relating to Spilbergen's Voyage, and the other three to Schouten's and Le Maire's. The jealousies and petty squabbles of the partisans of these two celebrated expeditions are perhaps better hinted at here than any where previously.

On the back of the title is a copperplate portrait, called Willem Cornelisz Schouten, with a woodcut border, an ingenious bit of printing. In the text are six illustrations—three of which are copperplate and three woodcuts—but all with type-metal borders. The Vocabulary at the end is somewhat abridged so as to occupy only two pages. This edition has been used as a model for the text of several subsequent editions.

The Bishop of St. Asaph was a friend of America, and in all his publications he endeavoured to revive the union and cordiality between the mother-country and its Colonies. This edition has an advertisement by the Connecticut Editor, who remarks that this republication "is admirably well adapted to lead those, who may think proper to read it, into just sentiments of the impolicy of the British Ministry in their conduct towards the Colonies."

A good, clean and sound copy, except that some of the maps have been restored in the margin. It has been the fashion to depreciate Capt. John Smith of late years and discredit some of the statements made respecting him and his achievements recorded in this volume. But when it is recollected that the materials of this volume were placed in the hands of the Rev. William Simmons, of Oxford, afterwards Rector of St. Saviour's, Southwark, cut down, edited and published by him in 1612, and only moderately restored in 1623, by Smith himself when most of his friends and enemies were alive and ready to vindicate or accuse him of untruthfulness; and when we call to mind that most of the charges made against him came to light in Massachusetts just at a time when it was deemed desirable to take Virginia's pride down; and this too by men who had not sufficiently studied the origin of the book and the history of its compilation, it is only fair to say that the disinterested case against Capt. John Smith and his Historie of Virginia is far from made out, and that the tough, stout-hearted, honest explorer, surveyor and sometimes Governor of Virginia still stands the unrivalled hero and benefactor of Virginia and friend of the estimable Pocahontas.

4to. Gedruckt zu Franckfurt am Mayn, In verlegung der Hülsischen. Im Jahr Christi, 1617. [Colophon] Gedruckt zu Franckfurt am Meyn, Bey Hartman Palthenio, 1617

This excessively rare German Edition of Capt. JOHN SMITH'S DESCRIPTION OF NEW ENGLAND surveyed in 1614 and published in London in 1616, forms the 14th Part of the Collection of Voyages and Travels by Levinus HULSIUS, of which no complete set with all the 26 parts, with all the editions, was ever yet made up, notwithstanding the life-long trials of several eminent collectors. Of Smith's map of New England there are at least nine different impressions from the same plate. This close copy by Hulsius in 1617 enables us to determine with certainty which was really the first.

8*vo.* Philadelphia, T. Dodson, 1790

As the 4th of July, 1790, fell on a Sunday the Committee of the Phil. Cincinatti voted to have a Commemorative Sermon instead of the usual Oration, and invited Provost Smith to deliver it in celebration of American Independence. This is his sermon, which might as well have been called an Oration, as it is rather political and historical than religious.

837* Smith (Cotton Mather, A.M. Pastor in Sharon) A good Minister of Jesus Christ, nourished by the Word of Faith. A Sermon, at New-Preston [Conn.] at the Ordination of Rev. 838 Snell (Thomas, A.M.) An Oration, pronounced at Brookfield, July 5, 1813: at the Celebration of the Independence of the United States of America, 30 pp. uncut
8*vo.* Brookfield: E. Merriam & Co. 1813

This historical Oration is not at all in the usual fourth-of-July-style, but is a clear and dispassionate resumé of the origin, progress, principles and prospects of the war of 1812, historically, chronologically and calmly stated according to the author's view. He deemed it out of place to crow over achievements, whilst the country was suffering under the principles of Jefferson and democracy against those of Washington and prosperity. The tract is indeed a good federalist history of the principles of the war of 1812.

839 Snell (Rev. Dr. Thomas) A Sermon, delivered on the last Sabbath in June, 1838, which completed the Fortieth year of his Ministry: containing a brief History of the Town, and especially of the Church and Parish, of North Brookfield, from 1798 to the present time, uncut, 55 pp.

Relating to the famous expedition of the Earl of Essex, Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Francis Drake, General Norriss and others in 1589, against Spain, in which Raleigh, whose achievements were marvellous, used to declare that all he gained was a lame leg. From the circumstance that Raleigh's name is not mentioned and some internal evidence, it has been claimed that this plain unvarnished tale is by Raleigh himself, the real chief of the expedition.

4to. Impressa por Carlos Whittingham en la Ciudad de Londres a costa de Enrique Estevans de Vermont, 24 junio, 1854

Edited, with Epistle Dedicatory of two pages to Dr. Reinhold Pauli, from the original manuscript of the Second Admiral of the Indies, then in the possession of Henry Stevens, and printed at the Chiswick Press. The young King of Spain, Charles, had asked Columbus respecting the benevolent scheme of Las Casas for civilizing and christianizing the Indians of Terra Firma, urging the Admiral's co-operation. This is Don Diego Columbus's favourable reply. This and the next five lots form an interesting series of Spanish historical tracts, printed uniformly in black letter, similar to that of the Las Casas tracts of 1552, and of the same sized page. The six volumes are all bound neatly in paste-grained roan of six different colours, with different side gold ornaments, and different fancy end papers. Only 100 copies of each were printed.

4to. Impressa en Londres, en casa de Carlos Whittingham a costa de Enrique Estevans, 24 junio 1854

Las Casas, who had taken great interest in the welfare and christianizing of the Indians, had been promised an extensive grant of land on the coast of Terra Firma, between Darien and Trinidad, for the purpose of founding a colony for improving and civilizing the natives. In this important and long autograph letter he repeats his request to Charles the Fifth through his Chancellor, and urges his benevolent scheme. It was printed in 1854 from the original autograph manuscript then in the possession of Mr. Stevens. In the epistle dedicatory to Arthur Helps, Esq., a full account of the subject of the letter is given in English.

Año de Mdxli. [In Latin] 14 pp. black letter, morocco 4to. Impressum Londini apud Carolum Whittingham, impensis Henrici Stevens, 1854

This important manuscript was edited by Henry Stevens, and privately printed for him at the Chiswick Press in 1854 from the original, then in his possession. It is dated the first of July, 1541. Las Casas and others had complained much of the ill-treatment and slavery of the Indians by the Spaniards in America, until finally Charles V referred the grand question to the Faculty of the University of Salamanca, whether Indians who had been baptized could be made slaves? This curious document is the official answer, signed by the Dean and all the Faculty. The volume has a long explanatory dedication in English to Sir Thomas Phillipps.

Año de Mdxlii, 12 pp. black letter, morocco 4*to.* Impressa en Londres por Carlos Whittingham a costa de Enrique Estevens, 20 Oct. 1854

First privately printed from the original manuscript in 1854, then in the possession of Mr. Stevens. It is not dated, but was manifestly written in 1541 or 1542, when the Emperor and Las Casas were getting up the famous New Laws of the Indies, printed in 1543. The Emperor had asked Cortes's advice respecting the encomiendas and the treatment of the Indians in Mexico. This is the Conqueror's sensible reply. The volume is dedicated in a long epistle in English to Leopold von Ranke, the historian, in which dedication is given an abstract of this important historical document in English.

4*to.* Impressa en la Ciudad de Londres ; en casa de Carlos Whittingham a costa de Enrique Estevans de Vermont, 24 Septembre, 1854

Edited by Henry Stevens, of Vermont, in 1854, and beautifully printed at the Chiswick Press in black letter, uniform with Las Casa's tracts of 1552, from the original unpublished manuscript then in his possession. The MS. is not dated, but was probably written in 1554. Dedicated to Sir Frederick Madden.

887 Stevens (Henry, of Vermont) A complete set of the above six Spanish tracts of Diego Columbus, Las Casas, Cortes and the Faculty of Salamanca, edited by Mr. Stevens, in black letter, in pages uniform with Las Casas' tracts of 1552, bound uniformly in style in thin morocco, but in six different colours, different side ornaments, and 6 different lining papers

4. A Catalogue of American Maps in the Library of the British Museum, Christmas, 1856, 14 pp. cloth

8vo. London, printed by Charles Whittingham, Chiswick Press, 1866

These four Catalogues, bound in one volume, comprising about 750 large 8vo pages in double columns, uniform with the "Bibliotheca Grenvilliana," describing about 20,000 volumes, were printed by Whittingham on fine toned paper, in the best style of the Chiswick Press. At the beginning are inserted the rules for Cataloguing Books, Maps, Music, &c., adopted in the British Museum, first printed in 1842, but now revised, with additions, alterations and amendments to 1862. There is also added a detailed description of the classification of books on the shelves in the British Museum. These Catalogues contain all the American Books that had got into the British Museum Library to the beginning of 1857. The four volumes in one, cloth, priced at 25s., but never regularly published.

to distribute it. On the back of the title of this copy, in his own hand is this note: "The Author's distance from the press prevented a seasonable correction of typographical errors. The Reader is desired to correct." This copy has about 100 corrections in the hand of the author himself.

911 STILES (Ezra, D.D. President of Yale College) The United States elevated to Glory and Honor. A Sermon before His Excellency Jonathan Trumbull, Governor, and the Gen. Assembly of the State of Connecticut, at Hartford, the Anniversary Election, 8th May, 1783, 99 pp. fine copy, uncut and scarce
8*vo.* New Haven: Thomas and Samuel Green, 1783

This marvellous book called a SERMON is really a history. It fills nearly 100 closely printed pages. The learned President had been long cramming for an ecclesiastical and civil record of America, and during the war had collected extensively, materials for a political history of the United States. As soon as the War was over he was invited by the Legislature of Connecticut to give the Anniversary Election Sermon. His heart enlarged with the occasion. It was a grand opportunity to fire the first historical gun of Peace. The work is a full and condensed account of the origin, progress, standing and prospects of the United States. A most important and opportune work, but never fully appreciated, being considered out of place and overdone. There are many jokes afloat respecting the size, weight and stuffing of the 'Sermon.' On one occasion shortly after the Peace, the President, Professor and Students at Yale were endeavouring, but in vain, to make a balloon go up in honour of the occasion. There was something wrong with the gas and the President asked one of the Students what was to be done to make the balloon rise? The reply was, 'I think, Mr. President, if you would throw in one of your Election Sermons it might go up.' However, the 'Sermon' has gone up since, and though weighted as a Sermon it is really one of the best early histories of the United States.

918 Stillman (Samuel, D.D.) An Oration, July 4th, 1789, at the request of the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, in Celebration of the Anniversary of American Independence, 30 pp.
8*vo.* Boston: B. Edes & Son, 1789

This is no common fourth-of-July utterance, but a well-written historical and political address, full of instructive lessons of history, and encouraging predictions for the future of the United States, winding up with Bishop Berkeley's prophetic verses, ending with, "Time's noblest offspring is the last."

A political disquisition upon the state of republican contented and flourishing America, in contrast with the lessons taught by the French Revolution.

920 STODDARD (REV. SOLOMON, Minister of Northampton, Massachusetts) ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-SEVEN AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SERMONS, neatly written in microscopic characters and bound in a small duodecimo volume of 300 pages, of which there are blank spaces equal to 80 full pages

That is 147 full Sermons occupy only about 220 full pages, the writing being so very minute, that but few persons have eyes sharp enough to read a line, yet by magnifying it one sees how plain and beautiful is the handwriting. The Volume is in the original primitive New England sheepskin binding: and is a wonderful production. Mr. Stoddard was one of the most prominent of the Ministers of New England, born in Boston 1643, graduated at Harvard College in 1662, and was ordained at Northampton, Mass. in 1672, where he preached most of the time till his death in 1729, aged 85. In 1727 his grandson JONATHAN EDWARDS became his colleague. He was an author of eminence; and this little volume is a remarkable relic or memorial of a remarkable man. The History of the volume is recorded on one of the fly-leaves in the following Letter:—"The Rev. John Rippon, D.D., Southwark, London. Rev. Sir, It having been suggested by my worthy friend Capt. T. Edwards that it would probably gratify your curiosity to be possessed of some Original Manuscript of my Great Grandfather the Rev. Solomon Stoddard, I beg leave to present you the one annexed, being almost the only one, which has escaped the ravages of time. This is his sermon, which might as well have been called an Oration, as it is rather political and historical than religious.

837* Smith (Cotton Mather, A.M. Pastor in Sharon) A good Minister of Jesus Christ, nourished by the Word of Faith. A Sermon, at New-Preston [Conn.] at the Ordination of Rev. Mr. Jeremiah Day to the pastoral care of the Church in that place, Jan. 31, 1770. 30 pp. uncut 8*vo.* Hartford: Green & Watson, 1770

838 Snell (Thomas, A.M.) An Oration, pronounced at Brookfield, July 5, 1813: at the Celebration of the Independence of the United States of America, 30 pp. uncut
8*vo.* Brookfield: E. Merriam & Co. 1813

This historical Oration is not at all in the usual fourth-of-July-style, but is a clear and dispassionate resumé of the origin, progress, principles and prospects of the war of 1812, historically, chronologically and calmly stated according to the author's view. He deemed it out of place to crow over achievements, whilst the country was suffering under the principles of Jefferson and democracy against those of Washington and prosperity. The tract is indeed a good federalist history of the principles of the war of 1812.

839 Snell (Rev. Dr. Thomas) A Sermon, delivered on the last Sabbath in June, 1838, which completed the Fortieth year of his Ministry: containing a brief History of the Town, and especially of the Church and Parish, of North Brookfield, from 1798 to the present time, uncut, 55 pp.
8*vo.* Brookfield: E. and L. Merriam, 1838

The above is a valuable contribution to the local history of New England, and has an Appendix added of biographical, historical and statistical notes, filling pages 37 to 55.

Relating to the famous expedition of the Earl of Essex, Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Francis Drake, General Norriss and others in 1589, against Spain, in which Raleigh, whose achievements were marvellous, used to declare that all he gained was a lame leg. From the circumstance that Raleigh's name is not mentioned and some internal evidence, it has been claimed that this plain unvarnished tale is by Raleigh himself, the real chief of the expedition.

4to. Impressa por Carlos Whittingham en la Ciudad de Londres a costa de Enrique Estevans de Vermont, 24 junio, 1854

Edited, with Epistle Dedicatory of two pages to Dr. Reinhold Pauli, from the original manuscript of the Second Admiral of the Indies, then in the possession of Henry Stevens, and printed at the Chiswick Press. The young King of Spain, Charles, had asked Columbus respecting the benevolent scheme of Las Casas for civilizing and christianizing the Indians of Terra Firma, urging the Admiral's co-operation. This is Don Diego Columbus's favourable reply. This and the next five lots form an interesting series of Spanish historical tracts, printed uniformly in black letter, similar to that of the Las Casas tracts of 1552, and of the same sized page. The six volumes are all bound neatly in paste-grained roan of six different colours, with different side gold ornaments, and different fancy end papers. Only 100 copies of each were printed.

Las Casas, who had taken great interest in the welfare and christianizing of the Indians, had been promised an extensive grant of land on the coast of Terra Firma, between Darien and Trinidad, for the purpose of founding a colony for improving and civilizing the natives. In this important and long autograph letter he repeats his request to Charles the Fifth through his Chancellor, and urges his benevolent scheme. It was printed in 1854 from the original autograph manuscript then in the possession of Mr. Stevens. In the epistle dedicatory to Arthur Helps, Esq., a full account of the subject of the letter is given in English.

883 Stevens (Henry, of Vermont, Editor of) PARESÇER o Determinaciō de los señores theologos de Salamanca sobre de que no deben ser baptizados los yndios sin examinaciō estrecha de su voluntad y concepto del dho sacramento. Año de Mdxli. [In Latin] 14 pp. black letter, morocco 4to. Impressum Londini apud Carolum Whittingham, impensis Henrici Stevens, 1854

This important manuscript was edited by Henry Stevens, and privately printed for him at the Chiswick Press in 1854 from the original, then in his possession. It is dated the first of July, 1541. Las Casas and others had complained much of the ill-treatment and slavery of the Indians by the Spaniards in America, until finally Charles V referred the grand question to the Faculty of the University of Salamanca, whether Indians who had been baptized could be made slaves? This curious document is the official answer, signed by the Dean and all the Faculty. The volume has a long explanatory dedication in English to Sir Thomas Phillipps.

First privately printed from the original manuscript in 1854, then in the possession of Mr. Stevens. It is not dated, but was manifestly written in 1541 or 1542, when the Emperor and Las Casas were getting up the famous New Laws of the Indies, printed in 1543. The Emperor had asked Cortes's advice respecting the encomiendas and the treatment of the Indians in Mexico. This is the Conqueror's sensible reply. The volume is dedicated in a long epistle in English to Leopold von Ranke, the historian, in which dedication is given an abstract of this important historical document in English.

Edited by Henry Stevens, of Vermont, in 1854, and beautifully printed at the Chiswick Press in black letter, uniform with Las Casa's tracts of 1552, from the original unpublished manuscript then in his possession. The MS. is not dated, but was probably written in 1554. Dedicated to Sir Frederick Madden.

8vo. London, printed by Charles Whittingham, Chiswick Press, 1866

These four Catalogues, bound in one volume, comprising about 750 large 8vo pages in double columns, uniform with the "Bibliotheca Grenvilliana," describing about 20,000 volumes, were printed by Whittingham on fine toned paper, in the best style of the Chiswick Press. At the beginning are inserted the rules for Cataloguing Books, Maps, Music, &c., adopted in the British Museum, first printed in 1842, but now revised, with additions, alterations and amendments to 1862. There is also added a detailed description of the classification of books on the shelves in the British Museum. These Catalogues contain all the American Books that had got into the British Museum Library to the beginning of 1857. The four volumes in one, cloth, priced at 25s., but never regularly published.

to distribute it. On the back of the title of this copy, in his own hand is this note: "The Author's distance from the press prevented a seasonable correction of typographical errors. The Reader is desired to correct." This copy has about 100 corrections in the hand of the author himself.

911 STILES (Ezra, D.D. President of Yale College) The United States elevated to Glory and Honor. A Sermon before His Excellency Jonathan Trumbull, Governor, and the Gen. Assembly of the State of Connecticut, at Hartford, the Anniversary Election, 8th May, 1783, 99 pp. fine copy, uncut and scarce
8*vo.* New Haven: Thomas and Samuel Green, 1783

This marvellous book called a SERMON is really a history. It fills nearly 100 closely printed pages. The learned President had been long cramming for an ecclesiastical and civil record of America, and during the war had collected extensively, materials for a political history of the United States. As soon as the War was over he was invited by the Legislature of Connecticut to give the Anniversary Election Sermon. His heart enlarged with the occasion. It was a grand opportunity to fire the first historical gun of Peace. The work is a full and condensed account of the origin, progress, standing and prospects of the United States. A most important and opportune work, but never fully appreciated, being considered out of place and overdone. There are many jokes afloat respecting the size, weight and stuffing of the 'Sermon.' On one occasion shortly after the Peace, the President, Professor and Students at Yale were endeavouring, but in vain, to make a balloon go up in honour of the occasion. There was something wrong with the gas and the President asked one of the Students what was to be done to make the balloon rise? The reply was, 'I think, Mr. President, if you would throw in one of your Election Sermons it might go up.' However, the 'Sermon' has gone up since, and though weighted as a Sermon it is really one of the best early histories of the United States.

912 Stiles (Ezra, President of Yale College) The United States Elevated to Glory and Honor, another copy, good

913 Stiles (Ezra, D.D. LL.D. President of Yale College) A Sermon at the Ordination of Henry Channing, A.M. to the pastoral Charge of the Congregational Church in the City of New London, May 17, 1787, 41 pp. uncut and scarce
8*vo.* New-London: T. Green, 1787

On page 30 is an important historical and biographical note respecting the Congregational Church of New London, Connecticut, tracing the Succession of "The Bishops of the Congregational Church of that City" from 1647 to 1776.

914 Stillman (Samuel, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Boston) A Sermon preached to the Ancient and Hon. Artillery Company in Boston, New England, June 4, 1770, the Anniversary of the Election of Officers, 32 pp. uncut
8*vo.* Boston: N.E. Edes and Gill, 1770

A considerable portion of this Anniversary Essay is directed to the operations of the Militia of Massachusetts, and the successes of the New England troops against the French and Indians, particularly the Siege of Louisbourg, the expenses of the New England expedition, the Boston Massacre, &c.

915 Stillman (Samuel, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Boston) Young People called upon to consider, that for their Conduct here, etc. A Sermon to Young People, May 8, 1771, in Boston, 31 pp. 8*vo.* Boston: John Boyles, 1771

916 Stillman (Samuel, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Boston) Sermon before the Council and House of Representatives of Massachusetts, at Boston, N.E. May 26, 1779, 38 pp. uncut
8*vo.* Boston, N.E. T. and J. Fleet, 1779

This is a strong political and Republican Essay on the text, "Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's," &c. 'Cæsar' in the United States is the Congress and the Magistrate.

918 Stillman (Samuel, D.D.) An Oration, July 4th, 1789, at the request of the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, in Celebration of the Anniversary of American Independence, 30 pp.
8*vo.* Boston: B. Edes & Son, 1789

This is no common fourth-of-July utterance, but a well-written historical and political address, full of instructive lessons of history, and encouraging predictions for the future of the United States, winding up with Bishop Berkeley's prophetic verses, ending with, "Time's noblest offspring is the last."

919 Stillman (Samuel, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Boston) Thoughts on the French Revolution. A Sermon, delivered Nov. 20, 1794: Being the Day of Annual Thanksgiving, 27 pp. 8*vo.* Boston: Manning & Loring, 1795

A political disquisition upon the state of republican contented and flourishing America, in contrast with the lessons taught by the French Revolution.

920 STODDARD (Rev. Solomon, Minister of Northampton, Massachusetts) One hundred and forty-seven Autograph Manuscript Sermons, neatly written in microscopic characters and bound in a small duodecimo volume of 300 pages, of which there are blank spaces equal to 80 full pages

That is 147 full Sermons occupy only about 220 full pages, the writing being so very minute, that but few persons have eyes sharp enough to read a line, yet by magnifying it one sees how plain and beautiful is the handwriting. The Volume is in the original primitive New England sheepskin binding: and is a wonderful production. Mr. Stoddard was one of the most prominent of the Ministers of New England, born in Boston 1643, graduated at Harvard College in 1662, and was ordained at Northampton, Mass. in 1672, where he preached most of the time till his death in 1729, aged 85. In 1727 his grandson Jonathan Edwards became his colleague. He was an author of eminence; and this little volume is a remarkable relic or memorial of a remarkable man. The History of the volume is recorded on one of the fly-leaves in the following Letter:—"The Rev. John Rippon, D.D., Southwark, London. Rev. Sir, It having been suggested by my worthy friend Capt. T. Edwards that it would probably gratify your curiosity to be possessed of some Original Manuscript of my Great Grandfather the Rev. Solomon Stoddard, I beg leave to present you the one annexed, being almost the only one, which has escaped the ravages of time. I am, Sir, with the most profound respect, your very obedient servant, Solomon Stoddard, jn. Northampton, Massachusetts, Sept. 13, 1813."

Though this very rare book was written in the spirit of an unappreciated man it is full of information, and is perhaps one of the most important books for the early history of Medicine in the American Colonies, especially Virginia. Old Dr. Bannerman of Middlesex County, Virginia, wrote to his correspondent in Edinburgh to send out to him a youth competent to become his medical assistant. Young Tennent was accordingly sent in 1727 in his 17th year. Dr. B. dying soon after his assistant became a practicing physician at the age of 18. He soon became acquainted with the uses of the "Seneca rattle-snake root," and being of an inquisitive mind applied this medicine not only to bites of rattlesnakes but in curing those diseases which poison the blood somewhat in the manner of rattlesnake venom. This invention was announced by the publication of a little book at Williamsburg in 1736, entitled "An Essay on the Pleurisy," reprinted in Phil. and New York. So sanguine was he that he bought up large quantities of snake root for use in Virginia and sent quantities to London. The next year, 1737, he came to Europe to announce his discoveries and reap the rewards, bringing letters from Governor Spotswood and others to Dr. Meade and Sir Hans Sloane and many more. The young man was not received with the warmth he expected in London, though he was by no means neglected. He next proceeded with recommendations to Edinburgh, and was again disappointed by not receiving a Medical Degree. While there he published his Epistle to Dr. Mead, 8vo. 1738, which was reprinted there in 1742. But his circumstances were such that he was obliged to return to Virginia. Out of money and in debt, his friends the Governor and Council recommended his case as a benefactor of mankind to the Burgesses for some suitable reward out of the public chest. At first the House declined, but on second application of the Council voted him £100 currency. The Doctor expected £1000 or £2000, and hence withdrew from Virginia, and, returning to London, applied to the Admiralty to be sent to the West India fleet. Dr. Tennent's books are rare and interesting.

8vo. Boston, Monroe & French, 1811

The historian will probably find no more trustworthy mirror of the times, the War of 1812, than in these political Sermons. They breathe the spirit of the age and are the voice of the people, though perhaps clothed in phrase somewhat too shoppy. "Sermons" and "Discourses" in New, are often Orations, Essays or Lectures in Old England. Nevertheless they are often the best materials of history and biography.

This is the best book on the Spanish Rules of Trade to the West Indies and America we have. The translation of it by Capt. John Stevens published in English about 1700, purporting to be complete, is only an abridgment, but it has now become of prime importance for indicating the source of many errors that have crept into the English History of Spanish affairs in America. This original work should now cast Stevens' abstract and all its faults into the shade.

1055 VIRGINIA. THE ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT RECORDS OR ENTRY BOOKS OF THE COLONY OF VIRGINIA for five years, 1752-1757, during the Administration of Lt. Governor ROBERT DINWIDDIE, containing upwards of 950 separate documents and letters in 630 large and closely written folio pages comprising above 6,300 folios, enough to fill if printed (and every scrap should be printed) 3 large octavo volumes, the size of Sparks's Franklin; including upwards of SIXTY letters (many confidential and of great historical importance) from the 'Old Governor' to his youthful Friend GEORGE WASHINGTON, the 'Widow's Son;' and no less than EIGHTEEN LONG AND ORIGINAL AUTOGRAPH LETTERS OF WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOR DINWIDDIE, AMONG THE EARLIEST KNOWN FROM HIS PEN, written between March 9, 1754, and May 2, 1756, when he was but 22 to 25 years of age folio. 1752-1758

These original and private Records of the Governor of Virginia were among his own papers brought to England early in 1758. What became of the Colony's Records of this period is not known. From the Colonial Calendar lately published at Richmond they do not appear to exist in Virginia; and only a very small proportion of them is preserved in the Public Record Office in London. These volumes therefore fill the hyatus in the Virginia Archives which so much distressed Chief Justice Marshall, Henning and others. They are of the highest historical value, comprising as they do, the Governor's Letter-Books, Correspondence, Speeches and Messages to and from the House of Burgesses, Charges to the Grand Jury, etc. during the most eventful period of Virginian History, the quinquennial that brought out WASHINGTON and the many other Virginia officers, patriots and statesmen, schooled them in the 'Old French War' of 1753-1760, and drilled them for the Union of the Colonies, and the Struggle for National Independence twenty years later. No historian has hitherto given us anything like a trustworthy account of the pioneering operations of Virginia, her marvellous energy in protecting the Western frontiers and arousing the neighbouring Colonies from their 'lethargic supineness' for two or three years before and for some months after BRADDOCK'S DEFEAT, the 9th July, 1755. The story is fully told in these Virginia Papers. Dinwiddie and Virginia, from very dearth of materials, have hitherto by historians been unjustly shunted, misrepresented and set aside in favor of other colonies, other leaders, and other campaigns. Dinwiddie, however, sooner or later must stand forth on the page of history as the honoured and enterprising champion of the Old Dominion, the promoter of the Union of the Colonies, the patron and firm friend of young GEORGE WASHINGTON, and the prime mover against the French and their encroachments on the Ohio and elsewhere. A new chapter of Virginia's history drawn from these Papers (long lost but authentic materials), must eventually raise 'the Mother of Presidents' to her high and true rank among the Original Thirteen Colonies.

We trust that the quick-eyed historian will perceive by the following very brief analysis of them, that these papers will restore Dinwiddie to his proper niche, and enable Virginia to resume her Colonial leadership; for they are to the modern history of that Colony what the old Records of the Virginia Company of 1607-1624, now preserved in the Library of Congress, are to the 'Ould Virginia' of Smith, Dale, Gates, Delaware and Yeardly. Those are corner stones of Colonial history. These are the foundations of the story of the American Republic. The Records then should go back to Old Virginia; but they would not be out of place by the side of the Declaration of Independence and the 257 volumes of Washington's writings in the Department of State; or the Record Books of the Virginia Company in the Congress Library; or by Houdon's Statue of Washington in the Capitol at Richmond; or near 'Stuart's unfinished Head' and the 300 volumes bearing Washington's Autographs in the Boston Athenæum; or as companions to the 'Farewell Address' in the Lenox Library; or with the Washington Relics in the largest and best of the State Libraries, at Albany; or in the Public Record Office of London next to the original autograph of Washington's Journal to the Ohio; or, last not least, to stand in the Grenville Library, British Museum, next to the original portraits and paintings of the Indians of Virginia, executed by Governor John White in 1585-86, for Sir Walter Raleigh, and engraved in 1590 by Theodore De Bry. Virginia, the United States, and the Mother Country are equally interested in the historical materials contained in these Records. Washington's Papers fell into the hands of the French at Braddock's Defeat, but these Papers supply many of the deficiencies occasioned by that loss. As to quantity, there are about 75 addresses, messages, speeches and charges to the House of Burgesses and the Grand Jury, 400 letters of Gov. Dinwiddie to various officers in the military service, and 475 to the Governors of other Colonies, the ministry, friends, banker, London agent, etc.; making in all about 950 separate Documents, addressed as follows to some 150 different bodies and individuals :—

May 27, 1754. Great Meadows. Received warning of La Force's Party of 50 men.

May 29, 1754. Great Meadows. In answer to letter of 25th. Justifying former statements as to bad pay and hardships. Account of the engagement with Jumonville, May 28, and capture of Drouillon and La Force with their whole party.

Dinwiddie wrote to Washington May 25th (see Record Books) and after remonstrating about the discontent and dissatisfaction of the other officers as to their pay and status, continues "Now Col. W: I shall more particularly answer wt "relates to Yr Self, & I must begin with expressing both concern & surprize, to find "a Gent. whom I so particularly consider'd, & from whom I had so great expectats. "& Hopes, appear so differently from himself, & give me leave to say mistakenly as "I think, concuring with Complaints in general so ill founded. I am sensible of "Yr Difficulties & You may believe I shall not let Your merit pass unnotic'd. I "believe You sincerely attach'd to Yr Country's Wellfare & Prosperity, wch You "know very much depends on the Success of Your present Expeditn. & this I per-"suade myself will sweeten the Toils, that You will hereafter reflect on with "Pleasure & engage You to think of nothing less than resigning Yr Comd. or "countenancing in any sort the Discontent that cd. never be more unseasonable "or pernicious than at present," &c.

Washington replies on the 29th. "To answer your Honour's Letter of ye 25th "by Mr. Birney. I shall begin with assuring you, that nothing was further from "my intention than to recede, tho' I then press'd and still desire that my services "may be voluntary rather than on the present Pay. I am much concerned that "your Honour should seem to charge me with ingratitude for your generous, and "my undeserved favours, for I assure you Honble. Sir, nothing is a greater stranger "to my Breast, or a Sin that my soul more abhor's than that black and detestable "one, Ingratitude. I retain a true sense of your kindnesses, and want nothing but "opportunity to give testimony of my willingness to oblige as far as my Life or "fortune will extend." After discussing sundry details as to the pay and sentiments of his brother officers he continues "I would not have your Honour imagine from "this, that I have said all these things to have the Pay increas'd—but to justify "myself, and shew your Honour that our complaints are not frivolous, but are "founded upon strict Reason: for my own part, it is a matter almost indifferent "whether I serve for full pay, or as a generous Volunteer; indeed, did my circum-"stances corrispond with my Inclination, I shd not hesitate a moment to prefer "the Latter: for the motives that lead me here were pure and noble. I had no "view of acquisition but that of Honour, by serving faithfully my King and "Country." The second four pages of this remarkable Letter are devoted to a modest account of his engagement of the previous day with the French, telling how De Jumonville the leader and nine others were killed, and Druillon and La Force with the remainder of the party taken prisoners.

May 29, 1754. Great Meadows. To Colonel Fry, asking for immediate reinforcements.

May 29, 1754. Great Meadows. Letter to Dinwiddie, with the French Prisoners. "The bearer hereof Monsieur Druillong with Monsieur La Force."

June 10, 1754. Disputes as to priority of Virginian and King's Officers. Imperfect, wants a sheet or leaf.

Aug. 20, 1754. Alexandria. Martial or Civil Law. Deserters. Bad pay, &c Commission not signed.

Aug. 20, 1754. Alexandria. Recommending Mr. Wright for a Commission. Complaining of Mr. Campbell being appointed his Deputy at half his salary.

Oct. 11 to 14, 1755. Winchester. State of the Country. Bad Discipline. Apathy of people and officers. Urges Martial Law.

Oct. 11, 1755. To Andrew Montour. Inviting him and his family and friendly Indians to come and reside among the Inhabitants.

Jan. 13, 1756. Alexandria. Major Lewis sent to Augusta County to command against the Shawaneese. Building forts on Paterson River and suggests others. Wants cloathing, &c.

Jan. 14, 1756. Alexandria. Disputes as to the providing the Maryland and Carolina Companies with Virginia stores and priority of Captain Dagworthy. Urges putting Virginia Regiment on the Establishment. Asks leave to go and consult General Shirley at Boston.

April 16, 1756. Winchester. Disappointed at not getting men to scour the neighbouring Mountains. Plan for raising and maintaining Regiment of 2,000 men as authorised by the vote of Assembly of £20,000. Asks for Commission for his brother.

8vo. A Paris, A l'Oliuier de Pierre l'Huillier, 1582

This second edition, in octavo, with the splendid little elaborate woodcut map called for on folio 4 of the First Book is of excessive rarity. The map here is a photo-lithographic facsimile. The map is so rare that we have met with only two copies of it.

1057 VOS (JAN) ARAN EN TITVS, of Wraak en Weerwraak: Treurspel van Jan Vos. Den vijfden Druk, op nieus overzien en verbetert. A to L in fours, including frontispiece, fine copy, in vellum, excessively scarce 4to. t'Aemsteldam, Jacob Lescaille, 1656

This rare Dutch Drama, of which the first edition was in 1641, seems to bear a close resemblance to Shakspeare's Titus Andronicus. The Characters or Dramatis Personæ are almost identical, and the scenes are similar, sufficiently so to give this play a place in a Shakspeare collection.

folio. Amstelrodami, ex Officina Cornelij Nicolaj, 1598

This is the Journal kept by William Lodewycks of the first expedition of the Dutch to the East Indies in 1595, under the command of Admiral Cornelis Houtman. The success of this Voyage gave a new turn to Navigation and maritime enterprise. It set the Dutch wild for Eastern trade. The impulse given by Linschot's wonderful book was first realized in this Voyage, and its success aroused the London Merchants to follow suit in 1599 with a combination which resulted in the English East India Company.

4*to. Nürnberg, in Verlegung Christof. Riegels,* 1679

This important compilation of the various voyages and accounts of Old Greenland and New Greenland or Spitzbergen is taken chiefly from La Mothe Le Vayer, published in French in 1647 and 1663. To which are added the accounts of Frobisher and others to the West, & the early voyages to Nov. Zemla. But the most important and least accessible are the accounts of the voyages of the Danish Jan Munk to Hudson's Straits and Bay, where he wintered in New Denmark on the west side of Hudson Bay north of Nelson River.

4to. t'Amstelredam, Voor Joost Hartgerts, 1648

The intrepid Van den Broeck made many voyages to or towards the East. I, in 1605-1606 to Cape Verde. II, in 1607-1609 to Angola and Congo. III, and IV, in 1609-1612 to Angola with a description of Loango. Between 1613 and 1630 he made several other still more important voyages to the East Indies, and performed much public service in firmly establishing the Dutch, in their trading enterprises in the East. See lot 1039 for another copy of this rare book.

4to. t'Amstelredam, Voor Joost Hartgersz, 1652

This second edition of Hartgert's with the five beautiful copper-plates inserted in the text with type-metal borders is far rarer than his other edition. The voyage of l'Heremite ends on page 64, and Madriga's account of Peru occupies the last 8 pages.

4to. t'Amsterdam, voor Jacob Benjamin, Boeckverkoper op't Water, 1667

This rare and important book is perhaps the most comprehensive and authentic we have relating to the war of 1664 between England and the United Provinces, which ended in the TREATY OF BREDA, by which New York or New Nederland was ceded to the English. This war also terminated the active career of the old Dutch West India Company and gave the English supremacy in North America—a supremacy, however, which had to be battled for again with the French in 1756. The illustrations are excellent. The map illustrating the exploits of the Dutch Fleet within the mouth of the Thames is curious. In the folding sheet is a compartment engraving, well executed, representing the signing of the Treaty of Breda, resembling the famous picture by Terburg now in the National Gallery. The characters, the furniture, and the room are similar, but the arrangement differs.

This is one of the earliest and best disquisitions after the conclusion of the war and the negotiations for Peace, in which are calmly considered "the Feelings, Manner, and Principles which led to this great National Event" [The Declaration of Independence]. It breathes the spirit of the times.

At the end is an APPENDIX in which is given an important list of the Discourses delivered on this Anniversary from 1769 to 1820, With an indication of all those that have not been printed. These Orations are almost all historical and important, but it is essential to the future historian to have the originals or first editions at hand, to consult, from the fact that many of the New England Orators have ventured to use the pruning hook and the polisher too freely in collecting and republishing their works in after life. Times and opinions change, but the "Orator of the day" has no right to slide his changing sentiments down to posterity. What is written in this way is booked for prosterity.

The picture of the social and political distress of America in 1774, and especially of New England, is here drawn by a master hand. With such harangues from the Pulpit, it is no wonder that the militia of the country were ready to meet the regulars at Lexington and Concord the next Spring.

1119 WELDE (Thomas) A Short Story, another copy, rather closer cut but with the autograph of WHITE KENNETT on the title page, calf extra by F. Bedford 1644

This autograph of White Kennett suggests his Bibliotheca Primordia Americana, a handsome 4to. volume, published in 1713. He was a great collector of Books on America, and it has generally been supposed that he left his large collection to the Society for propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. But on reference it is found that he only offered to give his American collection to the society in case they would provide suitable rooms for it. The society did not and hence the books were dispersed. But his main library of Miscellaneous Books was left to the Cathedral of Peterborough, where it is still carefully preserved.

In the early part of 1644 the Rev. William Rathban published a severe criticism on the Church Ways in New England, entitled, "A brief Narrative of the Opinions and Practices of the Churches lately established in New England. By W. R." This rev. gentleman had never been in New England, but obtained his not very comprehensive view of that distant country from the top of a pile of books only. On the other hand Welde had been nearly ten years in Roxbury, now a part of Boston, with the renowned John Eliot as his colleague, and in 1639, with Eliot, Mather and others had made and published the New England version of the Psalms. In 1641 he and Hugh Peters had returned to England as Agents of the General Court. Three years later this opportunity of ventilating his knowledge and experience occurred, and he was successful.

1133 WEST (Samuel, D.D. Pastor of the First Church of Christ in New Bedford) ESSAYS on Liberty and Necessity; in which the true nature of Liberty is stated and defended; and the principal Arguments used by Mr. Edwards, and others, for Necessity, are considered in two Parts. Part II, 96 pp. uncut and scarce
8*vo.* Newbedford, Mass. John Spooner, 1795

Dr. Samuel West, of New Bedford, was perhaps one of the most sound and logical thinkers of New England. Whoever is sufficiently interested in metaphysics to read Jonathan Edwards on the Will, ought also to read this, his shrewd and straightforward critique. The First Part was published separately two years earlier.

1134 WEST (Samuel, D.D. Pastor of the First Church of Christ in Newbedford) Essays on Liberty and Necessity; in two Parts, uncut. Part I, 48 pp. Part II, 96 pp.
8*vo.* Newbedford, Mass. John Spooner, 1795

Splendid copy of both parts. Part I, the author informs us, was struck off in 1793 in Boston, and in a few months was out of print. "A second impression is now [1795] offered to the public: which, with the Second Part, it is hoped will meet as welcome a reception."

This Dr. West was also a distinguished New England metaphysician and succeeded Dr. Jonathan Edwards in his pastoral charge of the Houssatonnoc Indians of Stockbridge, Massachusetts, and their white neighbours. He criticised Edwards' writings; and in his own severely handled his namesake Dr. Samuel West, being his very antipode in all reasonings respecting the cause and effect of volition, and other equally abstruse subjects of metaphysical warfare.

This is a public Notice that the capital or stock of the Dutch West-India Company is proposed to be increased by one-third. See Asher, No. 71, and Trömel, No. 143, this being the same copy described by both.

1139 WEST-INDIA COMPANY. Nader Odre ende Reglement, etc. (relative to certain Rules & regulations of Commerce for Free Trade in Wood, Tobacco, Cotton, etc. in the Brasels, Oranoco, Carthagena, Honduras, Campeche, Golf of Mexico, Florida, &c.) black letter, folio, broadside (folded) calf extra by F. Bedford (Jan. 6, 1635)

Perhaps the only copy known, being the one described by Trömel, No. 151. These flimsey posters or broadsides like the present, are frequently of the utmost importance in the details of history in fixing dates and localities with precision.

1140 WEST-INDIA COMPANY. Aenwysinge: Datmen vande Oost en West-Indische Compagnien, een Compangie dient te maken. Mitgaders Twintich Consideratien op de Trafyque, Zeevaert en Commertie deser Landen, Concordiâ res paruæ crescunt, 18 leaves not numbered, black letter, fine clean copy, vellum

4to. Boston: Printed by John Foster, 1680

About this time the good people of Boston, and indeed the whole of New England, felt themselves afflicted by the hand of God. The Indians were in rebellion; the soldiers were not forthcoming; drunkenness and its attendant sins were on the increase; while the churches were not so well attended. The "Pastors" therefore got together and renewed their covenant with God for themselves and their flocks. This sermon was one of the first in which the 'new way' was pointed out, and therefore very curious and instructive.

1226 WISDOM (THE) AND POLICY of the French in the Construction of their Great Offices, so as best to answer the Purposes of extending their Trade and Commerce and enlarging their Foreign Settlements. With Observations on Disputes between the English and French Colonists in America. Title and 133 pp. 8*vo. London: R. Baldwin*, 1755

This rare and valuable book seems to have escaped the notice of the historians of the old French War in America. It is divided into 3 chapters: 1, on the Policy and designs of the French from an English point of view. 2, The motives for a Board of Trade in France, the check on the public officers, and the general view of Commerce with the settlements in America; and 3, The designs of the French in forming connections with the Indians, extending territories in America, in lake Champlain, New York, on the Ohio, &c. &c.

8*vo. Boston: J. Boyles*, 1772

Besides the 'Vindication' this volume contains 'The Churches Quarrel espoused,' and other papers, including 'New England's Lamentations,' &c. as well as the Reasons for adhering to the Platform, the Confession of Faith, &c. Prior to Jonathan Edwards old John Wise was unquestionably the best and safest writer in New England. He kept the watch-tower for years in New England, and from time to time issued his powerful manifestoes against the straying of his Ecclesiastical brethren from the true Platform.

LOT 1269

MR HENRY STEVENS'S FRANKLIN COLLECTION

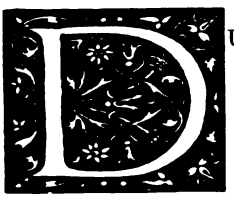
OF MANUSCRIPTS AND PRINTED BOOKS ALL WRITTEN BY OR IN SOME WAY RELATING TO

DR BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,

Comprising nearly THREE THOUSAND different Manuscripts, a large portion of them Autographic, and nearly Three Hundred volumes of printed books of and concerning Franklin, among them almost all of the earliest and rarest ones known; described on this and the following 29 pages.

The whole to be offered in ONE LOT (if not previously disposed of) at the upset price of

SEVEN THOUSAND POUNDS.



URING THIRTY YEARS MR HENRY STEVENS HAS LOST NO opportunity of adding to his collection of materials for the LIFE, TIMES AND WORKS OF FRANKLIN.

Sooner or later everything saleable is believed to turn up in London, the centre of money and mutability. Here it is said most do congregate historical materials and historic doubts. At all events the present collection is a sample of what one may achieve in a single generation in London by good luck, persistence, vigilance and a dogged weakness for sacrificing other worldly gains to a pet object. Rightly or wrongly this has been done and the results are here for the first time summarized and set forth.

Has the enthusiastic collector 'paid too dear for his whistle'? In bringing it together he has exhausted his three score, and locked up his 'staff of life.' Whether foolish or wise let another generation pronounce the verdict. The intrinsic value must be tested and measured, like everything else, by posterity's judgment of the extent and real historic importance of the collection. There is probably no man in all history playing a prominent part, who has been more unfortunate in his record than BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. He was as careless as Shakspeare of his literary and scientific reputation. He was too busy in making history ever to overtake himself and find time to sit down quietly to record it. His pen was always on the wing, but his chickens never came home to roost. When once on the road to fame, he never more had a home of his own, but always lived for the public, the prey of interested friends, greedy editors, hungry publishers, enterprising booksellers and such like human parasites.

Of all his many books published during his lifetime, Franklin never revised a proof sheet or saw one of them through the press himself. He invented, but secured no patent: he wrote but took no copyright. Yet notwithstanding he was proud of his achievements in science, in literature, in politics and in diplomacy; and he ever petted his parasites. But with all this liberality and apparent carelessness he was parsimonious of his papers though unmethodical in their preservation. He took copies of everything, and trusted loyally to posterity to see him correctly posted into the archives of two hemispheres. But posterity though honest is sometimes dilatory and unfortunate. It is well known that Franklin's 'Papers,' by his will, became the patrimony of his grandson. It has many times been asserted, and sometimes believed, that that grandson, with some dishonorable motive or purpose, made away with, destroyed, or mutilated the better part of them. These charges still flourish and have been reiterated over and over again, with increasing gusto, for the last eighty years, until they begin to dwarf the real and true history of Franklin and his Times. The Papers, however, still exist, and Truth, as ever, will prevail.

To help kill once more these groundless charges, the writer with his Franklin Collection on his shoulders rises to explain. Franklin died ninety years ago. He lived eighty-five years, and left to the world his Autobiography down to his fifty-first year, a masterpiece which makes every one regret that he broke off in the very middle of his manhood. What do we know? What can we learn of the last thirty-three years of that eventful life, from 1757 to 1790? Nearly twenty years of that time were passed in England as agent of Pennsylvania and other Colonies, staving off or shaping the inevitable crisis of American Independence. Nine years he passed in France as Minister Plenipotentiary of the Congress during the Revolutionary War for establishing that same American Independency. In all these years, in which a new Nation was born and came of Age, Franklin more than any other one man living might have exclaimed with truth 'quorum pars magna fui,' but he never did. He left that egotistical classic expression to his coming and going associates, whose envy, malice and all uncharitableness were apparent to his keen eye, and rather amused than offended him. Nothing of this is reached in his Autobiography, but it is found in his unpublished letters with names and dates in full. Many a self-asserting artist has tried to fill out and complete Phidias's matchless, footless and handless figure of Theseus in the British Museum, but no one has yet succeeded. In like manner many an ambitious author has vainly endeavoured to piece out Franklin's Autobiography. The last state of that patch-work is even worse than the first, as one might expect, from the simple reason that the real materials of a Life of Franklin from the end of his Autobiography to the end of his career have been and are still inaccessible. What is more, no writer has for the last sixty years supposed or even suspected that the unpublished papers of Franklin are still in existence. Yet with the exception perhaps of the revised and polished Autobiography, they are fully equal in bulk and importance to what has already been printed. Hence as yet no biography of Franklin: and hence as yet no full and comprehensive history of the foundation and structure of the American Republic. But when this corresponding European portion is added, American History, thanks to Franklin and to France, will assume its due proportions.

This is not all. An important part of the history of the British American Colonies from a little before the acquisition of Canada to the Declaration of Independence: and of the United States from the beginning of the Revolution to the final ratification and adoption of the Federal Constitution, is mixed up and locked up in Franklin's unpublished papers. While the Colonial legislative Assemblies, and afterwards, the Continental Congress, were working out their great problems and achieving national independence beyond the Atlantic, Franklin, on this side, almost alone, was carrying on the counterpart of the great work, first in England, and afterwards in France. Congress sat with closed doors and left but meagre records, few of its Members being given to pen-work. Franklin on the contrary, sat and deliberated with pen in hand. But for the last sixty, nay ninety years, the main portion of his papers have by the hand of fortune or misfortune become 'things lost upon earth.' Hence American History pines for want of authentic materials. Peter Force, one of America's noblemen, undertook to remedy this misfortune by the publication of his American Archives, but when the Congress, through innate narrowness of party, had endeavoured to break the government contract with him, and had abandoned the effort in 1840, a single Secretary of State sat upon the enterprising historian, and, most unfortunately for American history, extinguished him and his great national work. Still Franklin, though he has been shunted into the cool shade of the Second Century of the Republic which he helped to found, survives, and the existence of his Papers is here formally announced and recorded.

From the time Franklin returned home from France in 1785, to the day of his death, the 17 April, 1790, much of his leisure from public business was occupied in selecting and arranging his papers. It was well known that before going to France in 1776, he deposited his literary and scientific treasures, up to that time, with his friend Mr Galloway. Mr Galloway joining the enemy not long after, the trunk containing the papers was broken open and the contents, scattered about the room in his empty house near Philadelphia, trodden upon, injured and probably partially destroyed. Much more, however, of these Papers was saved or recovered than is generally supposed. The Twyford portion of the Autobiography to 1731 fell into the hands of honest Abel James, who wrote the Doctor at Passy in 1782 urging its continuation. The 2d part was added in 1784, and the 3d to 1757 in 1788. Some of the Craven Street

Letter Books, with other and earlier papers, were also recovered, though many had been wet and injured. Some of them with dates as far back as 1728 are still visible witnesses of their rough treatment, neglect and narrow escapes. In his will Franklin, after disposing of a good part of his library, adds "The residue and remainder of all my books, manuscripts and papers, I do give to my grandson, William Temple Franklin." The Papers thus became the absolute property of his grandson, without qualification, direction or instructions as to disposition or publication. In the course of the year 1790 young Franklin came to London with the view of editing the Life and Works of his grandfather, and in some way realizing the value of the copyright by publication in English and other languages. He promptly announced his intention of immediately printing the Autobiography and other works in English. He had already written from Phil. 22 May, to M. le Veillard at Passy, announcing that his grandfather had left all his papers and manuscripts to him, and requesting him not to show any one that part of his Life which the Dr sent him some time before, lest it might be copied and published. As he had the original of the portion sent to M. le Veillard, it would not be necessary for him to return it then, but requested M. le V. to put it in an envelope, securely sealed and addressed to himself. This is clearly a sufficient proof that the Manuscript in M. le Veillard's hands was considered the property of Temple Franklin. In like manner it may be presumed he reclaimed and got possession of the other revised copy sent at the same time to the doctor's friends in London. M. de Rochefoucauld-Liancourt declared publicly that the doctor had sent his memoirs to M. le Veillard and himself, at the same time sending a duplicate of the revision to Dr Price and Mr Benjamin Vaughan of London. These facts are stated in the Eulogium which M. de Rochefoucauld delivered before the '89 Society' of Paris the 13 June, 1790, adding, "His Memoirs, Gentlemen, will be published as soon as we receive from America the additions he may have made to the manuscript in our possession; and we then intend to give a complete collection of his works." This assertion probably explains how the first portion of the Autobiography got into the hands of Buisson, the publisher, before the arrival of Temple Franklin's letter to M. le Veillard. Buisson's edition of the 'Mémoirs' (114) came out in the beginning of 1791. On the 21st of March following M. le Veillard published a protest against this publication and declared that he did not know how the translator became possessed of the Autobiography, and declared that it was not furnished by him. This announcement was necessary to vindicate himself in his trust to Temple Franklin. Prior to this an anonymous writer in London had issued as 'Printed and sold for the Author by A. Grant,' and others, Memoirs of the late Dr. Franklin (112) London, 1790. The doctor's old publishers, Henry (69), and Newberry (77), and Johnson (87, 88), and Dilly (108), were still in the market. Temple Franklin, seeing how matters stood, naturally felt aggrieved, and complained that the publishers were snatching the market from him, the rightful owner, and he became very properly exceedingly close and careful of his manuscripts. Two projects were in hand as early as the beginning of 1791 for reproducing by translation Buisson's volume, but in consequence of Temple Franklin's announcements they were both kept back nearly two years, and did not appear till the summer of 1793, one in one volume published by Parsons (121), and the other in two volumes published by Robinson (119 and 122). They are very different translations, but are both from the French of Buisson's pirated edition, itself a translation from Dr Franklin's English. Dr Price and Benjamin Vaugham were the editors of Robinson's edition. Price had died in 1791, but a letter of his is appended to the preface, in which he says that he had seen the Manuscript Autobiography to 1757, though the portion given in the French edition to 1731 is all that is published. The continuation had probably been reclaimed from Mr Vaughan. The plan of the work was changed during its suspension. The 'Essays, humorous, moral and literary,' were originally printed as volume I, and the Autobiography, with Dr Stuber's continuation as vol. II, but reversed by the letterings. Robinson's edition is far superior to Parsons'. There were three issues of Robinson's editions in a short time, and it was soon after reprinted in Dublin (120), Dundee (129), Edinburgh (139), New York (124 and 125), Salem (128) and many other places, while Parsons' edition was, we believe, never honored by a reprint, though it contains some things from the French that had not appeared when Buisson's work came out. It is still worth consulting. In the Advertisement is the following confession: "The Translator would have presented the world with this volume long since, had he not been restrained by a certain degree of delicacy, mingled with veneration, towards the family of this great man; for on being informed by a respectable bookseller in St Paul's Church-yard [Johnson? Franklin's prior publisher] that the works of Franklin were about to be published by his grandson, he with-held the present publication for several months, in expectation of that event." All these books become 'trade editions,' and thus the interest of the trade was against Temple Franklin and his proposed larger work. He not only found difficulty in procuring a publisher not interested in any of these rival works, but his expressed annoyance and disappointment were answered by gossiping inuendos and flings on account of his delay in fulfilling his announcements and gratifying the hungry public with an opportunity of reading the real Autobiography and the Doctor's other genuine and revised works. Meanwhile the trade was reaping good harvests in the small and nimble editions, as abundantly appears by the list of printed Frankliniana given further on (No. 1-204). This gossip at length took shape and culminated in positive charges of dishonorable conduct on the part of Temple Franklin, as given in the preface of Johnson's trade edition in 3 volumes, 1806. Johnson had been a publisher of Franklin's works for some thirty years, including Benjamin Vaughan's 4° and 8° editions of 1779, admitted to be with the approval of the Author, though the Doctor derived no profit from the publications. This edition is sometimes called Longman's, but it has been ascertained that the house of Longman had nothing to do with it beyond taking a 'trade share' in its publication. The work was fairly edited by Mr Marshall assisted by Benjamin Vaughan, who about that time removed to America. In the preface to volume one is found the following trade-protection cry in behalf of the generous public, containing in outspoken language the charges against Temple Franklin. We give it entire to show its true spirit.

"The character of Dr. Franklin, as a philosopher, a politician, and a moralist, is too well known to require illustration, and his writings, from their interesting nature, and the fascinating simplicity of their style, are too highly esteemed, for any apology to be necessary for so large a collection of them, unless it should be deemed necessary by the individual to whom Dr. Franklin in his will consigned his manuscripts: and to him our apology will consist in a reference to his own extraordinary conduct. In bequeathing his papers, it was no doubt the intention of the testator, that the world should have the chance of being benefited by their publication. It was so understood by the person in question, his grandson, who accordingly shortly after the death of his great relative, hastened to London, the best mart for literary property, employed an amanuensis for many months in copying, ransacked our public libraries that nothing might escape, and at length had so far prepared the works of Dr. Franklin for the press, that proposals were made by him to several of our principal booksellers for the sale of them. They were to form three quarto volumes, and were to contain all the writings, published and unpublished, of Franklin, with Memoirs of his Life, brought down by himself to the year 1757, and continued to his death by the legatee. They were to be published in three different languages, and the countries corresponding to those languages, France, Germany and England, on the same day. The terms asked for the copyright of the English edition were high, amounting to several thousand pounds, which occasioned a little demur; but eventually they would no doubt have been obtained. Nothing more, however, was heard of the proposals or the work, in this its fair market. The proprietor, it seems, had found a bidder of a different description in some emissary of government, whose object was to withhold the manuscripts from the world, not to benefit it by their publication; and they thus either passed into other hands, or the person to whom they were bequeathed received a remuneration for suppressing them. This at least has been asserted, by a variety of persons, both in this country and America, of whom some were at the time intimate with the grandson, and not wholly unacquainted with the machinations of the ministry; and the silence, which has been observed for so many years respecting the publication, gives additional credibility to the report. What the manuscripts contained, that should have excited the jealousy of government, we are unable, as we have never seen them, positively to affirm; but, from the conspicuous part acted by the author in the American revolution, and the wars connected with it, it is by no means difficult to guess; and of this we are sure, from his character, that no disposition of his writings could have been more contrary to his intentions or wishes. We have only to add, that in the present collection, which is probably all that will ever be published of the works of this extraordinary man, the papers are methodically arranged," etc. Dated April 7, 1806.

This farrago of suspicion, groundless charges, and boundless assumption would not have been quoted here but for its having been generally credited at the time, and quoted as 'good history' even down to the present day. In the Edinburgh Review of July 1806, this edition was fully noticed and the charges sifted. The reader is referred to that able article. Mr Bigelow has fortunately turned up some curious circumstances in this connection, by which it appears that in 1807 there was published in Paris The Argus or London Review, which periodical, on the 28th of March, reiterated these charges, on the responsibility of an article taken from the American Citizen, of New York, under date of 6 Sept. 1806, the substance of which, as given by Mr Bigelow, was "William Temple Franklin, without shame, without remorse, mean and mercenary, sold the sacred deposit, committed to his care by Dr. Franklin, to the British government. Franklin's works are therefore lost to the world." On seeing this column of the Argus, Mr Temple Franklin, who was then in Paris, the same day addressed a letter to the editor of the Argus, warmly and indignantly answering and disproving, to the satisfaction of the editor, every one of the 'falsehoods.' Three days later the Argus inserted Franklin's letter, with "We publish this letter with the greater pleasure as it contains a full and satisfactory answer to the calumnies circulated on his conduct," etc.; but it does not apparently satisfy Mr Bigelow who closes his summary of the matter (page 66, ed. 1879, vol. I) with these words: "Whatever impression this letter may have upon the mind of the reader of to-day, it is certain that it did not shake the general conviction of William Temple's contemporaries that he had yielded to influences anything but friendly to the memory of his grandfather or honorable to himself." Temple Franklin again referred to these foul aspersions on his conduct and character in the preface of his edition of the Life and Works of Franklin in 1818, but as he did not do it in the precise words, warmth and style of his Paris letter, the explanation of his delay in bringing out the work has been severely cavil'd at. The papers themselves exist in this collection, and they bear no thumb or finger marks of the British government. The condition and history of them abundantly prove the falsity of the charges both against Temple Franklin and the British government.

It is not to be denied that Temple Franklin's editions of the Life and Works of Dr Franklin in 1818 did not satisfy the craving public. More was expected. Very few of Dr Franklin's political writings during the nine years of diplomacy in Paris were published, and no one ever knew why, but many again jumped to the conclusion that they had been suppressed. Mr Bigelow again revives the discussion by bringing Jefferson himself on to the stand. He says, vol. II, page 253: "Unhappily, there is too good reason to believe that Wm. Temple Franklin took the same liberties with this precious document that he appears to have allowed himself to take with the Autobiography. My authority for these suspicions may be found in the following paragraph with which Thomas Jefferson closes his Autobiography: 'I left Monticello on the first of March, 1790, for New York. At Philadelphia I called on the venerable and beloved Franklyn. He was then on the bed of sickness from which he never rose. My recent return from a country in which he had left so many friends, and the perilous convulsions to which they had been exposed, revived all his anxieties to know what part they had taken, what had been their course, and what their fate. He went over all in succession, with a rapidity and animation almost too much for his strength. When all his inquiries were satisfied, and a pause took place, I told him I had learned with much pleasure that, since his return to America, he had been occupied in preparing for the world the history of his own life.' 'I cannot say much for that,' said he, 'but I will give you a sample of what I shall leave;' and he directed his little grandson (William Bache), who was standing by the bedside, to hand him a paper from the table to which he pointed. He did so; and the Doctor, putting it into my hands, desired me to take it and read it at my leisure. It was about a quire of folio paper, written in a large and running hand, very much like his own. I looked into it slightly, then shut it, and said I would accept his permission to read it, and would carefully return it. He said, 'No, keep it.' Not certain of his meaning, I again looked into it, folded it for my pocket, and said again, I would certainly return it. 'No,' said he, 'keep it.' I put it into my pocket, and shortly after took leave of him. He died on the 17th of the ensuing month of April; and as I understood that he had bequeathed all his papers to his grandson, William Temple Franklyn, I immediately wrote to Mr. Franklyn, to inform him I possessed this paper, which I should consider as his property, and would deliver it to his order. He came on immediately to New York, called on me for it, and I delivered it to him. As he put it into his pocket, he said carelessly, he had either the original or another copy of it, I don't recollect which. This last expression struck my attention forcibly, and for the first time suggested to me the thought that Dr. Franklyn had meant it as a confidential deposit in my hands, and that I had done wrong in parting from it. I have not yet seen the collection he published of Dr. Franklyn's works, and, therefore, know not if this is among them. I have been told it is not. It contained a narrative of the negotiations between Dr. Franklyn and the British Ministry, when he was endeavouring to prevent the contest of arms that followed. The negotiation was brought about by the intervention of Lord Howe and his sister, who, I believe, was called Lady Howe; but I may misremember her title. Lord Howe seems to have been friendly to America, and exceedingly anxious to prevent a rupture. His intimacy with Dr. Franklyn, and his position with the ministry, induced him to undertake mediation between them; in which his sister seemed to have been associated. They carried from one to the other, backwards and forwards, the several propositions, and answers, which passed, and seconded with their own intercessions the importance of mutual sacrifices, to preserve the peace and connection of the two countries. I remember that Lord North's answers were dry, unyielding in the spirit of unconditional submission, and betrayed an absolute indifference to the occurrence of a rupture, and he said to the mediators distinctly at last, that 'a rebellion was not to be deprecated on the part of Great Britain; that the confiscations it would produce would provide for many of their friends.' This expression was reported by the mediators to Dr. Franklyn, and indicated so cool and calculated a purpose in the ministry as to render compromise hopeless, and the negotiation was discontinued. If this is not among the papers published, we ask, what has become of it? I delivered it with my own hands into those of Temple Franklyn. It certainly established views so atrocious in the British government that its suppression would, to them, be worth a great price. But could the grandson of Dr. Franklyn be, in such degree, an accomplice in the parricide of the memory of his immortal grandfather? The suspension for more than twenty years of the general publication, bequeathed and confided to him, produced for a while hard suspicions against him; and if, at last, all are not published, a part of these suspicions may remain with some.—Ed."

Before commenting on this Jeffersonian diatribe, it may be well to refer to the Edinburgh Review's opinion on these wild statements of the quondam friend of Franklin and ex-President of the United States. In the Number for July, 1830, in a long review of Thomas Jefferson Randolph's edition of the Memoirs, Correspondence and Private Papers of Thomas Jefferson, 4 vols. London 1829, 8°, on page 503, the reviewer says "Jefferson had a fatal readiness of believing anything against an English minister or a Federalist. In the case of Mr Temple Franklin, he makes insinuations, and in that of Chief Justice Marshall, direct charges of a suppression of the truth, which would be no less inconsistent with honesty and history, than the most active invention of immediate untruths. The insinuations against Franklin's grandson is that he had sold to the English government a portion of Dr Franklin's memoirs, which would have established against them views so atrocious that 'its suppression would be worth to them a great price.' We do not wonder that the public curiosity, when defeated by a delay in the general publication which it could not understand, revenged itself in gossipping, especially if the reputation of the executor was not absolutely beyond the reach of such discreditable surmises. But in fact the paper referred to forms a prominent part of the Memoirs, as at last published by the grandson.

The reader may indeed look in vain for the declaration stated to have been made by Lord North—that 'a rebellion was not to be deprecated on the part of Great Britain ; that the confiscations it would produce, would provide for many of their friends.' This, we believe, will be the case simply because it is our firm opinion that Jefferson's passions have in this instance confused his recollections, and that no such declaration was ever made or stated. Any such statement is utterly inconsistent with Lord North's disposition ; it is in contradiction to the general character of the messages as reported ; and had any such wicked feeling escaped from the minister, we cannot believe that Lord Howe and his sister, whilst acting the part of generous mediators, would have been guilty of the gratuitous mischief of repeating it. Many things are printed in Franklin's posthumous collections which, if the English government had begun to buy, common prudence would have included in the purchase."

To this we need only add our opinion that it is useless to attempt to fathom, or troll for, Jefferson's motives in writing such contradictory and transparent misconception about so serious a matter. What he wrote in his journal is based on more than thirty years recollection. He tells a round story and quotes only three or four lines, and even these from memory. He had never seen Temple Franklin's edition, but had only heard that it did not contain his phantom. We would gladly let him off on the score of bad memory, were it not for his slow-scented followers who warp the truth by the very weight of reiteration. There can be no question about what the paper was. It was "An Account of the Negotiations in London for effecting a Reconciliation between Great Britain and the American Colonies," and was written by Franklin on board the Packet bound to Philadelphia in March, 1775. It fills about 80 pages of an ordinary printed octavo volume, equal in extent to more than one-third of the Autobiography, of which it should form a part. The original paper, in the autograph of Franklin, forms a part of the present Collection. It was fairly edited and printed by W. Temple Franklin, and now exists as a voucher against all comers. Its importance cannot well be over-estimated. The paper speaks for itself, and gives an honest verdict against the treacherous memory of Ex-President Jefferson. Jefferson must also have been mistaken about Temple Franklin's remark when he received the paper, as well as to the doctor's wish to have him retain it as a 'confidential deposit.' The fact appears to be that the Narrative was drawn up at sea, without the many original notes, letters and memoranda referred to in it. Blank spaces were left in the foolscap paper with memoranda 'here insert it.' Temple Franklin therefore had all the original 'insertions,' while Mr Jefferson had the Paper. The narrative reads well without these vouchers, but infinitely clearer with them. It was natural therefore that young Franklin should be anxious to recover the original narrative and put it safely in his pocket in order that the document might be complete. This paper with the original insertions is one of the gems of our Collection.

Let us make one more quotation, cut damp from a morning Newspaper, the Daily News of the 18th March, 1881. It is the last telling of the story of the suppressed Papers, and was probably intended as mere literary gossip :—

"There is rather a curious history attaching to the Franklin manuscripts which were offered to the American Congress the other day for the sum of 25,000 dollars [this is an error for 35,000]. The manuscripts were originally left to Benjamin Franklin's grandson, William Temple Franklin, and contain the secret history of the war, private negotiations, and many political anecdotes of the time, which would now of course be of great value, but which at the period of Franklin's death it was considered unwise to make public. The manuscripts were taken to England by William Temple Franklin, who, however, suppressed most of them, in consideration, it is said, of a sum paid to him by the British Government, and only published a portion of that part which consisted of the autobiography of his grandfather, and even this he greatly mutilated before making it public. The documents now offered to Congress are said to be the whole of the suppressed manuscripts which belonged to William Temple Franklin. If they have been preserved in their entirety, they are of course most valuable pieces of history, and should undoubtedly be in possession of the American Government. But there is some doubt as to whether they really are in perfect condition. The man who did not hesitate to mutilate the autobiography of Benjamin Franklin would scarcely be inclined to regard the remaining manuscripts with any great reverence, and it is quite possible that he may have taken liberties with them which greatly deteriorate, if they do not destroy, their historical value."

From what is said above and below, it is not needful here to say more than that the writer is misinformed as to 'the man who did not hesitate to mutilate the autobiography of Benjamin Franklin.' Franklin wrote the first part of his autobiography in 1771, bringing the narrative down to a little beyond his marriage in 1730. In 1784 at Passy, and in 1788 at Phil. he continued it down to 1757. He was urged by many friends after his return home in 1785 to go on and finish it to 1790. But he was ill, and crowded with work too much for his old age. He promised and promised, but failed to accomplish. He however revised, altered and amended what was already written and sent copies to Paris and to London, retaining the original draft, a good deal corrected. The 'mutilations' therefore were Dr Franklin's own revisions and amendments. He was anxious to improve it, and even asked his friend Benjamin Vaughan to look it over and suggest corrections, for he said, in his old age he had not confidence in his own judgment. Temple Franklin in 1790 brought the original draft to London and soon after exchanged it for the revised copy, both belonging to himself, deposited with M. le Veillard. He unquestionably did right in printing from Franklin's own corrected copy instead of the autographic original draft. That his old friend might possess a substantial memorial of Franklin the grandson left the original draft with the Veillard family. The writer saw it in 1852 at Amiens in the possession of M. de Senarmont, a relative by marriage of M. le Veillard, who had been beheaded in 1794. He spent two days with that amiable gentleman and his family, and was permitted to collate the autograph draft with Temple Franklin's printed text of the autobiography. The manuscript was then the undivided property of three persons. They were all there, but on consultation were not willing to sell it unless they could obtain a sum worth dividing. A small price therefore was no temptation. They did not then care to dispose of the other autograph papers or the portrait by Duplesis. The writer left a standing offer of £200 for it, they wanting £600. As it was not an unpublished paper, the purchase was not completed, though considerable friendly correspondence followed. It is an important relic of the great American Statesman and Philosopher, but it would manifestly have been wrong under all the circumstances for Temple Franklin to print the original draft (though somewhat corrected) instead of the copy revised and corrected by the author. Franklin himself may have erred in judgment sometimes and chosen a secondary word, but in almost every instance the last construction of the sentence and the word substituted rest on good foundations. Temple Franklin therefore may be discharged as not guilty.

At all events it is now abundantly evident that the British Government never tampered with Mr Temple Franklin, that Temple Franklin never squeezed £7000, as was said, or any other sum, out of John Bull, for suppressing the manuscripts of Dr Franklin, or that he ever sold, lost or destroyed these historical papers, which now appear in this our collection, safe and well cared for, to speak for themselves, to the honour of Temple Franklin, and the glory of America and her favourite son. The truth is now manifest, that the British Government in 1793, or 1800 or 1806, or later, had nothing to fear from the disclosure of private matters or public interests by the publication of anything more from the pen of Dr Franklin, her old colonial sage, who had been in his grave since 1790. The whole mystery is now revealed and explained. William Temple Franklin was a slow coach, honest, earnest, proud of his charge, opinionated, laborious and fussy; but at the same time he was an unmethodical muddler, an incompetent editor, and uncommonly dilatory in his habits. He had been an industrious and trusted assistant under his grandfather, but for himself he was not born to finish anything. Mr Colburn, his publisher, was for years finding this out, but when at last he saw how matters stood he delicately prevailed upon the thin-skinned editor to employ a clerk to aid him in the fag of his editorial work. Young Franklin consented and Mr Colburn provided him with an assistant, who was ostensibly to be a mere clerk, but who was in reality a competent editor.

Under this arrangement matters advanced more regularly and rapidly, so that by the year 1818, when the work had been in hand more than a quarter of a century two editions were issued, the one in 6 volumes in octavo, and the other, with same contents, in 3 volumes in quarto. The materials were so abundant, and Franklin was so conservative against cutting down or leaving out anything, that Mr Colburn and the clerk had to employ all their dexterity to omit judiciously and abridge with discretion, at the same time making the editor believe that Hercules was performing his own labours. But a still greater difficulty arose. Temple Franklin, having little experience of editorial work, and having for many years been the confidential assistant and private secretary of his grandfather, felt that as the manuscripts had been left to him, and he himself had been magna pars in all his grandfather's public and private affairs, he had a right to alter, cut about, re-arrange, enlarge or abridge the papers as he thought needful for publication. But he did this with no dishonest purpose. Some curious and many strange instances of this literary gerrymandering appear still in the original manuscripts; and many more will be developed by comparing the original MSS with the printed copy, the alterations being made with scissors or pins, but without destroying anything. Though the original manuscripts were cut about and pasted into long slips for the printer, they have been carefully and with great expense soaked apart and rearranged in their proper places, little the worse for their adventures. From the outset Mr Colburn was unwilling to venture beyond an octavo edition of six volumes. This led to much discussion until Temple Franklin consented to consider these six volumes as a first instalment or half of the work, the other half to be put to the press if the success of the sale warranted. It was thus that the first half of Temple Franklin's important edition of Dr Franklin's Life and Works first saw the light, not from any impediment on the part of the British Government. The delay arose simply out of the inexperience, incompetence and procrastination of the editor and proprietor, in addition to the difficulties he had to encounter in those momentous war times to find a disinterested publisher who could afford to undertake so large a work in the face of the innumerable minor editions already before the public. The second half never appeared, and outsiders never knew how imperfect the work was, or what was left behind for posterity to develope. Temple Franklin died in Paris in 1823, and the same year the Papers, edited and inedited, became buried in complete obscurity. To all subsequent writers from Sparks to Bigelow, they have still been lost. Temple Franklin's authoritative edition has always been considered the standard as far as it went, but no one has ever accounted for its meagreness and shortcomings except by accusing the editor of dishonourable connivance with the British Government in suppressing the cream of the papers. No doubt it was the editor's intention had he lived to bring out the rest of the previously printed miscellaneous and scientific works, together with the better and later half of the correspondence and diplomatic achievements of that nine years in France, the crowning glory of his grandfather's career, which added the key-stone to the fabric of the Western Republic. Temple Franklin's experience with the 'trade' of London since 1790 had cautioned him not to show his hand, or permit editors or publishers to examine or learn what more papers that old family iron-bound chest contained. He knew well that his grandfather never looked after his writings, and took no stock in the copyrights of his numerous mental offspring. So in 1818, when his first series was published, he again locked the old chest in the vaults of his bankers, where the papers had been deposited for safety well nigh a quarter of a century, and went off to France, awaiting the progress of his venture in the hands of Mr Colburn. In Paris he lived, married, and after a short time died. Mrs Franklin, as his executrix, administered on his estate, took possession of what property there was, and on the 27th of September, 1823, removed the precious deposits from the bankers. And this was all that Temple Franklin, in conspiracy with the ever abused British Government, did towards 'suppressing' his grandfather's writings. Man proposes, God disposes. Nearly a century has passed since Franklin died. His enemies and envious rivals have done their best to stifle his merits. The Centennial has passed, and even yet editors and collectors, regardless of copyright and the unused material that lie 'latent' still continue to prate of William Temple Franklin 'mutilating his grandfather's Autobiography' and selling his patrimony to Mr Bull! It is now the old philosopher's turn. The lightning rods that he put in pickle a hundred years ag abundantly sufficient to protect himself and his grandson now and hereafter Here is one of them, given as a sample, to show how the old man of fourscore could considerately apply the 'beach seal' to an indiscreet youngster. Beginning at six o'clock in the morning the doctor wrote four letters to Mr William Jackson the same day on the same subject and to the same purport. Temple Franklin, and after him Mr Sparks, have given us the first three, but this fourth good letter has been kept until now. This, with hundreds of other papers, were, we think, wisely withheld for Mr Colburn's second Series of six volumes. The letter will explain itself. "Passy, July 10, 1781.

"Sir,—Last night I received your fourth letter on the same subject. You are anxious to carry the money with you, because it will reanimate the credit of America. My situation, and long acquaintance with affairs relating to the public credit, enable me, I think, to judge better than you can do, who are a novice in them, what employment of it will most conduce to that end; and I imagine the retaining it to pay the Congress drafts has infinitely the advantage. You repeat that the ship is detained by my refusal. You forget your having written to me expressly, that she waited for my convoy. You remind me of the great expense the detention of the ship occasions. Who has given orders to stop her? It was not me. I had no authority to do it. Have you? And do you imagine, if you have taken such authority upon you, that the Congress ought to bear the expense occasioned by your imprudence? and that the blame of detaining the necessary stores the ship contains will be excused by your fond desire of carrying the money? The noise you have rashly made about this matter, contrary to the advice of Mr Adams, which you asked and received, and which was to comply with my requisition, has already done great mischief to our credit in Holland. Messrs Fizeaux have declared they will advance to him no more money on his bills upon me to assist in paying the Congress drafts on him. Your commodore, too, complains in a letter I have seen, that he finds it difficult to get money for my acceptances of your drafts in order to clear his ship, though before this proceeding of yours, bills on me were, as Mr Adams assures me, in as good credit on the Exchange of Amsterdam as those of any banker in Europe. I suppose the difficulty mentioned by the commodore is the true reason of the ship's stay, if in fact the convoy is gone without her. Credit is a delicate thing, capable of being blasted with a breath. The public talk you have occasioned about my stopping the money, and the conjectures of the reasons or necessity of doing it, have created doubts and suspicions of most pernicious consequences. It is a matter that should have passed in silence. You repeat as a reason for your conduct, that the money was obtained by the great exertions of Colonel Laurens. Who obtained the grant is a matter of no importance, though the use I propose to make of it is of the greatest. But the fact is not as you state it. I obtained it before he came. And if he were here I am sure I could convince him of the necessity of leaving it, especially after I should have informed him that you had made in Holland the enormous purchase of £40,000 sterling's worth of goods over and above the £10,000 worth, which I had agreed should be purchased by him on my credit; and that you had induced me to engage for the payment of your purchase by showing me a paper said to contain his order for making it, which I then took to be his handwriting, though I afterwards found it to be yours, and not signed by him. It would be additional reason with him when I should remind him that he himself, to induce me to come into the proposal of Commodore Guillon and the rest of the Holland transaction, to which I was averse, assured me he had mentioned it to the Minister, and that it was approved of. That on the contrary I find the Minister remembers nothing of it, very much dislikes it and absolutely refuses to furnish any money to discharge that amount. You finish your letter by telling me that 'the daily enhancement of expense to the United States from these difficulties is worthy the attention of those whose duty it is to economise the public money, and to whom the commonweal is entrusted without deranging the special department of another.' The ship's lying there with 500 or 600 men on board is undoubtedly a great daily expense, but it is you that occasion it; and the superior airs you give yourself, young gentleman, of reproof to me, and reminding me of my duty, do not become you, whose special department and employ in public affairs, of which you are so vain, is but of yesterday, and would never have existed but by my concurrence, and would have ended in disgrace if I had not supported your enormous purchases by accepting your drafts. The charging me with want of economy is particularly improper in you, when the only instance you know of it is my having indiscreetly complied with your demand in advancing you 120 louis for the expense of your journeys to Paris, and when the only instance I know of your economizing money is your sending me three expresses one after another on the same day all the way from Holland to Paris, each with a letter saying the same thing to the same purpose. This dispute is as useless as it is unpleasant. It can only create ill blood. Pray let us end it. I have the honour to be, &c. &c. Benj. Franklin."

We have intimated above that Temple Franklin sometimes omitted important words and even sentences. Here is a case in point, where for some insufficient reason he printed a letter of his grandfather to Mr William Carmichael, dated 12th April, 1781, giving 'three ——es' in the places of 'three names'. This was not fair, because it might throw suspicion on the wrong persons. Mr Sparks and Mr Bigelow were not able to fill up the chasms. A reference to the original manuscript supplies the names which are here printed in italics, thus removing suspicion from all others. "I thank you much for your friendly hints of the operations of my enemies, and of the means I might use to defeat them. Having in view at present no other point to gain but that of rest, I do not take their malice so much amiss, as it may further my project, and perhaps be some advantage to you. Lee and Izard are open, and so far honourable enemies; the Adamses, if enemies, are more covered. I never did any of them the least injury, and can conceive no other source of their malice but envy. To be sure the excessive respect shown me here by all ranks of people, and the little notice taken of them, was a mortifying circumstance; but it was what I could neither prevent nor remedy. Those who feel pain at seeing others enjoy pleasure, and are unhappy, must meet daily with so many causes of torment, that I conceive them to be already in a state of damnation; and, on that account, I ought to drop all resentment with regard to those two gentlemen. But I cannot help being concerned at the mischief their ill tempers will be continually doing in our public affairs, whenever they have any concern in them."

The following unpublished letter of Franklin to Vergennes shows how adroitly the old and trusted philosopher could extricate the Congress and himself from an awkward position into which one of his colleagues had contrived to place them with the Court of France. Most of the correspondence was published by Temple Franklin, but this, the real key to the mystery, was wisely reserved by him and his publisher to help sweeten up their proposed Second Series :— "Passy, August 3, 1780.

"Sir,—It was, indeed, with very great pleasure that I received the letter your Excellency did me the honour of writing to me, communicating that of the President of Congress, and the resolutions of that body relative to the succours then expected: for the sentiments therein expressed are so different from the language held by Mr. Adams in his late letters to your Excellency, as to make it clear that it was from his particular indiscretion alone, and not from any instructions received by him, that he has given such just cause of displeasure, and that it is impossible his conduct therein should be approved by his constituents. I am glad he has not admitted me to any participation of those writings, and that he has taken the resolution he expresses of not communicating with me, or making use of my intervention in his future correspondence; a resolution that I believe he will keep, as he has never yet communicated to me more of his business in Europe than I have seen in newspapers. I live upon terms of civility with him, not of intimacy. I shall, as you desire, lay before Congress the whole correspondence which you have sent me for that purpose. With the greatest and most sincere respect, I am sir, yours, &c. &c. B. Franklin."

Mr Sparks, aware from Franklin's will and many other sources, that the papers had been brought to London by the grandson, sought earnestly for them when he was in England, about 1834, while editing his 10 vol. edition, but he found little to fill up or correct in Temple Franklin's six volumes, and nothing whatever of the papers intended for the second series of six volumes. Mr Sparks returned believing them irrecoverably lost. He had no suspicion that they had been put aside for a second series.

In the preface to 'Franklin's Familiar Letters' Mr Sparks had previously written in 1833 : "Few eminent men have been so unfortunate, in respect to the publications of their writings as Franklin. No edition of his works, nor of any part of them, except his early philosophical essays, was ever prepared by himself, or published under his own inspection. His letters and papers made their appearance from time to time, either as forced out by the interested motives of booksellers, or the importunity of friends. The papers left by him to his grandson were kept back from the public for more than twenty years after the author's death, and were at last compiled with little ability in the execution, or justice to the subject. It is moreover to be remembered, with extreme regret, that Franklin's letter books, embracing the entire period of his agency in England, throughout a space of almost twenty years, as well as other original papers, were lost by the negligence or treachery of the person to whose care he entrusted them when he went to France. A few letters to individuals, which have been collected, and short biographical memoranda of his own, relating to detached events afford all the materials that exist for a history of his official transactions and private opinions in the compass of that eventful portion of his life. Owing to a train of circumstances, which at one time were not well understood, but now admit of an easy and full explanation, the character of Franklin suffered in the hands of some of his later associates and contemporaries. Suspicions of his political integrity, and even of his private honesty, were scattered among the credulous, and produced impressions on the minds of many of his countrymen, which his brilliant name and great services have as yet hardly effaced. After a laborious enquiry into this matter, with no ordinary means of information, and opportunities of research, particularly in regard to his acts as Minister Plenipotentiary in France, and in negotiating the treaty of peace at the end of the war, I feel authorised to declare that his conduct admits of unqualified vindication ; that so far from open censure, or the whispers of suspicion, he deserves the lasting praise and gratitude of his country for the manly, consistent, undeviating, honourable, and efficient course he pursued, in the face of numerous obstacles and embarrassments, during the whole nine years of his residence in France. His patriotism and fidelity to his trust were equalled only by his unrivalled talents and sagacity." This full vindication Mr Sparks endeavoured to present in his subsequent 10 volume edition from material derived mainly from the French Archives, but it must be confessed that his arguments fall somewhat short of the practical demonstration that may be drawn from Franklin's and Vergennes' own original unpublished manuscripts existing in the present collection.

In the year 1840 the 'Franklin Papers,' which had lain more than seventeen years on the top shelf of an old tailor's shop in St James's, in loose bundles (both those that had been to the printers and those reserved for the second instalment) were rescued by a gentleman who had known Temple Franklin a quarter of a century before, and had been a fellow lodger with him over the same tailor's shop. This gentleman, an officer under government, kept these manuscripts for ten or eleven years, fully appreciating his charge, but never finding sufficient leisure from his public duties to look them through. From time to time in his vacations he offered them in bulk to the British Museum, to Lord Palmerston, and to the successive American ministers in London, from 1840 to 1851. He knew nothing of the difficulties of Mr Colburn, or of the division of the papers into the two instalments of printed and not printed, but supposed and said that they had all probably been printed and published. For this reason the collection, though repeatedly offered, was as repeatedly declined at his fixed price.

In 1851 this gentleman again applied to the American minister, then Mr Abbott Lawrence, who at once appointed an interview. On hearing the gentleman's propositions Mr Lawrence frankly told him that he personally knew nothing of such matters, and moreover he had no power to purchase them for the government, but offered to give him a note of introduction to an American gentleman at Morley's who he thought would be likely to know all about the papers, and if they were worth securing, he would no doubt buy the collection. Mr Lawrence sent a messenger at once with a private note to his friend at Morley's, and the gentleman turned up in the course of the day. Within three days thereafter the entire collection changed hands. It has been an expensive elephant in the present proprietor's menagerie ever since, for he has spent much time in arranging, repairing, restoring, collating and binding, together with copies and additions, to the extent of above £1000 beyond the original cost.

Mr Colburn, the publisher, was then living, and he kindly communicated to the writer the whole story of his negotiations with Temple Franklin, and the difficulties he had in getting from him the copy for the press. The work, when at last published, went off tolerably well, but the success fell far short of their expectations. Mr Colburn, after so many years of anxiety, had not the courage left to go over the labour again to extract from the dilatory editor the promised second instalment. He did not hear of Temple Franklin's death until some time after it took place, and then on enquiring for the papers they could not be traced. In 1833 Mr Colburn, without reprinting had to resort to the publisher's not unfrequent expedient of producing a new edition, simply by inserting new title-pages. Hence one may see by comparison with the copy that went to the printer, and still preserved, how the omissions, the cut-outs, the transpositions, the mutilations, and the many other defects of omission and commission in the first series, occurred; and as these volumes became the standard for future editors and historians one can readily see how much Dr Franklin has suffered from incomplete editorship: and hence also one can readily see how the loss of the second and more important series intended to remedy these defects, not only placed Dr Franklin in a false light, but gave a false colouring to American political history generally.

Mr Sparks reprinted Temple Franklin's copy as far as it aided him, but he could not get behind it, or fathom its suspicious omissions and other serious defects. He, however, had no suspicion that Temple Franklin's edition contained only half the works of Dr Franklin. Mr Sparks in the preface to his first volume gives an interesting account of the many sources of his new materials. He experienced great difficulties, but was rewarded with eminent success. He added, he says, about 650 articles, including letters and miscellaneous pieces, of which upwards of 460 had never before been printed. But he gained no clue to the real Franklin papers. Hence Sparks' edition, the fullest and best of all, is insufficient and defective wherever that of Temple Franklin fell short. It follows logically that not only the biography of Dr Franklin but the whole History of the Independency, the Revolutionary War, and the Organization of the Government of the United States has vastly suffered by the inexperience of editorship and the subsequent casualties which befel these important papers.

Death, however, excuses Temple Franklin, who, during his life, appears to have guarded his charge with pious reverence. We say half but that proves to be too low an estimate by recent cast-off of the original unpublished papers still in the present Franklin collection. The explanation appears to be this. Temple Franklin's six volume octavo edition of 1818 contains a large selection of Dr Franklin's philosophical and other papers previously printed, which made nearly half the work, the remaining half being mostly the earlier or the more personal and private portion of the original manuscripts never before printed. Hence it is clear that the second series of six volumes was to comprise the remaining scientific papers previously printed, the unpublished manuscripts covering the most important period of Franklin's career, the close of the war, the negotiations for the Peace, the Treaty, together with subsequent correspondence, say 1780-1785, enough in all to make five additional volumes the size of Sparks's. This in general, but the second series was designed to cover the whole period of the first series, so as to render the two a single and indivisible work, to be re-arranged and incorporated in new editions.

Besides this, almost every paper or letter printed for the first time from the original manuscript in Temple Franklin's editions requires explanation, revision and correction by the manuscripts. Sparks had not the opportunity to do this, but it can now be done from the identical copy used by Valpy the printer and still preserved in the collection. A single illustration will serve our purpose. Only half of Franklin's letter to Benjamin Vaughan of the 9th Nov. 1779, is given in the text by Temple Franklin, the other half having been scissored out and transferred to a note in the Autobiography, giving further particulars of the history of the little London book Liberty and Necessity. Mr Sparks reprinted this important note and put the initials W. T. F. after it. Mr Bigelow also reprinted it and by some inadvertance substituted B in one edition, and Ed. in another (p. 179) in place of W. T. F. at the same time altering the name of Lyons (4) to Syms, of course a mere typographical error, but rendering a recurrence to the original manuscripts necessary, especially as there are hundreds of such variations by different editors.

These are some of the particulars respecting the Franklin Collection, but a more detailed account, with names and dates, can be supplied by Mr. Henry Stevens if needed. The Franklin Collection bought in 1851, comprises roughly:—

I. The original Records or Letter Books of the American Legation in Paris during the American Revolutionary War and subsequently, 1776-1785, including correspondence with the French Government. The negotiations for supplies to carry on the War, letters, papers, &c. relative to Paul Jones and his ventures and raids, Captain Cook and his Voyage of Discovery, privateering, negotiations for Peace, the Treaty, and correspondence with Holland, Russia, Spain, &c. &c.

II. Original Manuscripts by Franklin, his Essays, Miscellaneous Writings, private correspondence, squibs, bagatelles, &c.

III. Autobiography and biographical memoranda preparatory to the writing of his Life, with the history of his times to be published after his death.

IV. The original correspondence with the American Government or retained, or press copies, on public affairs. With many public and private letters to and from public and private citizens in America and elsewhere.

V. The original Petition of the Congress to the King in October, 1774, signed in duplicate by all the 50 Members of the Continental Congress, a document second only in interest and historical importance to the Declaration of Independence itself. This Petition setting forth all the grievances after the manner of the Declaration was signed by the Members in two copies. The President of the Congress sent both copies enclosed in a long letter to Franklin in London, by different ships. Franklin received both. The one he presented to the Minister for the King, and the other he kept. Both petitions are equally original. The Congress retained no copy with autograph signatures. The King's copy is now in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, the other is the gem of our Franklin Collection.

VI. The Hartley Correspondence. The Hutchinson Papers Correspondence. Speaker Cushing, of the Massachusetts General Court, his letters, &c.

VII. Records and Correspondence of the Commissioners on the part of England to negotiate the Treaty of 1783, together with copies of important State Papers, including a complete transcript of Oswald's Journal preserved in the Marquis of Lansdown's library.

VIII. Essays in form of Letters, on 'Perfumes' and 'Choice of a Mistress,' witty and explosive, but perhaps too Dean Swiftian for the press.

IX. The original Autograph Manuscript of Franklin's 'Articles of Belief and Acts of Religion.' In Two Parts.

Here will I hold. If there is a Power above us
(And that there is, all Nature cries aloud
Thro' all her Works) He must delight in Virtue—
And that which he delights in must be happy.—Cato.

Part I. Philada. Nov. 20, 1728, 16° bound in blue morocco by Bedford

This precious manuscript is believed to be the earliest Autograph we have of Franklin. There is another copy, a little larger, bound also in morocco, probably a few years later, but unfortunately wanting a few leaves, which have been filled in recently by the writer from the original copy.

X. The original Craven Street Letter Book somewhat mildewed and injured, but containing the original drafts or records of many important Letters, especially private and domestic ones; many to 'My dear Child,' his wife.

XI. The Draft of Franklin's famous letter to his friend Strahan the printer:

"Mr Strahan, Philada. July 5, 1775.

"You are a Member of Parliament, and one of that majority which has doomed my Country to Destruction. You have begun to burn our Towns, and murder our People.—Look upon your Hands!—They are stained with the Blood of your Relations!—You and I were long Friends.—You are now my Enemy, and I am, Yours, B. Franklin."

A large proportion of the above eleven lots was reserved for the Second Series by Temple Franklin and consequently never printed. To these acquired in 1851 have been added at considerable expense several important manuscripts which once belonged to the collection, but parted with probably as autographs.

It should perhaps be mentioned that very many of Dr Franklin's letters and papers are preserved in two, three, four or even five states, while in some cases there are discrepancies which may account for some slips that have been or may be attributed to bad editorship. These states or conditions of the papers may be called :—1. The rough draft in the hand of Dr Franklin, sometimes with many interlineations and corrections. 2. The fair copy by his private secretary or one of his clerks, frequently with corrections and alterations by Franklin before attaching his signature. 3. The press copy, a process said to be invented by Dr Franklin as early as 1777, or perhaps only improved in conjunction with Watt and his English patent press for copying. 4. The Record in the folio Letter Books, and 5. Sometimes there were two, or a second fair copy after the Doctor's first revision and correction, this being the document signed and despatched. In some cases this last document was subsequently transcribed and may have varied somewhat from all the others and thus lay the editor open to charges of inaccuracy. Generally, though not always, the press-copy was the last taken. In many cases the Collection contains three, four and sometimes the five states of the paper. All are important either for tracing variations or correcting errors. Besides these the Collection contains a great number of original Letters from Vergennes, Lafayette and others in French, as well as of Speaker Cushing and many others in English.

From time to time the manuscripts have been sorted, repaired, arranged, and a good number of them bound by Bedford in his best style in blue morocco. More recently they have been catalogued, arranged, copied, and cast off at an expense of £300, so that the collection is now in an advanced state for the editor. This cast off after the manner of the printer is so minute in the estimated number of words that by it and the catalogue of the 2938 papers one may estimate not only the entire bulk of the collection, but the printed and not printed portions of it. This summing up, taking Sparks' volumes as standards, amounts to this : about 2430 pages have never been printed, 1195 pages printed, but not always accurately, in Sparks ; 246 pages printed in the Diplomatic Correspondence, but not printed in Sparks, and about 300 pages printed both in Sparks and the Diplomatic Correspondence. This printing house estimate corresponds sufficiently near to that of the writer given above, that the unpublished matter is enough to fill five volumes of the size of Sparks' volumes. Besides the manuscripts, the proprietor of the collection has from time to time purchased at large expense many of Franklin's early and rarer publications, as well as most of the recent ones of his works and books relating to him. A separate list is appended of all these, numbered from 1 to 204, from which any one may see at a glance that the list contains almost all of the rare ones, such as

1. Poor Richard's Almanack 1740-1765, no less than 18 of them as described in our Nuggets together with later continuations.

2. Franklin's Pocket Almanacs, 32° 1742-1766, 20 of them between those years mostly perfect and in good order, probably a unique collection of anything like this extent.

3. Franklin's Pennsylvania Gazette, nearly eight years of this celebrated newspaper in fine condition, clean and mostly uncut, bound, in 2 thick volumes.

4. Franklin's General Magazine for Jan. Feb. and March, 1741, believed to be the first literary Monthly Magazine in English North America, in fine condition and bound in morocco extra to a Roger Payne pattern.

5. Liberty and Necessity, Pleasure and Pain, 1725, a fine copy in morocco by Bedford of the little free-book, written, composed and printed by Franklin himself while first in London at the age of 18. Only 100 copies were printed, and as he says in his autobiography mostly destroyed. Two copies only are now known to exist. This one, and one we formerly had, but turned out as a duplicate at Puttick and Simpson's. It was sold for £19 19s. and bought by Hotten against the British Museum. After Hotten's death in 1872, it was again sold there and fetched £22 10s., still against the bid of the British Museum. No edition of the Works of Franklin contained this rare little book until Mr Parton in 1864 reprinted it from a manuscript transcript from the present copy supplied by the writer. That transcript by Mr Stevens, Mr Parton deposited in the library of the New York Historical Society. The copy noticed in Notes and Queries of Jan. 3, 1852, by Mr James Crossley, was the Irish reprint of 1733 (3)

6. Liberty and Necessity, Dublin 1733, 16 pages. This edition, or Irish reprint, is believed to be unique. It has just half the number of pages of the original Franklin Edition, being in smaller type.

7. Woolston's Religion of Nature, 4° London, 1725. Fine large paper copy in old red morocco extra; on this book Franklin worked as a compositor at Palmer's in 1725, and from it probably imbibed his shortlived free notions that appeared in his Liberty and Necessity. This is the only large paper copy known.

8. Cicero's Cato Major, or his Discourse of Old Age, a very fine, clean and perfectly uncut copy, and bound in blue morocco by Bedford, the finest copy known. B. Franklin, Philadelphia, 1744, 4° (see 56).

9. Dr Lyons's Infallibility of Human Judgment, 1724, 16° (see No. 4).

10. An Account of the New Invented Pennsylvania Fire Places, 1744 (see 57).

Besides these the Collection contains nearly 300 volumes of Franklin's earlier pieces, his books and pamphlets, &c., together with books concerning him, as per detailed separate list, occupying pages 162 to 176 of this catalogue, to which the patient reader is referred.

It has been the fashion of late to depreciate FRANKLIN, and to stigmatize his grandson, William Temple, more especially in Philadelphia, a proceeding which reminds one of the Bibliofilos Andaluces decrying the Life of Columbus as a fraud on Spain that owes, everybody knows, as much to the Great Discoverer, as Philadelphia owes to her Great Philosopher. But fortunately their shafts and poisoned arrows can all be parried by the simple truth of history. Franklin's points saved many of their houses, and his papers may yet save himself and confound his enemies. During the Revolutionary War Europe was overrun with Commissioners and Agents of the Congress, all of whom had to be fed and paid by Franklin. They hated him, though he was the only banker that could honour their drafts. When Franklin's works appeared in 1818, and enlarged by Sparks in 1836-40, with no personal vindication, his enemies and their descendants sought openly to elevate their own by depreciating Franklin. Correspondence of this sort about 1830 has appeared in the Magazine of American History. The unpublished personalities among the Franklin papers, it is believed, are abundant to dissipate and neutralize all these aspersions. Franklin, during his nine years' residence in Paris, devoted himself to the advancement of the cause he had espoused, and rarely permitted himself to notice the 'slings of outrageous fortune' by which he was surrounded. He continued to be the Banker of the Congress, and the provider of its army and navy. He had his spiteful little enemies at home and abroad, and knew it, yet generously fed them while they were biting his back. One would think by the way the moderns write that they are under the impression that the Old Philosopher had forgotten or neglected to book his observations. He however was not likely to omit recording the antidote to the transactions of his enemies. He could afford to wait. But all these are minor things in comparison with the collection itself, the sealed storehouse of American history, science, literature, biography and diplomacy. With all these unpublished manuscripts, and this unparalelled collection of printed books of and relating to Franklin, the Truth of History must come out.

A DISSERTATION on Liberty and Necessity, Pleasure and Pain. In a Letter to a Friend. [Motto as above.] Dublin: Printed in the year 1733, 16 pp. 8° (3)

Dr. Franklin, in his Autobiography says, "At Palmer's [in Bartholomew Close] I was employed in composing for the second edition of Wollaston's "Religion of Nature." Some of his reasonings not appearing to me well founded, I wrote a little metaphysical piece, in which I made remarks on them. It was entitled "a Dissertation on Liberty and Necessity, Pleasure and Pain." I inscribed it to my friend Ralph; I printed a small number. . . . My printing this pamphlet was another erratum. In another place Franklin says he printed only 100 copies, of which he gave a few away and burnt the rest. No mention is made of this Dublin reprint.

Pages 209-240 are occupied by "A dissertation on Liberty and Necessity." Dr. Franklin in his Autobiography says, "My pamphlet ['A dissertation on Liberty and Necessity, Pleasure and Pain'] by some means falling into the hands of one Lyons, a surgeon, author of a book entitled, 'The Infallibility of Human Judgment,' it occasioned an acquaintance between us. He took great notice of me, called on me often to converse on those subjects, carried me to the Horns, a pale alehouse in —— Lane, Cheapside, and introduced me to Dr. Mandeville, author of the 'Fable of the Bees,' who had a club there, of which he was the soul, being a most facetious, entertaining companion; Lyons, too, introduced me to Dr. Pemberton, at Batson's Coffee-house, who promised to give me an opportunity, some time or other, of seeing Sir Isaac Newton, of which I was extremely desirous; but this never happened." Franklin was at this time a boy of nineteen.

JOURNAL of the Proceedings of the Congress held at Philadelphia Sept. 5, 1774, containing the Bill of Rights, a List of Grievances, &c. To which is added (being now first printed by authority) an authentic Copy of the PETITION TO THE KING. London, J. Almon, 1775. 8° (79)

Dr. Franklin, about the 15th or 16th of Dec. 1774, received these Proceedings of the Congress, with the Petition to the King dated the 26th October previous. The times were growing very serious, and it was thought best to let Almon publish them immediately. The effect was startling, for the pamphlet proclaimed to the discriminating British public (if there was at that time such a body) that the English language had acquired new vigour and clearness in being transplanted to the Western shores. The pith, point and soundness of these public papers astonished the statesmen and confounded the politicians, and at the same time delighted the friends of the Colonies particularly Lord Chatham and Lord Camden. But the ministry were bomb proof. For a full account of the negotiations that immediately followed through Lady Howe and her brother see Franklin's long letter to his son dated 22 March, 1775, on shipboard bound for home. The original Petition of the Congress, from which the above was printed, containing the signatures of 50 of the Delegates, after the manner of the Declaration of Independence, and second only to that immortal Paper, belongs now to Mr. Stevens' Franklin Collection.

AN HUMBLE Address and earnest Appeal . . . . whether a connection with or a separation from the Continental Colonies of America be most for the National Advantage and lasting benefit of these kingdoms. The third edition corrected. By Josiah Tucker, D.D. Dean of Gloucester. London, T. Cadell, 1776, 96 pp. with folding sheet at page 49. 8° (81)

Dean Tucker, in his first edition, attacked Dr. Franklin with clerical indiscretion, for which the Doctor called upon him for his authorities, and to verify his statements. The correspondence is crisp, polite and spicy. In the 2nd edition the Dean simply omitted the offensive charges and made no explanation or apology. In this 3rd edition, being badgered by the friends of Franklin, who had himself returned to America, the Dean explains, but his explanation seems as lame and crooked as his former charges.

This is a skit on the Great British Public, being a close imitation of a Boston newspaper, with letter from Paul Jones, British Advertisements for Scalps, and account of bundles of Scalps of the Americans consigned by the Indians in British pay to Agents in London, all of which fell into the hands of the Yankees and hence this exposure in the newspaper. This "Supplement," printed by Franklin at his private press at Passy, is believed to be unique.

The London editor at the end of his preface has this note: "Some of the London Newspapers mentioned a strong opposition between General Washington and Dr. Franklin for the Presidency [of the Convention] and that Gen. Washington was elected by a majority of one Vote. We have authority to contradict this account. The fact is, that Gen. Washington was elected with one voice, and not by a majority of one. Dr. Franklin, as the senior person of the Convention, and who is already President of the State of Pennsylvania, was the Member who put Gen. Washington into nomination, and he was conducted to the chair with a unanimous voice."

MEMOIRS of the late Dr. B. Franklin: with a review of his Pamphlet, entitled "Information to those who would wish to remove to America." London: Printed and sold for the Author by A. Grant, etc. 1790, 94 pp. 8° (112)

This first memoir of Franklin after his death was written by no friendly hand. Many of the anonymous writer's unjust and erroneous statements soon found their way into other books and other biographical sketches. As usual, prompt lies are so difficult to eradicate that to this day most of the scandal that has found its way into type is traceable to this early volume.

COLUMBIAN Magazine (Sept. 1786 to June '90) vol. i to iv; then, The Universal Asylum and Columbian Magazine, vol. v to ix (July 1790 to Dec. 1792). Phil. 1786-92. 8° (113)

Dr. Franklin died April, 1790. In the May number of this Magazine there began on page 268, vol. iv, a biographical sketch of Franklin of considerable merit, intended probably as a continuation of the Dr.'s Autobiography which had not then been printed, and was continued in the numbers for June, July, September, October, November, 1790; February, March, May and June, 1791, vol. v. The interesting work broke off here unfinished, with an intimation that it would be finished in the next number, but it never was. This is probably accounted for by an obituary article in the May number of 1792, page 293, in which is given a notice of Dr. Henry Stuber. "This publication is indebted to him for many interesting communications, and more particularly for the greater part of the Life of that eminently useful man Dr. Franklin which appeared in the Asylum not long after his death." These papers, frequently reprinted are generally called "Stuber's Life of Franklin," but it now appears that he contributed not the whole but "the greater part." Further on the editor speaks of Dr. Stuber's "premature death before he had attained his 24th year."

work the editor, Dr. Price, for the first time supplements Franklin's Autobiography to 1731, translated from Buisson's French edition of 1791 (itself a translation of the original English) with a reprint of the Life of Franklin in the Columbian Magazine. The editor here on page 191 assigns this without qualification to Dr. Stuber, and so it has passed through many editions, before and since W. T. Franklin's corrected edition. Dr. Price died in 1791, but the work was held back two years in deference to the rights of Temple Franklin, who was expected to issue soon the full and genuine Autobiography to 1757, which Dr. Price in his Letter printed at the end of the preface said he had seen.

This edition by Parsons is another and probably authorized translation into English from the French translation of the original manuscript in the English of Franklin published by Buisson at Paris in 1791. VIE de Benjamin Franklin, écrite par lui-même, suivie de ses Œuvres morales, politiques et littéraires, dont la plus grand partie n'avoit pas encore été publie. Traduit de l'Anglais, avec des Notes, par J. Castéra. Tom I, Exquisitely engraved portrait by Alexr. Tardieu, after Duplesis, viii and 382 pp. Tom II. 438 pp. boards. A Paris, chez F. Buisson, An VI de la Republique [1797]. 8° (131)

This second French edition published by Buisson must not be confounded with Buisson's first collection of 1791. This is mostly a translation of Robinson's English collection of 1793 by J. Castéra, including a re-translation of the autobiography to 1731, and a translation of the Life in continuation of the Autobiography from the Columbian Magazine partly by Young Stuber, together with the Essays, humorous, moral and literary. Castéra added some things from French sources, and greatly improved the translation of the first part of the Autobiography.

THE EDINBURGH Review, April 1880, containing an Article on Franklin, being a review of Mr Bigelow's second edition, 3 vol. 1879 (200)

This Portrait of Franklin, on the whole, is well drawn and effective, but the writer's story of the evolution of the Autobiography is faulty; and the charges against the British Government and the grandson are sustained, and not withdrawn or softened. "But he (Mr Bigelow) has established a very strong presumption that Franklin's faith in this William Temple, this adopted child of his old age, was another of the philosopher's 'errata,' as he would himself have said."

There is, we believe, no book of about this date and size that can be compared with this for valuable geographical and bibliographical information respecting Canada and Nova Scotia or Acadia. It embraces the whole Territory South of the River and Gulf of St. Lawrence, East of Lake Champlain and North Massachusetts, and includes all the disputed tracts and grants of both the English and French Governments. The two valuable maps on the same scale, show clearly what was claimed by each party.

Linschoten the traveller was the translator and editor of this beautiful Dutch edition. On Saturday the 8 of Oct. 1594 the States General granted his request to reproduce this work of Acosta. His long and interesting preface is dated 1 May 1598. The work was printed by Gillis Rooman at Haerlem. This honest Dutch translation becomes very important from the fact that De Bry's German and Latin translations in his Part IX America, are both taken from it instead of the Spanish original, the whole seven books, chapter for chapter, except perhaps the first two books in Latin. Books 3 to 7 Acosta himself did not write in Latin.

1276 ADAMS (JOHN) Correspondence of the late President Adams, originally published in the Boston Patriot, in a Series of Letters, No. 1 to 10, the original 10 numbers uncut, filling 572 pp. very scarce, a few letters gone from page 97.

8vo. Boston, Everett & Munroe, 1809-10

These important Letters first published in the "Boston Patriot," from the 19th May, 1809, to the 8th Feb. 1810, contain a full history, from the Adams' point of view, of the Negotiations that terminated in the acknowledgment of American Independence by Great Britain, together with President Adams' defence of his Administration against the charges of Alexander Hamilton.

1277 AGRICOLA. Two Letters from Agricola to Sir William Howe ; To which are annexed, By the same Author, Political Observations, 63 pp. with a slip of errata pasted on to blank page 64, uncut

8vo. London : for J. Millidge, 1779

Agricola herein reviews with great severity the conduct of Sir William Howe, during his whole command in America. Nor is he a whit less condemnatory of the conduct and achievements of General Burgoyne. Of Burgoyne he writes, "He is a deep and eloquent military theorist ; he plans the subjugation of the rebels ; and in his loyal delirium he brandishes the tomahawk and the scalping knife, which alternately glitter in his magnificent periods. But all these heroic visions are annihilated by the convention at Saratoga. As a writer, he may be compared with the picture of the nativity, which was lately to be seen in the exhibition. Its dimensions and figures are extravagantly large ; its colours are glaring ; but while it was executed by the artist, he had not one idea that corresponded with the scene which he intended to represent. The ass is the leading and prominent object in the group and continually solicits our attention."

In 1768 De Pauw, a young Dutch priest at the age of 28 published his Recherches Philosophique sur les Americains, vol. I, vol. II, following it the next year. He was a fresh-water traveller, having never seen anything whereof he wrote, but drew on his prejudices and imagination for his facts to prove that the Americans were a miserable set of deteriorations, and that America was Europe made worse. In 1769 Dom. Pernetty replied in his Dissertation with considerable ability and acidity, but he also was an Abbé who had never seen America and wrote with great indiscretion and little knowledge. This brought forth from

De Pauw in 1770 his Defence of his first two volumes, which added no new facts, but sopped the whole controversy in bitterness and absurdity. In 1771 Pernetty published his Examen in two volumes as a rejoinder. By this time he had studied the subject pretty well, and successfully refuted many of De Pauw's statements, but the difficulty was that he had had no practical experience in the matter and reasoned only from what he could see from the top of a pile of books. His vision was limited and his experience nothing. Meanwhile the witty anonymous author of this little work, seeing the absurd wooden sword contest of these two PP in historical darkness, having himself been in America and lived among the Savages during part of the seven years' war, put his plain common sense notions in type in these fifteen chapters, casting a pleasant veil of obscurity over the two priestly champions. This book fills 80 pp. counting the title and preface. In some copies there is inserted, as in this one, a leaf after the title called Avertissement au Lecteur, to show that he takes no notice of Pernetty's last work because his and that work were in the press at the same time. He could, he says, have made a book on the subject but did not think it worth the trouble.

1290 ANDERSON (JAMES S. M.) The History of the Church of England in the Colonies and foreign dependencies of the British Empire. Second Edition, 3 vol. cloth, uncut
fcap. 8*vo. London: Rivingtons,* 1856

Few modern works relating to America evince so much original research as this. The Author produces his authorities for all important statements. They are numerous, and many of them being new to American students have led some of them into undignified scrambles for the honor of reproducing them as "discoveries in Anderson." Meanwhile this excellent work has been too much neglected.

8*vo. Boston: A. J. Wright,* 1847

A good sample of the local and church or parish history of New England. Though called a sermon, this is really a history of the town and church of Pepperell.

1292 ANECDOTES AMERICAINES, ou Histoire abrégée des principaux evénements arrivés dans le Nouveau Monde, depuis sa découverte jusqu'à l'époque présente. [Par Antoine Hornot]
8*vo. Paris, Chez Vincent,* 1776

The above title gives no just idea of the character and value of this exceedingly useful and handy book of nearly 800 pages. The whole history of the New Continent is arranged in the form of annals under each year, from 1492 to 1776. There is a good and copious index of 32 pages. The book is a handy compendium of the chronology, geography and biography of America.

8*vo.* Coloniae Agrippinae, Svmptibvs VVilhelmi Lutzenkirch, 1608

Master GOTARD ARTHUS of Dantzig was one of the editors of De Bry's Collection of Voyages, and was therefore necessarily well read in the early voyages and discoveries of the Portuguese, the Spanish, the French, the Dutch and the English to the East Indies by the routes of both Capes. He resided at Frankfort and finished this work in September, 1605, after the first seven parts of De Bry's India Orientalis had been published. In a condensed form this work is perhaps one of the best summaries there is of all the various East India Voyages down to 1605, and hence to the bibliographer and geographer it is of very considerable value. Chapter XXXV treats of the Molucca Islands and the divers routes thither especially by the Straits of Magellan. The book, enabling the American historian to trace the gradual and mysterious separation of the new hemisphere from the old, is entitled to a permanent place among books on America.

8vo. Norwich: Green and Spooner, 1778

Though this interesting and scarce pamphlet appears in the form of a sermon it is really a detailed account of the first three campaigns of the War, from Lexington to Saratoga, by one who had singular opportunities for knowing whereof he wrote. His preface is dated from the Camp at Fish Kill, 2 March, 1778.

These three members of the Long Parliament having voted with the majority against Charles the First felt it prudent to go over to Holland in 1662, where they considered themselves safe. Col. Okey "being confident that Sir GEORGE DOWNING had a particular kindness for him who gave him his first bread in England," &c. Downing not long after he graduated at Harvard College left New England, and was greatly befriended by Okey. Downing's treachery therefore in entrapping these three gentlemen is roughly handled, and New England is rated accordingly.

A pair of Globes (one terrestrial and the other celestial), by WILLIAM BLAEU of Amsterdam, dated in 1606; 5½ inches in diameter, mounted on stands, with copper fittings; the terrestrial in good condition, the celestial one cracked, shewing the material and mode of manufacture. The two fitted into a mahogany case lined with green baize and polished outside, with brass handles, lock, &c. The globes earlier than these are excessively scarce, such as the Behaim Globe of 1492, at Nurnburg, the Leon Globe, the Lenox Globe, that of Naunce, that of Buckingham Smith of 1542, in the New York Historical Society, the Mollineux Globe in the Middle Temple. But this pair of Globes by Blaeu is especially valuable from its giving the scientific geography in the terrestrial, as well as the Astronomy of the celestial. He had no difficulty in the northern hemisphere of the latter, because he had at hand the tables of Stars by Tycho Brahe, but for the southern hemisphere he was fortunate enough to secure the advantages of Frederick Houtman's astronomical observations and experiences. He accompanied his brother Cornelis Houtman in his first voyage of the Dutch to the East in 1595, and having been taken prisoner, remained there two or three years. We do not recollect another pair so early having occurred for sale.

This is the Book and the edition that Washington Irving more than a half century ago, in his Life of Columbus, named THE CORNER STONE OF AMERICAN HISTORY. So it has passed, and been generally acknowledged in all countries, until recently. About ten years ago a Society of Andalusian bibliographers was formed at Seville. Their first publication, which has deservedly given the "Bibliofilos Andaluces" a character for iconoclasm, was a fierce Hispano-French attack on the authenticity of this Life of Columbus by his second son Ferdinand. The Paper was written by Henri Harrisse of Paris in French, and was translated by Senor ——, one of the Seville Bibliofilos, adapted and published by the Society. The Book is boldly pronounced a Forgery and a fraud on Ferdinand Columbus. Some 15 reasons are given in proof of these charges, all of which after abundant research and study have been pronounced frivolous, false and groundless. The little book still stands the "Corner Stone." To brand it as spurious, would undermine most modern history, for many important facts and conclusions, respecting the great Age of Discovery are traceable to this book alone. The author accompanied his father in his Fourth and long Voyage, and subsequently became one of the most accomplished scholars and perhaps the most profound bibliographer in Europe. This life of Columbus, translated and properly edited, should be in every village and common school library in Europe and America.

After the Old French War Major Connolly, an American born, served as a volunteer two campaigns in the Pontiach War, studying much the Indians, and exploring their territory. After these Indian wars he finally settled in West Augusta County, Virginia, beyond the mountains, and acquired property on the Ohio. He became an officer in the service of the Assembly of Virginia. He commanded at Fort Pitt, or Pittsburg, and by Gov. Dunmore was commissioned to command the Militia of West Augusta County. On the breaking out of the Rebellion in 1775 Gov. Dunmore authorised him to pacify the Indian Tribes and induce them to join the Royal side. He brought them together and made an Indian and British Treaty at Pittsburgh. Subsequently the Gov. sent him secretly to Boston to consult Gen. Gage. As he had large interests at stake on the frontiers Gen. Gage appointed him Lieut. Col. and authorized him to raise a body of men for His Majesty's service there, and to co-operate with the Indians against the revolted Colonies. Soon after setting out on this expedition to Pittsburgh and Canada, he was arrested Nov. 5, 1775, at Hagar's Town in Maryland, and was held prisoner of war at various places for five years. This book is a full narrative of his doings and sufferings, together with his correspondence with the officers and the Congress. He had been a personal friend of Washington, and prints one of the General's letters to him at Fort Pitt from Mount Vernon, Feb. 25, 1775, on Indian Affairs. Altogether this is an exceedingly interesting book respecting Western Virginia and the Ohio and well deserves reprinting.

4to. t'Amsteldam, By Evert Nieuwenhof, 1656

This second edition has the map and the CONDITIEN not in the first edition. See lot 200. On the other hand the first edition of 1655 has a large view of New Amsterdam in the text not in this second edition. Both editions are equally rare.

1396 DOPPELMAYR (JOHANN GABRIEL) Historische Nachricht von den Nürnbergischen Mathematicis und Künstlern, welche fast von dreyen Seculis her durch ihre Schrifften und Kunst-Bemühungen die Mathematic und mehreste Künste in Nürnberg vor andern trefflich befördert, etc. fol. Nurnberg, Peter Monaths, 1730

This is one of the most suggestive and important books known for the use of students of early and mediæval Geography, especially for the great age of Discovery. It not only contains the lives of the celebrated Nurnberg mathematicians, astronomers and geographers, such as Regiomontanus, Bibaldus Pirkheimer, Martin Behaim, John Werner, John Schöner, etc. but is full of bibliographical references to their numerous works, and the books they themselves used. Among the 20 copper plates is the earliest facsimile of Behaim's Globe of 1492, taken before that globe had been restored, and before some of the names were lost. For instance we here find India patalis, a name now effaced from the globe, but which may hint the origin of Oronce Finé's Regio Patalis on his map of 1532, which has so much puzzled geographers.

This rare book is valuable for its second or middle portion, being a translation into German of the "Brief and True Report of the Newfoundland of Virginia," by THOMAS HARIOT, first printed in English in 1588, and afterwards printed by De Bry at Franckfurt in English, Latin, French and German. This is a fine copy of a very rare book, but wants pages 257 to 297. The part containing Hariot's Virginia, however, is perfect, viz. pages 151 to 203.

This book is certified to by "Thomas Hutchins, Geographer of the United States." It is said to have been written by or published for the Rev. Dr. Manasseh Cutler, the New England botanist. Considering the date this is a remarkable production. It gives the geography, natural history, resources and productions of what is now the State of Ohio. But particularly it treats of the inland river navigation and the mode of conveying merchandize to and from the Ocean. About this time Rumsay of Virginia, and Fitch of Connecticut, were in a paper warfare about the invention of a steam boat (see lot 756 above). In this book on page 13 are the following observations and remarkable prophesy: "But the current down the Ohio and the Mississippi, for heavy articles that suit the Florida and West India markets, such as corn, flour, beef, lumber, &c. will be more frequently loaded than any streams on earth. The distance from the Scioto to the Mississippi is 800 miles; from thence to the sea is 900. This whole course is easily run in 15 days; and the passage up those rivers is not so difficult as has usually been represented. It is found by late experiments that sails are used to great advantage against the current of the Ohio; and it is worthy of observation, that in all probability steamboats will be found to do infinite service in all our extensive river navigation." For further particulars see Wm. F. Poole's "The Ordinance of 1787, and Dr. Manassah Cutler as an Agent in its formation;" and also P. G. Thompson's excellent Bibliography of Ohio, 1880, page 84. T. W. Field's copy in 1875 sold by auction in New York for 21 dollars. No map was published with the pamphlet.

1418 GERALDINUS (ALEXANDER) ITINERARIVM AD REGIONES SVB ÆQVINOCTIALI plaga constitvtas Alexandri Geraldini Amerini, Episcopi Civitatis S. Dominici Apud Indos Occidentales, Apostolicis, Imperialibus, & Regijs Legationibus functi, etc. 16 prelim. pages, including the engraved and printed titles: text 284 pp. index 18 leaves not numbered, fine copy in dark polished morocco extra by Pratt 8*vo.* Romæ, Typis Guilelmi Facciotti, 1631

This book is a puzzle to bibliographers and historians, resulting probably rather from a want of chronology than from a want of authenticity. Geraldinus was born at Amerini about 1455, and as a young man found his way to Spain. At first he became a soldier in the wars against Portugal, and next was employed at Court in the Service of ISABELLA, then as priest, private secretary, tutor and companion in the household of Ferdinand and Isabella. Soon after as confidential agent or legate he was sent to Pope Alexander VI, and to the various princes of Europe with whom he concluded many bargains or treaties. His editor claims also that he visited Africa and its many rulers, the isles of the Atlantic and even India, but it is suspected that a great portion of this is taken from well-known authors named, such as Cadamosto, Alvares, Leo Africanus, Sanuto, Pigafetta, Barros, Corsalis, &c. At all events he was attached to the Court of Ferdinand and Isabella in confidential and intimate capacities when COLUMBUS brought his grand idea there about 1485, and rendered the Great Discoverer many essential services during his seven years dancing attendance on Los Reyes. This seems to the editor, his grand nephew, to be the proudest feather in his ancestor's cap. He aided Columbus, it is claimed, on many occasions, and being a good mathematician was able to explain to the grand Cardinal and the bishops to whom Columbus's conundrum was referred, how it was possible to go to the East by the West, and that there were really Antipodes in spite of the statements of some of the Fathers. When Charles came to Spain Geraldinus was made Bishop of St. Domingo, and after some five years' residence in that city died there in 1525. Copies differ in the preliminary leaves, some having been issued with 4, others with 8, and some with even 20 leaves, twelve of them being sonnets, verses, &c. subsequently added. This copy is complete with 8.

Imprinted at London by George Bishop and Ralph Newberie, Deputies to Christopher Barker*, 1589

This matchless copy, large, and every way perfect, is bound uniformly with the next lot, by RIVIERE in his best gros grained French morocco to a genuine Roger Payne pattern of great beauty and delicacy of finish. Besides Sir JEROME BOWE'S Voyage, between pages 490 and 506, and the generously suppressed Voyage of Sir FRANCIS DRAKE "about the whole globe," six leaves not numbered between pages 643 and 644, this copy contains the correct map named in the preface by Hakluyt as being inserted as a substitute in consequence of the great map in hand by Molyneux not being then ready. The map is really a close copy of Ortelius' map of the world first published at Antwerp in 1585, and is very seldom found.

1429 HAKLUYT (RICHARD) THE PRINCIPAL NAVIGATIONS, VOYAGES, TRAFFIQUES AND DISCOVERIES OF THE ENGLISH NATION, 3 vol. in 2, vol. I 1599, 12 prelim. leaves and 619 pp.; II, 1599, 8 prelim. leaves and 312 & 204 pp.; III, 1600, 8 prelim. leaves and 868 pp. folio. London: George Bishop, Ralph Newberie and Robert Barker, 1599-1600

A splendid copy, every way perfect, with the original voyage to Cadiz at the end of volume I, and the map by Molyneux finished and published about 1600; bound in 2 volumes uniform with the preceding lot by RIVIERE, in his best gros grained French morocco to a genuine Roger Payne pattern. Besides being in first rate condition the value of this copy is greatly enhanced by having in it MOLYNEUX'S MAP, on two sheets, pasted together, both fine and uniformly brilliant impressions, the only copy we believe that has been offered for sale by auction in London for nearly forty years, the last occurring in Bright's sale. The only other copies that we know of are, 1. That in the King's Library. 2. In the Grenville Library. 3. In the Crachrode collection, all three in the British Museum. 4. The Library of the Admiralty. 5. The Lenox Library, New York. 6. The Library of the University of Cambridge. 7. The private Library of Mr. Christie-Miller, and 8. The Middle Temple Library, all save one locked up in public libraries. The writer held orders of many years standing to secure this map alone at £100, but without success. The size of the map, when the two sheets are properly pasted together is 16½ by 25 inches and is entitled "Thou hast here (gentle reader) a true hydrographical description of so much of the world as hath been hitherto discovered, and is come to our knowledge: which we have in such sort performed, yt all places herein set downe, have the same positions and distances that they have in the globe, being therein placed in same longitudes and latitudes which they have in this chart;" etc. This copy is the first issue of Molyneux' map and has not the Cartouch about Sir Francis Drake, in the lower left hand corner, subsequently added. description, facsimile and index of this the most rare as well as the most valuable of early English maps, see the recent publication of the Hakluyt Society. Mr. C. H. Coote of the British Museum, has, we understand, demonstrated that it is the map referred to by Shakspeare in Twelfth Night, Act iii, Scene ii, "He does smile his face into more lines than are in the new map, with the Augmentation of the Indies." The writer however is half inclined to think that the map, "with The Augmentation of the Indies," may be the curious little round face-shaped map of the World in Wytfleit's Ptolemæum Augmentum first published in 1597, and reissued in Latin and French in 1598, 1603, 1607 and 1611, it being simply Ptolemy's World Augmented by the addition of the East and West Indies—the Indies at that time meaning the West as well as the East Indies.

8vo. Now first published, Quebeck, A.D. 1901

Here is a good subject spoiled. The book purports to be an attempt at prophecy. It was really written about 1801, but purports to be a fair statement of the North-American Continental progress and changes to 1872, or after 70 years, and published a quarter of a century later. The author has made some hits, but he is so wide of the mark in others that on the whole his forecasts are tame.

1483 LEE (RICHARD, Bookseller and Radical) Political Curiosities, including an account of the State of Political Affairs in Europe, sheep, and scarce 8*vo.* Philadelphia: Printed for Richard Lee, No. 89, North-Second Street, 1796

Citizen Lee, of London, was a character in his way, and probably being in some other person's way he removed to Philadelphia early in 1796, taking some of his stock-in-trade [radical and liberty pamphlets] with him. The collective title alone of this volume was printed in Philadelphia, all the rest consisting of nearly 20 tracts had been printed and published at various signs in London the year or two previous, especially at the "British tree of Liberty," in the Haymarket, and afterwards at 444, Strand. Three of the tracts are frontispieced with Liberty caricatures.

1484 LETTER (A) to a Person of Honour, concerning the King's [Charles II] disavowing the having been married to the D. of M's Mother, 23 pp. 4*to.* [London?] 1680

The object of this apparently privately printed tract is to elicit an inquiry into the validity of Charles II's marriage with Mrs. Walters, the mother of the Duke of Monmouth. It is charged that the Duke of York induced Charles II to repudiate his marriage to the mother of Monmouth in order to establish his own claim to the throne. The tract is without name or printer, but is dated at the end June 10, 1610 [1680?]

To which is subjoined Apthorp's Considerations, calf extra by Mansell

8vo. Boston, in New England, printed; London, reprinted for W. Nicoll, 1763

For other works of the learned and brilliant Dr. Mayhew, of Boston, see lots 378 to 391 above. The value of this particular copy of Mayhew's OBSERVATIONS is greatly enhanced by the margins being filled with manuscript notes and severe criticisms on the author's facts, fancies, principles, Boston notions and local views. We do not at present recognize the pugnacious critic, but he handles his reverend brother pretty much as Maddox handled Neale, in his History of the Puritans, and about as firmly.

Valuable historical and geographical books, like everything else, have their ups and downs in demand and price. This book has long been down, but the recent restless activity of the North Western Americans and British Columbians has at last brought it up. The maps showing the tracks of the Iphigenia and the Felicés, and the discoveries of the Boston ship Washington, are of great interest and value, though the controversial and partisan statements of the Author call for vigorous scrutiny. The purchase of the Hudson Bay Company's Rights and Assumptions by Canada; the Consolidation of all British North America into the Dominion of Canada; and the opening up of the vast Interior to the Rocky Mountains and beyond to the Pacific; the projected Canadian Pacific railway through to Vancouvre; the acquisition of the Aleutian Islands and Alaska by the United States; all these must give a geographical importance to this book and others growing out of it which it never before possessed.

For a full account of this first and rarest separate book relating to New-Netherland see Asher No. 334, where he devotes no less than 16 full pages to it. To him belongs the honour of discovering and announcing its bibliographical importance in 1849. Since then a few other copies have been brought to light and have been sold at prices from £20 to £40. Mr. Brodhead in his History of New York, and Mr. Murphy, who published a translation of it, attribute the authorship of BREEDEN-RAEDT to Cornelis Melyn, but Dr. George Asher, on the other hand, declares his opinion that Melyn was not the author, and gives four reasons (page 200) why he could not be. The book however is abundantly able to stand on its own merits.

JAMES the ANTIQUARY of Milan in April, 1506, suggested to the Dominican monk AGOSTINO GIUSTIANI of Genoa, then 36 years of age, to occupy his leisure (otium cum negotio) in collecting, collating and publishing in one volume the Psalms of David in Hebrew, Greek, Arabic and Chaldean, together with three of the best Latin versions extant, with comments of his own. Giustiani accepted the suggestion and devoted ten years to this great work the first Polyglot of the Psalms. The volume is inscribed to Leo X, in a letter from Genoa, in August, 1516. In the notes there are several historical and geographical references to contemporary events of considerable interest, such as that to Ps. 29, v. 6, where he interprets the unicorn to be a rhinoceros, and says that he had seen a picture of one lately brought to the King of Portugal from India. But the most interesting of all the notes is the very long one on the fourth verse of the XIXth Psalm, wherein GIUSTIANI gives an account of the Life and Voyages of his fellow townsman Christopher Columbus. There are several points in this first life of the Great Discoverer which we do not find elsewhere recorded, especially respecting the second Voyage and the survey of the south side of Cuba, as far as Evangelista on the west side of the Isle of Pines, in May, 1494. All the other accounts of the Second Voyage of Columbus, except that of Bernaldez, end before this Cuba excursion began. Ferdinand Columbus, in the Life of his Father, complains bitterly of this Note in the Genoa Psalter, and accuses Giustiani of telling no less than 14 lies about the Admiral, but on hunting them out they all appear to be of trifling consequence, amounting to little more than that Columbus sprang from humble origin and that he and his father were poor, earning a livelihood by honest toil.

4to. Firenze: Guiseppe Allegrini, 1769

Verazzano the first explorer of the North American Coast from Florida to Nova Scotia, has unaccountably been stricken from the late great Centennial edition of the History of the United States, and his name erased even from the index. As if this was not enough his name has of late been loaded with conjecture and suspicion. Geographical notions have been attributed to him of which he is blameless. Let his shade be patient and History will restore him to his true position as one of the great explorers of the North American Atlantic coast.
